FISTS SWING IN BOTH HOUSES

U. S. CAPITOL IS THE SCENE OF COMBATS

Senators Glass, Virginia, and Wheeler, Montana, Both Demos, Nearly Come To Blows Over Banking Bill---Tincher and Strong, Both Kansas Republicans, Mix On Other Side.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—(I. N. S.)—Fists flew on both sides of the capitol today.

There was not much physical damage, but the air was blue from the beating it received, and from the sulphuric remarks of some of the combatants.

The usual staid dignity of the senate was interrupted by a clash between two democrats. Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, and Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana.

It grew out of a parliamentary wrangle over the McFadden branch banking bill, which Glass supported and which Wheeler opposed.

Invited "Outside."

When Wheeler said: "You broke your word," Glass become livid with anger and shouted: "You lie." He flung himself at the tall Montanan, then checked a blow in mid-air and invited him "out in the hall." Wheeler started for the corridor to accommodate him when other senators intervened and stopped it.

A battle between Glass and Wheeler would have had a "Mutt and Jeff" aspect, as Glass is the smallest man in the senate, while Wheeler is tall and rangy.

In the house it was two brawny Kansans who "tangled"—Representative J. N. (Polly) Tincher and Representative James G. Strong, both republicans. They have been on opposite sides of the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill fight, Tincher being one of its strongest opponents.

Clash In Corridor.

Their clash occurred in the corridor just outside the chamber after an exchange of personalities, in which Tincher is reported to have called Strong "a dirty pup" and Strong came back with:

SPEEDY LIQUOR BOAT CAPTURED

Coast Guard Cutter Seizes Alleged Rum Running Craft.

SAN PEDRO, Cal., Feb. 12.—(U. P.)—The speedy rum craft 220-A, believed to have figured in a gun battle between federal agents and four asserted liquor runners at La Guna beach Thursday, was captured by the coast guard cutter 295-A after a spirited chase off San Clemente island today.

According to reports received at the coast guard base here, the 295 will bring the rum boat into this port with the crew and officers.

Meager dispatches said that the 90 burlap sacks containing an unknown quantity of liquor had been found on the beach at San Clemente.

Whether the runner had unloaded the liquor, fearing capture was inevitable, could not be determined from the report made by Boatswain G. F. Stepanoff.

The "220-A," according to reports here, was chased by fast eagle ships, following the alleged attempt of four men to land liquor at Laguana beach, where more than fifty state, county and federal officers were waiting for the party.

RESCUE WOMAN FROM FANATICS

Business Men Free South Dakota Victim From Religious Cult.

BRIDGEWATER, S. D., Feb. 12.—(U. P.)—After being tied to her bed for three days while members of a religious cult made weird gestures and uttered shouts to "extract the devil" from her body, Mrs. H. Wollman was rescued today by a committee of business men.

When found by the committee she was in a state of hypnotism and Dr. C. H. Glauser said she had been without food for five days.

The woman was considerably weakened by the ordeal, but Dr. Glauser said she would recover.

The religious cult is made up of farmers living outside Bridgewater and they are believed to have called at Mrs. Wollman's home early this week and started their vigil against "the devil."

They were fanatical in their shouting when the business men arrived at the Wollman home and had to be forced from the house.

MOFFAT TUNNEL IS DRILLED THROUGH

Great Engineering Achievement Nearing Completion; To Cost $15,000,000.

DENVER, Feb. 12.—(I. N. S.)—The solid granite wall of the continental divide has been penetrated, and virtual completion of the Moffat tunnel, one of the greatest achievements in modern engineering, was signalized today when a three inch drill went through James peak, fifty miles west of Denver, in the pioneer bore that has been drilled for more than three years.

"Holing through" of the tunnel was greeted with great enthusiasm by the thousand workmen on the scene. Engineers report that the alignment of the two headings, started six miles apart with a mountain separating them, was perfect.

Drills will continue to work, widening the bore, and President Coolidge will touch off the final blast by pressing a golden telegraph key at the white house next Friday.

The estimated cost of the tunnel is $15,000,000.

Cabinet Resigns

BERLIN, Feb. 12.—(INS)—The Albanian cabinet resigned today because of a dissension over the government's budget, according to reports to Vienna papers. President Ahmed Bey Zogu accepted the resignations.

Gotham's Saturday Night is Quiet, With Only "Nice" Shows

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—(I. N. S.)—Broadway is all dressed up tonight and the Saturday night revelers have no place to go but to "nice, clean shows."

Producers of the girlie-girlie shows have taken a tip from Police Commissioner McLaughlin and the Broadway revue isn't what it was last Saturday night.

The producers are paying more for costumes and far less for steam-heated stages and fur wraps for the girlies when they leave the stage. The managers have gone in for "drapes." This investigator is able to report that a "drape" is inefficient in its effort to hide the charms of the Broadway revue "charmers;" but it satisfies the police. However, the police are going to remain active and the minute any revue producer or night club manager lets his girls dash out in public entirely forgetful of her "drape" there are going to be arrests.

Over in Brooklyn, where New Yorkers believe nothing ever happens, there have been fireworks. Officers, who must have been on desk duty since the Victorian era, were sent out to view the public performances of the dancing girls and, my, how shocked they were when they found eight girls in a night club—wearing tights, mind you! The officers did their duty, for Brooklyn must be protected, and the eight girls were haled into court.

As regards the alleged indecent plays, there is an armistice in effect until the courts decide concerning the three that have been proceeded against. Pending court action, plays with spicy and fiery lines are being permitted to go on, and the boxoffices have not suffered from court action.

So that idle hands may not get into mischief, the police have turned their attention to the Volstead act. A series of raids during the past twenty-four hours has set Broadway all askew. Officers are rushing in and closing up favorite speak easies.

What with the girls wearing "drapes" and the speak easies being raided, it begins to look as though the New Yorkers must face the end of the jazz era—or move to Brooklyn.

PROVIDES 1,200 MILE INCREASE IN STATE ROADS

SUBSTITUTE FOR MANY MEASURES

Allows Use Of Gas Tax Revenue In Constructing County Highways.

An increase of 20 per cent in the present mileage of the combined federal-state highway system in Nebraska, as provided for by H. R 25 in its revised form, is one of the major proposals now receiving consideration in the legislature. It will be the subject of a hearing by the house committee on roads and bridges Monday afternoon, at which State Engineer Roy Cochran will discuss the plan, and may be taken up by the chamber itself later in the week.

This bill is of state-wide interest because it affects every county and involves a question of permanent policy by the state in developing its highways. Ten members have placed their names upon it as joint sponsors. It is intended as a general substitute for some 40 other bills introduced in the house and senate creating half a hundred highway projects and adding them to the state system. Should H. R. 25 go through, these other bills will all be sidetracked.

The existing federal-state highway system embraces 6,300 miles, and an additional 20 per cent would bring 1,260 miles more into it, making the total 7,560. As the cost of

HEAVY BUILDING PROGRAM ASKED

Mellon and New Submit $117,090,000 Proposal To Congress.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—(U. P.)—A $117,090,000 public building program, to be carried out in five years under congressional authorization voted last May, was submitted in detail to congress today by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and Postmaster General New.

The budget estimates for work on the program to be carried out in the fiscal year 1928, starting next July 1, totalling about $20,000,000 will be sent to congress next week.

The list is a revision of the $176,000,000 program sent to congress three weeks ago. Under the supplementary $100,000,000 public buildings authorization bill passed by the house and now pending in the senate, however, many other projects, including especially those in smaller cities, may be undertaken in the same period.

The total amount alloted by the

Benjamin Turner On Hunger Strike

PORTLAND, Me., Feb. 12.—(I. N. S.)—Benjamin H. Turner, sentenced to life imprisonment for killing J. D. Hallen, was on a hunger strike in Cumberland county jail otnight.

The Mystic, Iowa, accountant has declined food for thirty-five hours. He refused to talk with jail officials, muttering to himself in his cell. A complete physical collapse was feared.

He was to have been taken to state's prison at Thomaston today, but was too weak for the journey.

A physician examined Turner at the jail this afternoon when officials expressed fear of a complete physical collapse. Food has been placed before Turner three times a day, but he refuses to touch it.

Two men are on constant guard at his cell.

While Turner's physical condition prevents his removal to state's prison, a bill of exceptions is now planned by his attorney and he may be kept here pending decision of the court.

REBELS QUELLED IN TWO BATTLES

Federal Troops Kill 43 Insurgent Indians In Yaqui Zone and 13 in Another Encounter.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 12.—(I. N. S.) — Forty-three rebel Yaqui Indians were killed during a six hour battle between the rebellious Indians and federal troops in the Yaqui zone, according to a dispatch today from the commander of the federals. The federal troops lost three dead and fifteen wounded. The battle occurred on February 9.

In another engagement in Jalisco state, federal troops under General Ferreiro defeated a group of sixty insurgents near Zapotlan, killing thirteen rebels, including two chiefs. General Ferreiro added that a survey of Jalisco state revealed that there is no longer a military problem in that state.

Jung Lim Tew Is Only Chinaman in American Legion

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Feb. 12.—(I. N. S.)—Jung Lim Tew has the distinction, it is believed, of being the only Chinese member of the American Legion in the United Stats.

"I am an American citizen, I was born in the United States, and because I like this country I enlisted in the army," he declared. Thirty-seven years ago he was born in New York City, returning to China when very young. At eighteen he returned to this country.

With the true impassivity of the Chinese Jung Lim Tew dislikes to talk unless the topic be the Chinese situation. Then words do not fail him.

"China is a strong country," he said. The English and Japanese hold the land of the Chinese. Some day they will be driven out and then China will grow like the United States."

THIRTEEN ARE GIVEN PAROLES

Application of Lincoln Holdup Denied—Has Prison Record.

Thirteen paroles and two commutations have been granted by the state parole board out of the nineteen cases which it heard last Tuesday. The decisions were made public Saturday afternoon. Four paroles and one commutation were granted to penitentiary inmates. The other cases in which clemency was granted were those of reformatory inmates.

Only one application for parole was denied, and two applications for commutation were turned down. One case, that of Ross Wainright, who is serving a sentence of 1 to 7 years for inciting another to arson, was deferred. Wainright was sent to the penitentiary from Hall county.

Schoals Delay Looms

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—(INS)—Postponement of action upon all proposals for the disposition of Muscle Shoals appeared probable today following a meeting of the house military affairs sub-committee. Although no decision was reached upon bids before the sub-committee, it was reported that members were in sharp disagreement.

GHOUL BLAMED IN SKULL FIND

ROYAL OAK, Mich., Feb. 12.—(U. P.)—Authorities planned tonight to question James Coyner, negro convict in the Indiana state penitentiary, concerning the skulls of four women found in a house here, formerly occupied by Coyner.

The negro is in the Indiana prison serving a sentence for robbing a grave near Gary. Authorities believe the four skulls found here may have been the results of Coyner's ghoulish activities.

However, there was a matted substance on one of the skulls which appeared to be blood, giving rise to the possibility of murder. County officials plan to question Coyner concerning this and also concerning a statement he made at the time he was arrested in Gary that he was "wanted for murder in Detroit."

FINAL VICTORY NOW EXPECTED BY FARM BLOC

To Substitute Aid Measure Passed By Senate For House Bill.

CLAIM TO HOLD CLEAR MAJORITY

Leaders On Both Sides In Dark As To Attitude Of President.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—(I. N. S.)—Farm bloc leaders today prepared to take control of the legislative machinery of the house for the first time since the fight for the McNary-Haughen farm relief bill opened four years ago.

Asserting that they hold a clear majority, they announced the first move would be to substitute the bill as it passed the senate late yesterday for the house measure now under consideration.

Representative Haugen, republican of Iowa, chairman of the house agriculture committee, will appear before the house rules committee on Monday and request a rule making the substitution, according to this plan. When the rule is reported to the house, probably on Tuesday, a test vote is expected to result on a motion for its adoption.

To Fight Amendments.

In a second parliamentary move it was indicated farm bloc leaders will endeavor to vote down all amendments to the senate bill and pass it without change. The measure then would go direct to the president for signature.

Although the senate measure is not entirely satisfactory to some house members, leaders fear that an effort to amend the bill would open the way for a filibuster in the senate when action is required again.

If it is decided to demand amendments to the senate bill, a conference probably will become necessary, which would require a second vote in both branches. With the end of the present session but three weeks away, it was pointed out, the bill easily could be filibustered to its death.

Dickinson Confident.

"As the situation stands today, we have votes to pass the bill by a majority of forty or more," said Representative Dickinson, republican of Iowa, the farm bloc head. "I am in favor of passing the bill just as it came from the senate. Some of the provisions are not to our liking, but legislation can seldom be satisfactory to all."

Leaders on both sides still professed to be in the dark as to President Coolidge's attitude on the bill. Administration supporters were convinced that Mr. Coolidge would veto the bill, but the senate farm block leaders were equally certain he would permit it to become a law.

SNOW FALLING OVER STATE

General Storm Reported —Totals Three Inches at Midnight.

The snow which began falling over the state Saturday evening had reached a depth of about three inches in Lincoln at midnight and was continuing to fall steadily. The flakes were large and laden with moisture. Very little wind accompanied the snow in the eastern portion of the state and the temperature had not fallen to any great degree.

South of Lincoln and many districts of the west, according to the Lincoln Telephone company, both mist and snow were falling. Some sleet was reported from a few localities, but no wire trouble was reported to wires.

The fact that the snow was general throughout the entire state and was of a heavy, wet variety added greatly to moisture condition of the ground. According to W. W. Burr, crop specialist at the agriculture college, crops throughout the state will be greatly benefitted, especially in the central portion. Mr. Burr stated that in the eastern portion the sub soil is in fairly good shape; but that any additional moisture would help. The central portion of the state was in need of moisture to carry the wheat crop over to spring. The same is true of the west portion.

Following are the reports from various towns:

Syracuse, light snow; Nebraska City, Ashland, Weeping Water and Wahoo, cloudy; Alliance, snow; Sidney, North Platte, Grand Island, Lexington, Broken Bow, McCook and Kearney, mist; Fairbury, Bennet, Hastings, Fairbury, light snow; York and Seward, wet snow; David City and Fairmont, snow; Beatrice and Tecumseh, light rain.

Mrs. Graham's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Grant Pierson, living in Fresno, are great grandparents at 57 and 52, respectively.

CANTONESE TO AWAIT HELP IN SHANGHAI DRIVE

General Chiang Rests, Apparently Awaiting Reinforcements.

City's Defenders Rejoice —More British Troops Arriving.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 12.—(I. N. S.)—While additional British troops are arriving and the populace is rejoicing at the successes of Gen. Chuan Sun-Fang, defender of Shanghai, the Cantonese armies are reported to be entrenching themselves in the mountains some distance from Hangchow.

Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek has not disclosed his next maneuver, but there is every indication the Cantonese plan to await reinforcements before attempting further advances.

Reports here indicate Gen. Feng Yuh-Chiang, the "Christian general," again may send his forces to the field. If Feng's troops move down from the north they may be able to draw some of the weight of the reported attack of Marshal Chang Tso-Lin from the Cantonese and permit their southern allies to proceed to the attack on Hangchow again.

300 QUARTS OF NITRO EXPLODE

Oklahoma Blast Shatters Building; Believed No One Killed.

TULSA, Okla., Feb. 12. — (AP)—Windows were shattered and buildings were shaken for miles around this afternoon when 300 quarts of nitroglycerine, stored in a building at the Independent Torpedo Co., plant, near here, exploded from an unknown cause.

A check-up was being made by company officials tonight to determine if any lives were lost. No one was in or near the building at the time of the blast, they thought.

The building was splintered and equipment was blown to bits when the liquid exploded with a terrific detonation.

A rabbit that was found near the place where the building stood was cleanly skinned. Not a patch of hair remained on its body.

A great chasm was torn in the earth and trees in the vicinity were uprooted or stripped of their branches.

Chunks of earth and rock were thrown for a radius of several hundred yards. Fragments of the building where the explosive was stored were found scattered over a wide area.

CHARGE MEN HAD YOUNG GIRL POSE

Leaders Of Milwaukee Art Colony Declared Contributors to Delinquency of a Model, 16.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Feb. 12.—(INS)—Warrants were issued today for the arrest of Walter Goepel, secretary of the Milwaukee Art institute and Gustav Mueller, head of the art department, Milwaukee Normal school on charges of contributing to the delinquency of Garnet Streit, 16, model.

Goepel and Mueller, leading members of the Milwaukee art colony, were specifically accused of having the girl pose nude before classes of the art student's league and the Milwaukee Art institute.

The case was climaxed with the return from Chicago of Miss Streit where she had fled fearing parental discipline after staying out all night at a roadhouse party, she told police.

William Benton, 19, Evanston, Ill., a student at the Wisconsin College of Engineering, already has been arrested in connection with the case on evidence that he was Miss Streit's escort at the party. He is at liberty on $200 bail.

FRENCH VIEW IS CAUSE FOR PESSIMISM

General Expectation Prevails At Washington That Paris, If Not Rejecting Coolidge Invitation, Will Accept Only In "Principle"---See Little Change In Position Five Years Ago.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—(I. N. S.)—The prospects of the world's great naval powers gathering around the conference table in Geneva to further whittle down their navies—as proposed by President Coolidge—were regarded somewhat pessimistically in the capital tonight.

The distinct coldness, if not the actual hostility, with which the French cabinet viewed the American invitation in its first session today was not conducive to much optimism concerning an early conference.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—The weather outlook for the period of February 14 to February 19, inclusive, follows:

Upper Mississippi and lower Missouri valleys: Normal winter temperatures most of week; probably one or two precipitation periods.

Nebraska: Snow or rain Sunday, colder in northwest portion; Monday mostly fair, preceded by snow in extreme east portion; colder in southeast portion.

Kansas: Rain Sunday, probably changing to snow in east portion by Monday; mostly fair Monday in west portion; somewhat colder by Monday; slightly warmer Sunday in southeast portion.

UNMASKED MEN ROB A STUDENT

Donald Balderson Held Up Near Twenty-fifth and N and Relieved of Watch.

Two unmasked men held up Donald Balderson, 202 South Twenty-seventh, near Twenty-fifth and N streets at 8:50 p. m. Saturday, took his billfold, scarf, and watch, and made their escape in a large sedan.

Balderson, who is a university student and whose home is at Chambers, Neb., was walking towards his Lincoln residence at the time of the holdup. He was walking east on N street.

The sedan was parked on the south side of the street, and when Balderson neared it a man stepped out, asking the way to Bethany. A moment later he said, "I don't care anything about Bethany. Turn around." The stranger produced a gun and forced Balderson to allow himself to be "frisked." Balderson's billfold contained no money.

Five minutes after the holdup C. R. Venner, 134 South Twenty-eighth, reported the theft of his sedan at Sixteenth and O streets. The car was taken between 7 and 8:45 p. m., Mr. Venner reported. Although this one is a different make from that described by Balderson, police believe it might have been the car used by the holdups, with transferred license plates. Balderson obtained the license number of the bandit's car as it drove away fro mthe scene of the holdup.

JURY IN AUSTIN CASE DISAGREES

Discharged Saturday Afternoon After Deliberating Since Wednesday.

(Special to The Star.)

BEATRICE, Neb., Feb. 12.—The District court jury which tried the case against Mrs. Effie Austin, charged with grand larceny, was discharged by Judge William J. Moss shortly before 3 o'clock this afternoon, having twice prior to that time reported that there was no probability of an agreement being reached.

The case was given to the jury at 6 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, and Judge Moss had intimated that he would keep the jurors out until Monday morning unless there was an agreement, but evidently changed his mind. Mrs. Austin has been at liberty on bond since her arrest several weeks ago, and this bond is to be continued. Prior to the beginning of the trial she had been receiving treatment at a sanitarium in Lincoln, it being stated that she had suffered a nervous collapse.

Officer Ends Life

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Feb. 12.—(U. P.)—First Lieut. Henry T. Birmingham of Washington, D. C., one of the officers of the marine expedition sent from the United States to protect American lives and property during the revolution, committed suicide today at Campo De Marte.

An official board of inquiry was appointed to investigate.

The general expectation prevails that France, if she does not reject outright Mr. Coolidge's invitation, will proffer only an "acceptance in principle," which means hedging it about with so many conditions and inhibitions as to make it virtually valueless.

Dispatches from Paris, both press and private, revealed the French position was altered but slightly, if at all, since the Washington arms conference five years ago. In 1921-1922 France reluctantly accepted a position of inferiority in capital ships and then successfully scuttled every effort to limit her as to submarines, destroyers and light cruisers.

Increases Revealed.

In the five years that have passed since the Washington conferences tables show she has, despite financial stringencies, managed to increase her armament materially in these classes of vessels. French statesmen and naval experts contend that submarines are France's defense against Britain's superior naval establishment. It is a weapon they will not give up lightly—if at all.

It is believed by naval experts here that France's attitude toward the Coolidge project ultimately will

LIFE TERM FOR DAVID HARDING

Second Brother Sentenced For Robbing Modale Savings Bank.

LOGAN, Ia., Feb. 12.—(U. P.)—Overruling a motion for a new trial, Judge O. D. Wheeler today sentenced Dave Harding of Blair, Neb., to a life term in the penitentiary for the robbery of the Modale, Ia., Savings bank.

Broy Harding a, brother, was sentenced to life imprisonment a week ago for the same crime.

Before sentence was pronounced, Harding declared that he had not been given a fair trial. Defense counsel announced the case will be appealed.

The two brothers held up the bank on December 15, last year, obtaining $3,000. They escaped across the Missouri river on the ice after abandoning and burning their auto.

The two men were captured in Omaha a few hours after the holdup through a tip given officers by the woman proprietor of a small restaurant who overheard one of the brothers telephone a rooming house in Omaha. All but $800 of the money taken was recovered.

'Nameless Marine' Is Identified But Name Not Learned

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—(I. N. S.) — Jerry Tarbot, "the nameless marine," was identified by two persons as having served in the marine corps in France, before the house veterans committee today, but neither could supply his name.

Representative Updike, republican of Indiana, and Capt. Louis Cukla of the marine corps, both said they saw him in France. Updike declared he believed Tarbots' real name was Markum.

Tarbot, nameless and homeless, appealed for government care. Representatives of the veterans bureau told the committee they had not been able to solve the riddle. Compensation cannot be granted unless the navy or war departments will certify that he is a veteran.

SEES NEED OF NEW DRY LAWS

General Andrews Believes Three Pending Measures Necessary. Senator Edge's Tactics Make Enactment of Any Doubtful.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—(U. P.)—Prohibition enforcement will be badly hampered if congress does not pass at least three of the pending prohibitory laws, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Lincoln C. Andrews told the United Press today.

Official statements from congressional leaders indicate there is less than an even chance of final enactment of any of the Andrews bills, particularly in view of the filibustering tactics of Senator Edge, New Jersey, wet leader.

The measures demanded are:

1—Re-organization of the federal enforcement forces, by divorcing the customs and internal revenue bureaus from the prohibition unit.

2—A monopoly and complete supervision over sale and distribution of medicinal liquors.

Andrews, reviewing the accomplishments of his regime, said the supply of good liquor had been stopped. There is only one chance in 2,000 of a citizen getting good liquor today, he said.

"So far there has been a lack of congressional support for needed prohibition legislation and there is still need of local co-operation on enforcement."

Moonshiners Big Source.

Moonshiners, he said, are now the one big source of liquor supply.

"The federal organization is directed only at the source of supply and the moonshine industry cannot be broken until the people themselves force local law enforcement enemies to go after these criminals" he added.

"The public should be interested in the medicinal liquor bill. It will assure the bill of a pure brand of liquor for medicinal needs, and it will save the government $1,000,000 or more annually in enforcement work.

"Without secret service agents, prohibition can never succeed. Therefore, I am hopeful that congress will releaese the $500,000 fund for under cover operations.

"Some of liquor rings in the country have big secret service organizations of their own. Fire must be fought with fire. When rum trusts have monthly payrolls of more than $1,000,000, it is time to realize that brains are behind the organizations, and they cannot be attacked in the open."

He asserted ocean rum running had virtually been ended by the coast guard, industrial alcohol leaks have been reduced to a minimum, new regulations have ended the flow of sacramental wines in bootleg channels, and the border patrols have established a successful blockade along the Mexican boundary.

Hangchow was heavy, there is no indication here that it was a rout.

Thousands Killed.

Thousands are reported to have been killed in the fighting and this despite the fact that Chuan Sun-Fang moved forward with more men but far less efficient equipment than the Cantonese possess.

The reversal of the Cantonese is expected to have a bearing on diplomatic negotiations and it is suggested that Eugene Chen, nationalist leader may be willing to make terms with the British as regards the future of Shanghai.

Although the arrival of British troops is welcomed in some quarters here, there is no denying that the weight of public opinion is that these troops may cause more trouble than they will do good.

Many Rumors Heard.

PEKING, Feb. 12.—(I. N. S.)—Military movements of the northern armies are rather obscure, although there are many rumors afloat here tonight.

One rumor has it that four armies under the general command of Marshal Chang Tso-Lin have already made considerable advances in the direction of Hankow, preparing to attack.

Another has it that the northern allies have fallen out and that Wu Pei-Fu's forces, indignant over the advance of Chang Tso-Lin forces into their traditional territory, have clashed with the troops directed by Chang Tso-Lin.

While no official comment is forthcoming, observers here generally believe there is not likely to be any general merger of the northern armies for a combined attack on the Cantonese.

Adherents of Chang Tso-Lin are using every effort to win public support against the Cantonese, charging that they are being backed by the Russians.

Make New Demands.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—(I. N. S.)—The nationalist government in China has made fresh demands of jurisdiction and sovereignty in the territory it controls, according to a dispatch received here tonight from Hankow.

The southern government, according to the dispatch, has sent a note the French co-director general in Peking, declaring that henceforwrad postal commissioners in territories administered by the nationalists must be of nationalist appointment.

No commissioner appointed from Peking, the note concluded, either would be allowed to assume office or to continue his present post.

Chaplin Is Pleased With Move Planned By His Young Wife

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—(I. N. S.)—Charlie Chaplin, the film comedian, was avowedly delighted today over a dispatch from Los Angeles to the effect that his estranged wife, the former Lita Grey, had asked permission of the Superior court to return to the Beverly Hills mansion of her husband because of her professed inability to pay rent on the house she now occupies.

"That's splendid," Nathan Burkan, New York attorney of the comedian, exclaimed to reporters after readin gthe dispatch to his famous client. Chaplin has been staying at the Burkan home on Fifth avenue since his arrival in New York some weeks ago.

"Let her return," Burkan went on. "Let her return to the beautiful home she left of her own free will and accord. She was not asked to leave and Mr. Chaplin was ignorant of her intentions until she left without warning."

The lawyer expressed the conviction, however ,that Mrs. Chaplin's appeal to the court was "merely a publicity stunt to gain the sympathy of the public, in an effort to wreck Mr. Chaplin's career and dishonor his name by showing that he is neglecting his children."

Regarding Mrs. Chaplin's statement that she had received only $400 from her husband for the support of their children since their separation, Burkan said:

"We cannot understand her poverty, for after she left Mr. Chaplin she bought a beautiful limousine.

"Mr. Lloyd Wright (one of Chaplin's attorneys at Los Angeles) has been sending her checks for $100 a week. If she has refused to cash them it is not Mr. Chaplin's fault."

"You're a big liar." All of which was embellished with some he-man words, such as are used out in the wide open spaces but which are not printed in family journals.

They were flailing at each other vigorously when Speaker Longworth, aided by Representative Bailey of Missouri, and Representative Hudspeth of Texas, pried them apart. They vowed they'd "settle it later."

A Humorous Aspect.

This Kansas battle, too, was not without its humorous aspect, as Tincher is the largest man in congress from the standpoint of avoirdupois. He weighs about 300 pounds and is of more than average height.

Strong is no midget. He weighs about 200 pounds, although his height and reach are considerably below that of the other giant.

JURY IN AUSTIN CASE DISAGREES

larceny, it being alleged that during the fifteen years she had been employed in the Jenkins & Crooks store in Fairbury she had stolen goods of the value of over $17,000. Officers and the present owners of the store where she had worked testified that thousands of dollars worth of this merchandise was found in her home at the time of her arrest.

The defense was that Mrs. Austin is a kleptomanic and not responsible for her acts in carrying away the various articles she was alleged to have stolen. The jury also indicated by the questions propounded to the court after deliberations had begun that it was not satisfied that the state had proven that the defendant had taken goods of the value of $35 at any one time, this being necessary in order to convict her of grand larceny.

It has not yet been indicated when Mrs. Austin will again be placed on trial. The case was brought here from Jefferson county on a change of venue, applied for by the defense.

Check Women's Disappearance.

DETROIT, Feb. 12.—(I. N. S.)—Either the sheriff or prosecutor of Oakland county will leave for Michigan City, Ind., Sunday to question James H. Coyner, a negro war veteran, about the discovery of four skulls in an abandoned trunk, it was announced tonight.

The trunk and its contents were left by Coyner, who is serving a prison sentence for grave robbery, police said.

The fact that a notebook containing the names of several prominent Detroit and Pittsburgh women also was found in the trunk resulted in the decision to make an investigation.

maintaining all these highways is borne by the state alone, after their construction is finished, State Engineer Cochran points out that any further increase in mileage would tend to stop construction work by taking virtually all available revenue to carry the maintenance load.

Would Bankrupt Gas Fund.

Were all the special bills for new state highways to go through it would add over 3,000 miles to the system, thereby placing the state under such a heavy expense to maintain it as to exhaust the gasoline tax fund and leave nothing for construction.

A happy medium will be struck, says State Engineer Cochran, by increasing the mileage a little at a time, up to the limit of 20 per cent above what it is now. This is what H. R. 25 does. It provides that whenever all the state highway mileage hitherto laid out within a county has been permanently improved, that county's share of gasoline tax money may thereafter be used to grade and gravel other highways within its borders, to be designated by the state engineer with the advice of the county board.

There are only five counties where the original federal-state highways have been practically completed. These are Adams, Buffalo, Clay, Douglas and York. The five counties named are now ready to go ahead with other work, using for that purpose the portions of gasoline tax revenue allotted to them on the three-way basis of area, population, and mileage of post roads.

Federal aid cannot be obtained on any of the newly-designated highways, as the federal system in Nebraska is fixed and no provision has been made by congress for extending it. This means that the state must carry the load alone, unless the counties are willing to spend some of their own funds in order to push the work faster.

First Come, First Served.

As other counties finish their present projects, they will be in line to obtain state aid for improving other roads. Each will get the same proportionate share of gas tax revenue every year that it does now, which will determine the rate at which additional projects can be cared for. However, the counties that get started first will secure most of the increased mileage, paying for it with their own money. When 1,260 miles have been added no further extension can be made.

It is estimated with this extra mileage to take care of after construction, the state's annual maintenance cost would be boosted to $3,000,000 or $3,500,000 — or a sum equal to the entire gasoline tax proceeds. It now spends $2,000,000 a year for maintenance.

Inasmuch as the state receives 30 per cent of motor vehicle license fee as part of its maintenance fund, it will not have to spend all the gas tax money that way. From license fees it will soon be deriving $1,250,000 a year, so that an equal amount of gasoline tax revenue would be released for construction, and the federal government will match this, making a total construction fund of $2,500,000 a year.

Thus, the state would be enabled to carry on its program of construction and maintenance without the slighting of either one, provided the gasoline tax fund is not depleted too much by using part of it for state aid bridges and interstate bridges.

Text of the Bill.

Here is the way H. R. 25 reads in the form that it now stands, which the committee on roads and bridges will be asked to approve:

"Section 1. Whenever the state and federal highway systems in any county in the state of Nebraska have been brought to a permanent grade, when drainage structures have been built, and when an adequate surface has been constructed, the state department of public works, with the advice of the county board of that county, shall have authority to lay out additional highway mileage, which when so laid out and platted, shall become a part of the state highway system to be constructed and maintained by the state department of public works, in the same manner as now provided for state and federal routes ,the same as though specifically set forth in section 8333, compiled statutes of Nebraska for 1922. (No extension of the state system under the provisions of this act can be made in any county until the state and federal highway systems in such county are brought to a permanent grade and adequately surfaced, except where a highway in an adjacent county has been laid out in accordance with the provisions of this act, which at its terminus at the county line comes within ten miles of a state or federal highway connecting directly with a county seat.) Then and in that event the department of public works is authorized to continue such connection.

"Sec. 2.—The secretary of the department of public works (state engineer) of the state of Nebraska shall file or cause to be filed, in the office of the county clerk of each county in said state, a map drawn to a scale of one (1) inch to the mile, which shall indicate and show the additional mileage within such county, as provided in the next preceding section.

"Sec. 3.—Provided, that the additions to the state highway system under the provisions of this act shall not exceed 20 per cent of the state and federal highways as of record in the office of the department of public works at the time of the passage of this act."

be determined by what is offered to France in the way of ratio.

If there is any endeavor to place her strength in auxiliary naval craft on the same plane as capital ships, i. e., a ratio of 1.67, as compared to 3 for Japan and 5 each for Great Britain and the United States, little doubt is felt by observers here that the French reply will be an emphatic no. It is doubtful if she would accept a ratio of 3 even, according to naval experts in close contact with French opinion. They believe that nothing less than absolute parity would satisfy the French, if that, and to accord the French parity with the British navy probably would lead to British objections.

U. S. to Participate.

Irrespective of whether the Coolidge invitation is accepted or not, today, this government would continue to participate in the Geneva discussions until it was apparent there was no chance of success in that undertaking. He made this statement in a letter to the house foreign relations committee asking an appropriation of $75,000 to defray expences of American delegates when the discussions are resumed next month.

French Drafting Reply.

PARIS, Feb. 12.—(I. N. S.)—The French cabinet is engaged tonight in the delicate task of drafting a reply to President Coolidge's disarmament proposals, which will be affirmative in form and negative in purpose.

The International News Service learned, following the cabinet meeting today, it was the almost unanimous opinion that France cannot accept the Coolidge proposals, but it does not intend to lay itself open to the charge of rejection without due consideration.

Aristide Briand, that master of the soft blow, has drafted the reply and now is revising it for final submission to the cabinet on Tuesday.

Expect "Buts" and "Ifs."

The reply will open with usual diplomatic courtesies and will say in effect that France welcomes the move for disarmament made by President Coolidge, applauds it and endorses it heartily, but—then there will follow a long procession of "buts" and "ifs" which will make it very plain that the reply is tantamount to a refusal to accept the proposals even though it does not say "no" flatly.

France will raise the question of the League of Nations and will submit that this body must not be rebuffed and that it should first have the opportunity of finishing the disarmament work which it has begun.

The reply when finally analyzed will indicate very clearly that France has no present intention of accepting Coolidge's proposal.

British To Be Deliberate.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—(I. N. S.)—Great Britain, having publicly but unofficially voiced its general approval of President Coolidge's disarmament proposals, does not intend to be precipitated in officially accepting the proposals.

This was made certain when the foreign office announced the proposals have been referred to the imperial defense committee.

The imperial defense committee is a weighty and dignified body. It does not hurry its action, for it is a deliberative body. Experts will have to be consulted in this matter.

Objectors must be heard. The admiralty will have to prepare a report.

It is no secret that the admiralty is not inclined to favor the Coolidge proposals in the entirety and the voice of the admiralty demands attention.

Great Britain's final reply probably will carry some slight reservations, but it is a safe bet that when the British reply is made reservations won't greatly affect the prospects of success of the Coolidge proposals.

Wants Germany Included.

BERLIN, Feb. 12.—(I. N. S.)—Economy in naval armaments is useless so long as land armaments are allowed to run rampant, declared Admiral Reinhard Scheer, who commanded the German fleet at the battle of Jutland, in an interview with International News Service tonight, when he discussed President Coolidge's latest proposals for disarmament.

Admiral Scheer declared Germany should sit in at the conference which President Coolidge proposes, and asks that the "mistakes of the Washington conference" be remedied and that no "loopholes for evasion" be left in the next disarmament conference.

MESSAGES POUR IN.

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Feb. 12.—(I. N. S.)—The reading of hundreds of telegrams, cables and letters of congratulation upon his eightieth birthday occupied Thomas Alva Edison today.

The aged inventor showed no signs of fatigue resulting from the strenuous activities of yesterday, when he granted his annual "birthday interview."

Among the messages was a delayed telegram from Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York. There was also a cable from Premier Mussolini of Italy.

PIONEER CALLED.

AUBURN, Neb., Feb. 12.—(U. P.)—One of Nebraska's oldest pioneers, Mrs. Sanantha Adams, 92, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Dave Watson, here today. She had lived in Auburn almost 50 years. Funeral services will be held tomorrow.

WOOD PLANS VACATION.

MANILA, Feb. 12.—(I. N. S.)—His health permitting, Gov. Gen. Leonard Wood, will leave the Philippines, March 4 for a vacation trip to the United States, it was learned today.

JOHN S. KOSIER DEAD.

ROCKFORD, Ill., Feb. 12.—(I. N. S.)—John S. Kosier, 97, who knew Abraham Lincoln, died suddenly today on the anniversary of the statesman's birth. Kosier was a delegate to the national convention which nominated another martyr president, James A. Garfield.

We presume that many farsighted people have already executed a will, but that lapse of time and changed circumstances may have necessitated a change in its provisions.

The increase or decrease of your wealth, the birth of a child or children, who were not provided for in the will, together with many other matters that could not, or at least were not, considered at the time your present will was executed, make it a good plan to bring this important document up to date.

Does your gasoline do a 100% job?

FOR real motoring economy you should guard against using "one-sided" gasolines. If your gasoline emphasizes one important essential, as, for instance, quick starting, at the expense of another, such as power and mileage, your motoring costs will increase.

That's why you should make sure that your motor fuel does a 100% job. And the way to do that is to apply the triple test. Test it for (1) starting, (2) acceleration and (3) power and mileage. If it meets all of these requirements satisfactorily, it is doing its job 100%.

Conoco is called the triple-test gasoline because it meets these three rigid requirements. It doesn't sacrifice one essential of a good motor fuel to over emphasize another. It is the cream of the standard-priced gasolines—backed by over forty years of experience in the petroleum business.

To be sure of getting Conoco, always fill your tank at the sign of the Continental Soldier. That sign is the symbol of gasoline quality throughout fifteen states.

GOOD BUSINESS PROGRESS MADE DURING WEEK

Financial and Industrial Reports For Period Favorable.

Abundance Of Investment and Commercial Money On Hand.

By W. S. COUSINS.

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—(I. N. S.)—Financial and industrial reports of the past week were generally favorable and further evidences of industrial progress and prosperity were afforded by the increase of a cash and stock dividends on the the common stocks of well known corporations

Most of the stock market confusion resulted from the tightening of the corner on Wheeling & Lake Erie in the first part of the week and the collapse came when shorts persistently refused to be stampeded to cover at unreasonable prices.

Abundance of investment and commercial money remains the outstanding feature of the financial situation. The reserve banks made no change in their rediscount rates

With the distribution of $200,000,000 of home and foreign bonds added to the $300,000,000 last week, a good many of the investment demands of the past month were well covered, and the forward swing of prices was halted. Bonds of the European countries sold at a slightly lower range of prices.

Market More Orderly.

When speculative interest in the stock market shifted from the "little rails" to the industrial stocks, in the latter part of the week, the market assumed a much more orderly tone and spectacular moves in stock prices were not as prevalent as in the earlier sessions. General Motors, American Smelting, American Can and other high grade dividend paying stocks led the movement to a slightly higher range of prices New Haven, New York Central and Chesapeake & Ohio invited strong buying in the course of their aggressive advances.

Weakness in metal prices, with copper down as low as 12½c a pound, was the outstanding feature of the price structure situation this week. Copper recovered to 12 7-8c at the end of the week, but at that price it is more than a cent a pound below the ruling price of a few months ago Cotton and wheat were fairly steady and textiles firm.

Bradstreet's food index number of February 10 was $3 51, against $3 52 last week and $3.56 for the corresponding week-last year

Bank clearings for the week aggregated $9,428,8-5,000, a loss of 11 9 per cent from last week and a gain of 1 0 per cent over the same week of 1926

Wheat Trade Dull.

CHICAGO, Feb 12.—(I N. S.)—The wheat market made little headway during the week, while a dull, featureless trade ensued The market is 3-8 cents higher to 1 1-8 cents lower for the week Foreign markets continued to display a fairly steady tone in view of the continued large shipments from surplus countries. Speculative trade maintained an expectant attitude, awaiting legislative action on the McNary-Haugen bill

Corn shows a decline of 3-8 to 5-8 cents over a week ago. On dips a better class of buying was noted, but the flurries were not followed. Commercial demand has improved considerably, but the huge stocks are still intact and handicap bullish operations

Oats averaged 5-8 to 7-8 cents lower, despite the bullish statistical news Demand was light

Hog Market Uneven.

CHICAGO, Feb. 12.—(I N S.)—The hog market was uneven and on an unusually erratic basis during the week. Prices early in the week reached the highest point of the season which made the trade topheavy for packers, who later succeded in forcing prices down 40 to 50 cents from Monday's summit. Receipts this week totalled 157,000, compared with 155,000 last week and 174,000 a year ago. The week closed with the best light hogs at $12.10 and the bulk of the underweight class $11,85@12.10.

Beef cattle sold readily during the week at steady to strong prices. Top reached $12.90. Steers of good weight that sold at $11.50 to $12.50 this week are back to the high of the season. Most of the cattle here this week consisted of plainer and medium grades that went at $9.00 to $11.00. Week's receipts totalled 55,000, against 52,000 last week and 55,000 a year ago. Calves held steady to strong all week Packers took the majority at $12.00 to $12 50, and shippers paid $14.00 to $15.00 for the best.

Lambs were active and higher early in the week owing to small receipts, but later supplies increased and forced prices 25 to 50 cents lower for the week. Receipts for the week totalled 87,000, against 90,000 last week and 89,000 a year ago

Cotton Trade Light.

CHICAGO, Feb 12.—(I. N. S.)—Cotton held within narrow limits throughout the week. Trade was light and featureless About mid-week prices advanced to new levels for the movement, only to sag off on profit taking The market closed the week 5 points higher to 4 lower. There was no trading today.

Closing prices: February, 13.80c; March, 13 92c; July, 14 20c; October, 14 43c, December, 14 55c; January, 14.60c.

Taxi Airplanes Cost Less Than Cars In England

EDGWARE, Eng., Feb. 12. — (I N. S.)—A brand new set fleet of luxurious British taxi-planes, incorporating all that has been learned in seven and a half years of commercial flying, and stationed on a "rank" at Stag Lane, Aerodrome, Edgware, is to be a feature of the coming flying season.

Pilots will be constantly on duty. Machines will be ready to dash off, at 100 miles an hour, in any direction, almost at a moment's notice.

The other day, quite as a matter of course, a business man rang up the aerodrome, saying he was coming to the station. On arrival he sprang into a waiting air-taxi, and told the pilot to take him on a 3,000 mile trip across France, Belgium, and Holland, and right to the borders of Russia

In five days, thanks to the speed of his flying taxi, he was able to do business which, he said, would have occupied three weeks had he travelled by boat and train.

The hiring rate for the new four-seater taxi-planes is to be 50 cents per mile. For long distance journeys in England it would be cheaper than hiring a big automobile.

TRIBUTE PAID EMANCIPATOR

Veterans Of Lincoln's Time Gather at Illinois Capital.

Springfield Is Center Of Statewide Memorial Services.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 12.—(U. P.)—Illinois today paid reverence to the memory of Abraham Lincoln on the 118th anniversary of his birth.

Springfield was the hub around which the memorial services swung, and gray haired veterans of the Civil war mingled with state officials and lay citizenry in paying honor to "Honest Abe," as Lincoln will always beremembered in Illinois.

As the crowds assembled at the Lincoln memorial today there were numerous recountings of personal traits and characteristics of the great emancipator. For instance, there was Caius Paddock, 91 years old, who came up here from his home in St. Louis. Paddock witnessed Lincoln's marriage to Mary Todd here in 1842.

Gov. Len Small issued a declaration on Lincoln, pointing out he would never be lost from the public mind, not because he was a great statesman, but because "He gave his life for what he believed to be eternally right."

The archives division of the secretary of state's office made public a letter written by William H. Morris, who was convicted of killing Greston Metzger, a case in which Lincoln first won fame as a lawyer.

In this case Lincoln saved his client, "Duff" Armstrong, from conviction through proving that a witness, Charles Allen, was incorrect in his statement that there was a full moon on the night of the killing. Lincoln did this through aid of an almanac after many hours of questioning.

Morris, in the letter made public today, gave full credit to Lincoln for mastery in cross examination, but claimed he was not guilty as a jury later decided. He was paroled six years after the letter was written.

Meanwhile plans are under way for the complete restoration of Lincoln's home for years—New Salem.

The town has disintegrated into nothing but ruins, but a fund of $50,000 has been raised to restore the town to its original lines. The store where Lincoln worked as a youth, the wheel factory, the carding machine house, the tan yard, the school and other village buildings will be restored.

Even the roads will be made as they were originally and the banks of the Sangamon river—on which Lincoln plied a flatboat—will be made to resemble those of Lincoln's early life.

This work is expected to be completed by next year, at which time a pageant depicting the early years of Lincoln's life—the period of storekeeper, when he wooed Ann Rutledge, early studies in law from a blackstone he bought from a roadside peddler and his first entrance into politics as a member of the state legislature—will be held.

Demands Inquiry.

LISBON, Feb. 12.—(I. N. S.)—The American minister to Portugal has demanded an investigation to establish responsibility for the firing upon foreign legations during the recent revolution.

This step was taken at a conference held by the foreign office with the American, Argentine and Dutch ministers relative to indemnity for damage done to the legations during the fighting.

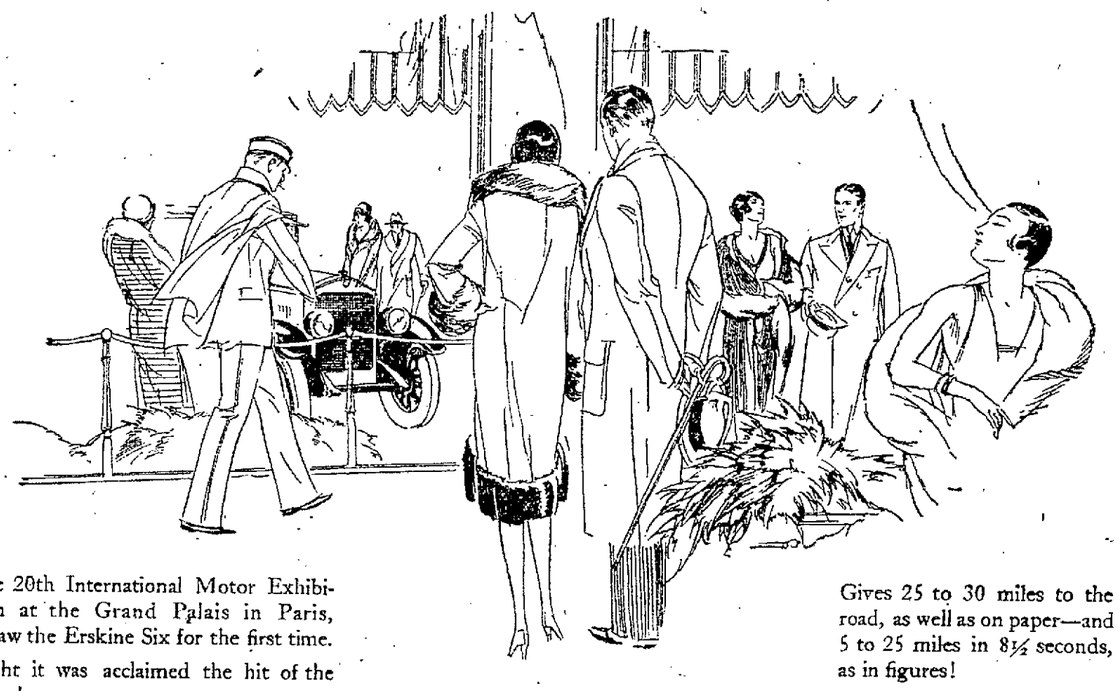

The government has taken drastic steps to fix responsibility for the revolution and in the general round-up 300 civilians have been arrested.

Ridiculous!

Europe Inspired It—Dietrich Designed It Studebaker Built It—Paris Approves It

Now All Lincoln Can See It

AT the 20th International Motor Exhibition at the Grand Palais in Paris, Europe saw the Erskine Six for the first time.

Over night it was acclaimed the hit of the Paris Show!

The press called it the "Clou du Salon!" The man in the street and the man of affairs—designers of cars and designers of the Paris mode—everybody declared the Erskine Six to be the outstanding triumph of the exhibition—excelling Europe in its own type of car. The Parisian triumph was repeated at the Olympia Show in London.

Priced under $1000

People over there want modishness and insist upon upkeep economy. Motorists over here are welcoming both as a new order in car ownership. The Erskine Six was built for both markets, for it sells for less than $1000.

But don't look for any signs of economy in its appearance—because Dietrich designed it!

And don't be afraid that economy has impaired the quality—because Studebaker built it!

The Erskine Six is a newcomer as a car, but it's built and backed by an old-timer in the industry and has been perfected by extreme road tests on Studebaker's million dollar proving ground!

It is only 5 feet 7½ inches in height—yet it affords ample clearance for Madame's chapeau.

Wherever you look at this low-swung, wide-windowed, full-vision steel body, you will find visible evidence of the creative genius which is Dietrich!

Outside, the close-hauled beauty of the Paris mode—and inside, the relaxation and comforts of home!

Easy to Handle

Nimble enough to turn in an 18-foot radius—powerful enough to take an 11% grade without shifting gears—fast enough to skim over the highway at 60 miles per hour—and smart enough to be an ornament as well as an automobile.

THE ERSKINE SIX CUSTOM SEDAN
The Little Aristocrat
$995 f. o. b. factory
Tourer $945 Custom Coupe $995
Business Coupe $945
Prices include bumpers, front and rear

Gives 25 to 30 miles to the gallon—on the road, as well as on paper—and accelerates from 5 to 25 miles in 8½ seconds, in fact, as well as in figures!

Powered with a six-cylinder engine of the L-head type—mounted on semi-elliptic springs with a base equal to 82% of the wheelbase—equipped with four-wheel brakes—upholstered and appointed for big car comfort and convenience in small car space.

The Little Aristocrat

Here, at last, is European beauty and economy, plus American luxury and efficiency—an entente cordiale of the engineering genius of two continents—overtime service at half-time costs!—twice the mileage for half the money!—small car benefits with big car responsibilities!

Presented to America as a new mode in cars.

Acclaimed by Paris as the car of the mode!

If you are interested in small car cost for big car conduct, and big car mileage for small car money, you will certainly make it a point to see America's most radical development and improvement in small car construction—The Erskine Six, "The Little Aristocrat."

MAKE FINAL TESTS IN PAWNEE COUNTY

Area Is Now Accredited As Being Free From Bovine Tuberculosis.

(Special to The Star.)

PAWNEE CITY, Neb., Feb. 12.—Last testing of Pawnee county cattle for tuberculosis infection was made Friday by Dr. E. H. Williams of this city on a herd southeast of here and certification to the state department of Pawnee county as a tuberculosis free area is now being made. The rating of this county is expected to follow immediately as a modified accredited area.

The campaign for eradication began in this county nearly two years ago. The required number of signatures was finally approved by the state authorities and actual work of testing started in the southwestern part of Pawnee county August 23, 1926. Mission Creek, the first precinct tested, was also the precinct turning in the highest percentage of petitioners for the campaign. Only animals bred and fed in Pawnee county were included in the survey, and one of the surprises of the inspection was the total number of cattle registered, which was 27,000. Out of this number only 97 reactors were discovered, and the fact that this number fell below the one-half of 1 per cent allowed for immediate certification of a county as a free area is greeted enthusiastically by Pawnee county farmers.

Benefits of the certification will be realized in a 10 per cent bonus a hundred weight by hog shippers, to whom packers pay the premium on shipments from accredited free territory.

Veterinarians who conducted the tests in Pawnee county were Dr. Neill Plank, supervisor of the county; and Drs. E. H. Williams, Pawnee City; H. R. Tice, Summerfield; F. O. Slagle, Lewiston; W. H. Frakes, Falls City and R. E. Patterson, Beatrice.

SINKING OF LAND DISCLOSES STREAM

Acre Tract In Antelope County Drops Distance Of Thirty Feet.

(Special to The Star.)

NELIGH, Neb., Feb. 12.—Considerable excitement was manifest in this city and vicinity when it was reported that a big landslide had taken place about five miles south of Neligh, on what is known as the W. A. Elwood farm.

Since the settling of this portion of the earth there has developed a spring that is flowing a stream nearly six inches in size.

STOCK SUCCUMBS TO STALK POISON

Large Numbers Of Cattle And Horses Die In Northeast Nebraska

Special to the Star.)

HARTINGTON, Neb., Feb. 12.—The epidemic of the corn stalk disease, which has been raging in the northern part of Nebraska for the last two months, continues to challenge the skill of veterinarians and although many theories have been advanced as to the cause of the disease, little progress appears to have been made in combating the epidemic and many valuable horses and cattle have fallen victims to its ravages.

In Cedar county, especially in the northern part, farmers have lost thousands of dollars worth of stock as a result of the disease. Almost everywhere one goes throughout this part of the county horses and cattle that have succumbed to the disease can be seen lying in the fields waiting for burial.

FARM LAND SALE.

(Special to The Star.)

COLERIDGE, Neb., Feb. 12.—The J. P. Dendinger farm of 80 acres, three miles northeast of here, was sold to Jacob Asal of Belden for $12,000, or $150 an acre. As improvements on the farm are just fair, this is considered a good price for the land.

AUSTRIAN JUDGES BEMOAN SALARIES

VIENNA, Feb. 12.—(I. N. S.)—Judges in Vienna have made a serious protest against the conditions under which they have to work.

At a meeting just held of the judges and public prosecutors it was stated that political headquarters tried to exercise pressure on the judges, for which the Ministry of Justice was held responsible.

Austrian justice, it was stated, was no longer held in such estimation as in the past. From the material point of view also, the judges were declared to have been treated very badly. They belong, it was said, to the hardest working officials of the state, and after twenty years service their monthly income sums up to only from fifty to sixty dollars. In the country districts the judges are even worse off. They must not make any extra income and their hours of work are practically unlimited. If they have to keep a family it amounts to a state of things bordering on starvation.

COUNTERFEITING DEVICE JUNKED

BUDAPEST, Feb. 12.—(I. N. S.)—The engraving machine which printed the millions of forged francs for Prince Windischgraetz and the other convicted Hungarians, has been sent to the junk heap. The machine was used as evidence in court and then broken up. It has now been sold as scrap iron by the government for ten dollars.

The machine was found by the police on the premises of a local printing firm to whom the forgers sold it. The firm claimed the ten dollars which has been given to them.

GERMANY'S BIRTH RATE DECREASING

BERLIN, Feb. 12.—(I. N. S.)—Germany's birth rate is steadily sinking. It has now reached a quota as low as that of France, with the only difference that this quota was already reached by France twenty years ago.

As an average, there are only 150 births to one thousand women. The steady sinking of the death rate of babies cannot make up for the ever sinking births. Death rate of babies has sunk from 17 per cent in 1909 to about ten per cent in 1925.

Scientists and economists agree that the low birth rate is chiefly due to the economic plight prevailing among the middle and lower classes, as well as the lack of house building activity.

DURING PAST 30 YEARS SCIENCE ADVANCED MOST

PASADENA, Cal., Feb. 12.—(I. N. S.)—The last thirty years have been the most remarkable years in the history of science, according to Dr. Robert A. Millikan, president of the California Institute of Technology and one of the world's greatest scientists.

Changes in fundamental conceptions of the physical world which have taken place during the thirty year period just ended, Dr. Millikan declared, are greater than those which have taken place in any preceding epoch of ten times the length.

These developments are reflected in most phases of modern life, Dr. Millikan said, and he cited the following distinctive discoveries of the period under survey:

The X-ray;

The electronic constitution of matter;

Radio activity;

The inter-relation of mass and energy;

The light-dart properties of radiation;

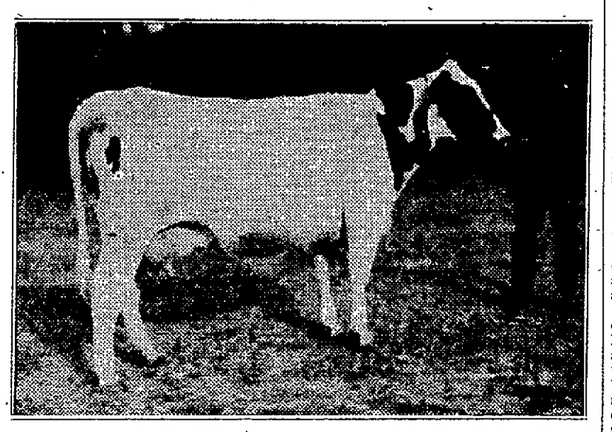

The reciprocal relations between frequencies of ether waves and the energy of electrons within the atom;

Discovery that the atom has the capacity of transferring any decrease in its energy, into an emitted monochromatic wave, and Discovery that the foundations of mechanics itself are incorrect as applied to sufficiently small scale phenomena.

When asked for his forecast as to the future Dr. Millikan said that science never moves backward, but always forward in ever expanding circles and that it is entirely possible that undreamed of discoveries may be made within the next thirty year period.

Cow Owned by University of Nebraska Sets New Record in Junior Four-Year-Old Class

N P Hengerveld Clothilde Topsy, cow owned by the University and kept at the North Platte substation, has set a new production record in her class,

N P Hengerveld Clothilde Topsy, a Holstein-Friesian heifer, No. 707,-103, bred and owned by the University of Nebraska, North Platte substation, has recently finished a 365 day record which makes her the Nebraska champion butter producer in the junior 4-year-old clas.

On semi-official 365 day test, she is credited with 24,016.5 pounds of milk containing 851.36 pounds of fat. Computed on the 80 per cent basis, this is equivalent to 1,064.2 pounds of butter. She takes the junior 4-year-old championship from Varsity Derby Gelta, whose 365 day record is 24,227 pounds of milk, 843.84 pounds of fat or 1,054.75 pounds of butter.

N P Hengerveld Clothilde Topsy freshened first as a senior yearling, but was not officially tested. Freshening again at the age of three years and one month, she produced on official test in 7 consecutive days, 482.6 pounds of milk and 24.17 pounds of butter. Continuing on semi-official test, she produced in 365 days, 21,714.3 pounds of milk and 935.43 pounds of butter.

Her third lactation period in which she won the 365 day state butter record for her age class was begun at the age of four years and four months. At the beginning of this period, she produced on official test in 7 consecutive days 599.1 pounds of milk and 30.75 pounds of butter. The average fat content of her milk for this period was 4.11 per cent.

N P Hengerveld Clothilde Topsy comes from two lines of high producers. She is a daughter of G & B Clothilde Topsy Lyons, one of the worthy foundation cows of the North Platte substation herd. Old Topsy is now 15 years old, has produced ten calves and is still strong and vigorous. She has not been on official long time test, but has some very good short time records to her credit. As a senior two-year-old, she produced on official test in 7 consecutive days, 19.96 pounds of butter. Again as a senior three-year-old she produced in 7 days, 27 pounds of butter, and in 30 days, 2,393.2 pounds of milk and 108.69 pounds of butter. This gave her the Nebraska State 30 day record of that class, which was not exceeded for nine years.

Old Topsy has two other daughters in the North Platte substation herd. These are Clothilde Topsy King and NP Topsy Piebe. The former has won honors as a show cow and has to her credit, records of 32 pounds of butter in 7 days, and 1,017 pounds of butter in 365 days. The latter has a senior two-year-old record of 25.36 pounds of butter in 7 days, 107.72 pounds of butter in 30 days and 800.1 pounds of butter in 365 days.

N P Hengerveld Clothilde Topsy was sired by Varsity Derby Matador, No. 234809, the bull sold by the North Platte substation to the U. S. department of agriculture dairy division and now in use at Beltsville, Md. Matador has eleven daughters in the substation herd. Four of these have records exceeding 30 pounds of butter in 7 days, all made in heifer form. The eleven daughters, consisting of five 2-year-olds, two 3-year-olds, and four 4-year-olds have 365 day semi-of-pounds of butter.

ALLIANCE VOTES ON SEWER BONDS

(Special to The Star.)

ALLIANCE, Neb., Feb. 12.—Members of the Alliance city council at their meeting last evening authorized City Attorney Romig to draw up a resolution for bringing to a vote at the city election next April a $10,000 bond issue for the construction of additional storm sewers. This move was actuated by considerable paving talk recently. Councilmen believe it advisable to precede the paving with storm sewers.

STATE G. A. R. AGAINST PLAN OF DISBANDING

State Adjutant Harmon Bross has issued the following statement regarding the proposal to disband the G. A. R. in 1928:

1—The unanimous sentiment at the late encampment at Des Moines was against any effort at present to disband the G. A. R. The same reasons that called for the organization of the G. A. R. in 1866, prevail today in, namely, "to preserve and strengthen those kind and fraternal feelings which bind together the soldiers, sailors and marines who united to suppress the late rebellion, and to perpetuate the memory and history of the dead. To assist such former comrades in arms as need help."

"The attendance at our national encampments now shows practically the same ability to manage the affairs of the order as prevailed ten years ago. The close contest between two distinguished comrades for the position of commander-in-chief at the last meeting shows how eager the rank and file is for strong leadership.

"The effort to secure from the present congress suitable pension legislation for the worthy widows of dead comrades was led by the legislative committee of the G. A. R. We in Nebraska are especially interested in this measure because in our cities and towns there are so many needy widows of these G. A. R. comrades who are now aided as a matter of charity by the counties in which they live. The United States is abundantly able to redeem its pledges of care for the widows of these men who saved the country from dissolution and the flag from disgrace.

"2—So far as Nebraska is concerned, there is no reason to ask for dissolution of the national encampment because with its dissolution the state department and all G. A. R. posts in the state die with the national body. At the late national encampment, Nebraska has been represented by its full voting strength, and there will be plenty of candidates ready to go to the encampment in September at Dayton.

"The department of Nebraska is one of the state departments with a small appropriation each biennium to take care of its work, and among the trusts committed to it is the large collection of civil war relics provided by the state at large expense.

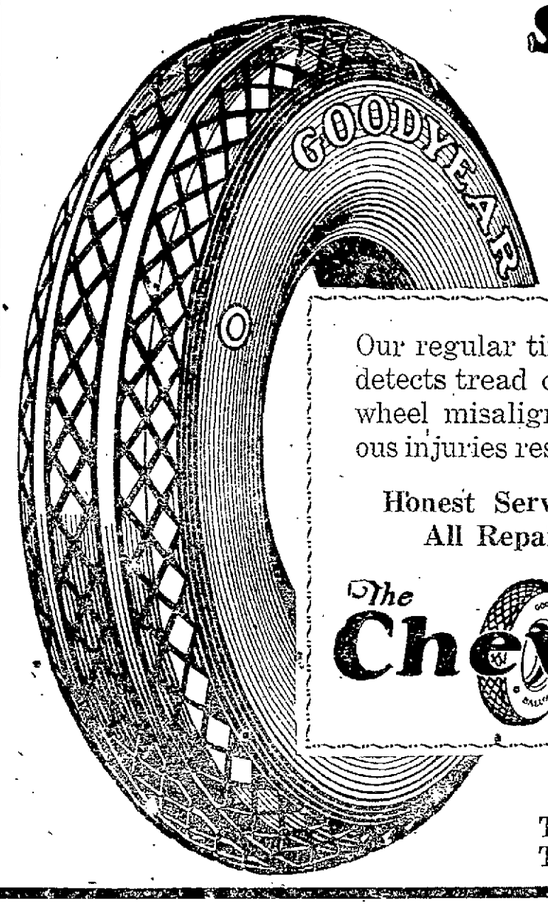

"The G. A. R. has always entered enthusiastically into all propositions for reunions, as at Vicksburg and Gettysburg, but to surrender their work and get out of existence is an entirely different proposition. The almost universal sentiment at Des Moines last September was that the G. A. R. should continue at least ten years."

Outstandingly the greatest tire Goodyear ever made

Coming from a company the size and character of Goodyear, the statement which heads this advertisement is doubly significant.

It is issued only after testing its complete truth and weighing its full meaning in terms of the highest public interest.

This is the greatest tire Goodyear has ever made!

By the resources and skill devoted to its manufacture, by the experience, research and authority represented in its advanced design, we believe we may properly say also it is the greatest tire the world has so far seen.

The first big advantage of this great tire is traction. Safe, surefooted, skidless, the sharp-edged diamond-shaped blocks in the tread's center seize, grip and hang-on.

The second big advantage is long slow even tread wear, as opposed to the "cupping" and "pot holes" until now characteristic of wear in balloons.

The third big advantage is freedom from structural failure and similar troubles, such as casing rupture and shoulder breaks.

These major benefits proceed from the new-type semi-flat tread with its heavily ribbed All-Weather pattern, and from the amazingly durable and elastic SUPERTWIST cords of which the casing is made.

Not only is the tread on this new tire the survivor from eighty separate and individual designs tested under harshest service, but the tire as a whole is heir to all the lessons learned in operating the Goodyear tire-testing fleet last year a total of 5,400,000 tire-miles.

In every particular, therefore, this new-type All-Weather Tread Goodyear is the true exemplar of the most progressive tire company in the world:

—the company which has never been halted in its onward sweep to leadership and which in recent years has steadily increased its pace

—which has made and placed into service nearly 100,000,000 tires, millions more than any other maker

—which alone uses nearly one-seventh of all the crude rubber produced annually on the earth, almost 50% more than any other manufacturer

—which every year for the last ten years has made and sold more tires than any other company in the world —which since the post-war deflation period has stepped up the productivity of its man-power something more than 100%

—which focuses on development, chemical research and service work the largest engineering body of its kind

—which operates its own cotton plantation, textile mills, rubber plantation, coal mines, factories and branches, to the end of delivering the tire-user the greatest possible value for his dollar.

These facts and others like them explain why it is supremely meaningful to say the new All-Weather Tread Goodyear Balloon is the greatest tire Goodyear has ever made.

It is outstandingly the newest, tested reason why more people ride on Goodyear Tires than on any other kind!

Raise Lincoln Quota.—The Lincoln scout council Saturday night had pledged its quota of the $6,000 given Nebraska to raise for increasing scouting in the state. No other city has yet pledged its quota, according to Regional Chairman McKelvie, before leaving for the east for a conference with national officials of the organization. The amount pledged by the Lincoln council was $2,500, and it was underwritten within a few minutes after Chairman McKelvie had explained what the regional office hoped to do during the next two years. He was speaking at a luncheon at the chamber of commerce. It is hoped by the regional office to place scouting in this district on a par with the others, Mr. McKelvie said, adding "we are far behind the rest and something must be done." The money to be raised by the council will be used in the immediate vicinity of Lincoln, in an effort to built more troops. Contributions to this fund will have no bearing on the community chest pledges.

Obituary

FRANCES HENDERSON CONE

She was born April 15, 1867 at Cedar Rapids, Ia., the daughter of the Rev. Stephen H. Henderson and Mrs. Elizabeth Henderson. She came with the family to Lincoln in 1873, where her father was called to the pastorate of the St. Paul Methodist church. She was a graduate of Doane college and was married to Charles G. Cone in 1886 at Crete where Mr. Cone was in the lumber business.

In 1896 the family moved to Lincoln. Mrs. Cone was active in church and musical organizations. She was a member of Trinity Methodist church and was a soloist with rare charm and sweetness. At one time she was secretary of the Matinee Musicale and took an active part in the programs. She was a leader in founding the Warren Methodist church in University Place and organized and directed the first choir in the new church. Mrs. Cone's life was devoted to unselfish service in every community where she lived and her interest in young people endeared her in the hearts of many. She was a wonderful wife and mother and her home was always open to the friends of her children.

Since 1918 she had lived at Long Beach, Calif., with her invalid husband. In January of this year after caring for her husband who was ill with influenza she contracted pneumonia and after a six-day illness passed away on January 26. Surviving her is her husband, of Long Beach; two sons, Howard H. of Elsinore, Calif., and Charles G., jr. of Omaha, and a daughter, Mrs. Earl R. Middlekauff of Lincoln. Also seven grandchildren and one sister, Mrs. W. A. Harrison of York and a brother, Stephen H. Henderson of Seattle, Wash. Funeral services were held at Long Beach, Calif., on Saturday, Jan. 29, 1927, and the body was interred there.

CITY HOST TO 5 CONVENTIONS

Many Organizations to Hold Annual Meetings Here This Week.

Five conventions are scheduled for Lincoln this week between Tuesday and Saturday.

The Nebraska Brotherhood of Threshmen and the Nebraska Association of Telephone Managers open meetings Tuesday morning that will continue through Thursday. Both gatherings will be at the Lincoln hotel and there will probably be at least 300 at each.

The Nebraska Lumbermen's association comes Wednesday for three days and the Knot Hole club will be here at the same time. On Thursday the Nebraska Press association will begin sessions. The editors will also be here three days, closing their meetings Saturday morning. The Press association is composed of editors and owners of weekly newspapers of the state, and it is estimated that there will be upwards of a thousand at the meetings.

Thursday evening the chamber of commerce will be host to the ladies attending the lumbermen's gathering. They will be taken to the museum at the university, the stadium and for a visit to the new capitol or other places they may wish to visit. At noon they will be luncheon guests at the chamber and then taken to a theater party in the afternoon.

Thursday evening a group from the junior division of the chamber of commerce will provide the entertainment at the banquet of the Nebraska Press association. Members of the association will be "shown at their best" in a series of gridiron stunts.

SHORT SESSION IS IMPOSSIBLE

Hundreds of Bills to Consider and Half of Time Now Gone.

Members of the legislature who came to Lincoln a month and a half ago with a very laudable New Year's resolution firmly fixed in their minds to make this session a snappy and business like one, were beginning to feel as this last week drew to a close that resolution was going a glimmering after the fashion of most of them that are adopt-prior to the first of January.

They were beginning to tell each other that there would be no adjournment on or before the first of April. In fact they were wondering how long after the middle of that month it would be, and the record of the work accomplished or rather unaccomplished up to date would seem to be reason enough for their fears.

Two years ago the legislature brought the 1925 session to a close on April 1, the house closing its work on the sixty-fifth day of the session. The senate was a day or two under that record as usual.

Last Friday was the twenty-eighth legislative day for the house and the twenty-seventh day for the senate. That means that in comparison with the 1925 session, this session lacks only nine days of being half over.

Then when the members take a side glance at the 942 bills before it, of which only slightly more than a hundred have been disposed of, the job ahead looms up like an elephant in a garage bungalow. The 1925 session had only 729 bills to demand its attention. Those extra 213 bills this year tell the fate of another New Year's resolution that was given considerable airing about six weeks ago.

The actual amount of work ahead seems to be realized only by a few of the older members. The others are getting their "sea legs," one might say, and tuning their voices up to the proper carrying pitch.

Indulge In Oratory.

The senate especially is inclined to take things easy. That body has held two or three sessions thus far that have lasted more than an hour, but each of them has been devoted to long-winded oratory, and witty and personal remarks regarding the relative intelligence, integrity and ability of lawyers and farmers. The senators have been content to sit by to see what the house intended to do with certain bills that are before both branches, thus lightening their own work. Up to Friday they had passed only four bills and half of those were the legislative appropriation bills which couldn't be stopped by anything short of a vesuvius. About a dozen bills had been placed on general file. Most of those were advanced to third reading before adjournment Friday and the general file was cleared. A few more than that had met death on the recommendation of the standing committees.

The house record was better, fifteen bills having been passed and fifty-five had been taken up in the committee of the whole and advanced to third reading. The final passage has been delayed by the failure of the house to decide on whether it would hire an attorney to give its bills a final checking over before passage. Now that this has been taken care of, the third reading file will probably be cleared early next week.

Nine bills were on general file when adjournment was taken Friday, and those will be up for overhauling in the committee of the whole Monday.

The house has been showing speed in wielding the axe, however, and 94 measures have been marked "indefinitely postponed" or have been withdrawn. Forty highway bills may meet the same fate at a single stroke if the house approves of a blanket bill that has been placed before it.

Two years ago the thirty-second legislative day found 161 bills permanently disposed of by means of the death blow, sixty-six had been passed, and some fourteen or fifteen had been withdrawn.

But the wheels will start moving Monday, at least a bit more rapidly, if the grumblings of some of the members are any indication of an awakening.

MAN FALLS FROM LADDER; SUSTAINS A FRACTURED LEG

Frank French, 1025 Harrison street, sustained a broken leg Saturday afternoon when he fell from a ladder while attending an auction sale at 621 North Sixteenth street.

French was in a haymow at the place and started to descend the ladder when it broke. In the fall his left leg was fructured just above the ankle. French was taken to the Lincoln General hospital in Krobien, Goldstein & Umberger's ambulance, and attended by Dr. H. Winnett Orr.

GENERAL HOSPITAL LIBRARY GROWING

Nearly 2,000 Volumes Already Included and More Are Needed.

The Winnett Memorial library at Lincoln General hospital has made a remarkable growth during the past year. The library is developing along three lines: First, the entertainment and recreation of patients; second, for the nurses' training school, and, third, as a reference library for the staff. There are now nearly 2,000 volumes in the library. The professional reference library has received several additions recently.

The Misses Wilson of Lincoln have donated about 200 volumes from the libraries of their father and grandfather, both medical practitioners. About eighty volumes of the Journal of American Medical Sciences and of the Medical Record were received as ac gift from the Academy of Medicine of New York City. During the past few days Dr. A. B. Anderson of Pawnee has sent twenty-five bound volumes of the Journal of the American Medical association. The members of the staff have contributed more than $100, most of which has been spent for binding medical periodicals.

The library is desirous of receiving odd volumes of standard medical and scientific periodicals in order to complete sets. Physicians and surgeons throughout the state who have odd volumes that they do not care to preserve are urged to write to the library in regard to them. Packing and transportation charges will be paid by the library for any volumes needed.

"... because the Oakland Six is built to a degree of precision previously unknown in cars of its price"

You need not make any extended comparisons to understand why the Greater Oakland Six is so emphatically preferred by those who demand of their cars not only satisfying beauty and performance but also unusually long life and reliability.

The answer lies in the fundamental principle of Oakland construction—because the Oakland Six is built to a degree of precision previously unknown in cars of its price!

True, Oakland provides unexampled beauty and style by the use of superior Fisher bodies; and an extraordinary agility, smoothness and silence by employing such advanced engineering features as the exclusive Rubber-Silenced Chassis and the Harmonic Balancer.

$1095 SEDAN

But by working to limits that once typified the hand-built car, by following such extraordinary practices as diamond boring all piston pin bushings and balancing all rotating parts from transmission to rear axle—

—Oakland achieves a resistance to wear, tear and road shock that actually borders on the unbelievable!

You need only to talk to veteran Oakland owners—or observe veteran Oakland Sixes in action—to understand why the trend of fine car buying continues to swing so strongly toward the Greater Oakland Six.

BACK TEACHER TENURE BILL

Measure for State License Plate Factory Scheduled for Hearing.

Nebraska schoolmasters and schoolma'ams will swoop down upon the legislature this week for the purpose of persuading it to pass the teacher tenure bill, backed by the state educational association. The house committee on education is to conduct a hearing upon it Tuesday evening in the house chamber, at which time it is expected there will be a big delegation of superintendents and teachers on hand.

Supt. E. L. Rouse of the city schools at Scottsbluff is already on the ground canvassing for support of the measure. Secretary E. M. Hosman of the state teachers' association has been doing active work along the same line since the bill was introduced.

State Auto Plate Factory.

The finance committee of the house will take up early in the week H. R. 83, appropriating $25,000 to establish a state-owned factory for the manufacture of automobile number plates, either at the penitentiary or at the men's reformatory. Supt. Gus Miller of the latter institution will appear before the committee advocating such an enterprise.

Mr. Miller will point out that the various counties or Nebraska paid $50,000 for this year's supply of registration plates, and $59,000 for those used in 1926. These were made in St. Louis. He will suggest that the money be kept at home by making them in one of the penal institutions. The industry would not come into competition with any private plant located in this state, says Miller. If one started here, it could also turn out novelty plates to be used on cars.

Russell Bills May Go Over.

Representative Russell will ask the house to postpone consideration of his four auto regulation bills, set as a special order for Tuesday morning, until he can place literature on the members' desks to explain their provisions in brief. This series of measures provides for keeping records by which stolen cars may be traced, requiring all drivers to be licensed and to carry insurance unless they can prove themselves financially responsible, and other features intended to make the highways more safe.

Bread Bill Hearing.

The house committee on manufactures and commerce will listen Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock to bakers and others interested in the standard loaf bread bill, H. R. 200.

Chinese Are 'Killed' When a Blank Fired

PEKIN, Feb. 12.—(I. N. S.)—The serious anti-foreign outbursts in China have not been without their humor. During the British evacuation of Kiukiang, a British warship fired a blank shot by way of warning to mobs which were running loose.

Within an hour Chinese agitators produced two dead and three wounded Chinese, claiming them to have been the victims of the shot fired by the British warship. The fact that the wounds of the victims were from rifle shots failed to stop the agitators from displaying their "exhibits."

Treasurer's Salary $3,000, Not $2,500

An erroneous statement published by The Star in an article discussing salaries paid to Lancaster county officials mentioned the treasurer as receiving $2,500 a year. This was what that officer drew up to a few years ago, but the salary is now $3,000. The county judge receives $3,500, as mentioned in this article. Several bills are pending in the legislature to increase salaries, but one or two have already been killed.

GORDON TAKES KNIGHT AGENCY

Well-Known Automobile Man Takes Over Branch At Denver.

Has Had Important Part In Development Of Auto Industry.

John H. Gordon, for eleven years one of the most prominent international figures in the motor car industry, has taken over the retail division of the Willys-Overland branch organization of Denver and will operate his new business under the name of John Gordon, Inc.

This is the largest deal of the year in Denver motor car circles and one of the most dealerships ever consummated in the automobile industry in Colorado. Administration of the business under the new head started February 1, the organization being in control of all retail operations in Denver and surroundig territory.

Mr. Gordo started in the automobile industry in 1911 with the Hibbard Engineering Co., going from that connection to the King Motor Car Co., and thence to the Dodge Brothers company, where he was sixth of the eleven district managers, covering the southeastern states with headquarters in Atlanta, Georgia.

In 1919 he went to Europe to conduct a post-war investigation of the distribution of Dodge Bros. cars and parts which had been used in the government service. Later he was assigned to London with supervision of Dodge Bros. dealers in England, the Scandinavian countries ad continental Europe.

With this work completed he returned to Detroit as director of distribution and disrticts. He resigned a short time ago.

Commenting on his new company, Mr. Gordon said: "I was attracted to the Willys-Overland line after a complete surevy of the entire industry by the complete coverage afforded by the four models and by the advanced engineering features which are present in each of these four models.

"My stay in Europe gave me full opoprtunity to view American and European engineering methods. I have sensed the trend in this country ad I believe the Whippet and Willys-Knight models are more completely internationalized in design than any other cars in the field at the present time.

"The Whippet, with its four-wheel brakes and its highly powerful motor is outstanding for real value and is ahead of anything in this country or in Europe.

"The Whippet six is the first of the light sixes to incorporate the best features of both American and European design and has a performance value which I believe is without equal in its class.

"The Willys-Knight '70' has recently been described by John Prioleau, best known English motor authority, in the Illtustrated London News, as 'the one outstanding American built car which gives better performance than any other car of its size, regardless of its origin.'

"With these facts back of the product of a company organized in the strong manner of Willys-Overland, I feel that the opportunity is the best in the industry."

The acquisition of Mr. Gordon by Willys-Overland is in line with the important dealer connections which have been made in the past few months.

In the past five months Willys-Overland has added 700 dealers to their already large group, which gives them the second largest dealer organiztaion in the country.

HUP IMPROVING ITS NEW EIGHT

Car Being Made Even Finer and Demonstrating Its Ability.

With enhanced beauty, notable engineering improvements, silence of speed and ease of control, Hupmobile is speeding up the momentous buying change which it inaugurated.

Two years ago with the coming of the Hupmobile eight, an elert public quickly sensed the fact that here was an Eight of sound simplicity, officials say.

But Hupmobile engineers went on improving, refining and adding to the perfection already wrought with the straight eight principle.

When Hupmobile Eight quickly became the largest selling Eight in the world, it was only motor car history repeating itself.

Years ago the four soon replaced the one and two cylinder types only to give way, except in the very low price ranges, to the advancing six. So the Hupmobile eight advanced.

You will find yourself asking, where else on earth you could find such super smoothness, such surpassing ease ,such a wealth of power, with such a finished manner of turning it all in to performance with speeds of fifty to fifty-five miles and better, hour after hour, Hupmobile dealers claim.

Camera an Accident Checker.

Motorists should carry a camera wherever possible. One use of the camera is to photograph results of accidents. Photographic evidence is very rarely disputed and often proves helpful in establishing an otherwise stubborn case.

COULD SAVE ON CAR INSURANCE

If Owners Would Be Careful to Take Ordinary Care Against Theft.

A huge yearly saving in automobile insurance rates can be effected by automobile owners if they will heed the warning of insurance companies which appears in unmistakable terms in the 1927 auto rate - manual. Two significant changes are found; an increase in the theft insurance rates and elimination of credit for approved locking devices. The Western Auto Underwriters' conference states through its secretary-manager that the new manual will go into effect February 14. It is entirely up to the automobile owner as to whether or not these new and drastic rules will prevail in 1928, since it is the own rather than the insurance company who sets the rates.

Locks are almost useless against the professional thief, who, like a safe-cracker, operates when he is sure that he will not be disturbed for several hours. He can steal any car ever built if given enough time. However, statistics show that a large majority of automobile thefts are committed by non-professional thieves of the joy-rider type, who almost invariably select the car which is easiest to drive away with the minimum loss of time. Such thieves are interested inly in gaining free transportation for a few hours, after which they usually abandon the car. They often wait in front of a large building for an unwary driver, whom they see leave his car without locking it. It is at this time that the theft is committed.

This type of thief will not as a general rule bother with locked cars, since the time element is all-important. He waits for an opportunity to steal an unlocked car, and is away in a flash as soon as the owner has turned his back.

It is to prevent just such losses as this that automobile companies build locks into their cars. Yet large numbers of car owners are in the habit of leaving the car unlocked while away for a few minutes, and it is on such occasions that the theft is most likely to occur. This carelessness is costing the American motorist enormous sums yearly in unnecessarily high insurance rates.

It is not alone the loss of the car or the damage it might suffer before being eventually recovered which keep the rates sky-high. Many an owner has forced his fellow drivers to pay a repair bill on his car by claiming damages from theft which he is himself responsible for. This is all included in the cost of insurance. Then to these expenses must be added the extra cost incurred in investigating a larger number of adjustments, all of which must be included in the rates.

The small effort necessary to lock the car when leaving it even for a few minutes would be repaid many times if automobile owners would observe this precaution.

There is the chance that the treatment which the car receives at the hands of a thief will leave it permanently crippled to the extent that no repairs short of a complete rebuilding will make it right.

Many automobile companies, Buick among them, take extra precautions to aid in the recovery of stolen cars by an intricate system of serial numbers, some of which are secret. Through them Buick has been able to recover many lost cars and bring about the arrest of the thief. But the owner of the thief. But the owner of the stolen car is bound to suffer some loss. No matter how much he pays for insurance, the automobile owner will continue to take these losses as long as he neglects to take ordinary precautions against the theft.

FAST TRIP ON ICY HIGHWAY

Chrysler Makes 109 Miles In 109 Minutes From Cheyenne to Denver.

What is believed to constitute a new record for winter driving over rough, icy roads in the mountain states was recently established by a Chrysler Imperial "80" phaeton in a night trip which covered 109 miles of treacherous going in exactly 109 minutes.

The route on by this stock Chrysler car between Cheyenne, Wyoming, and Denver, Colorado, was over highways on which ice and snow with plenty of mud thrown in made the trip hazardous, yet mile after mile was clicked off at the rate of considerably more than a mile a minute. In fact, mile after mile was covered at speeds of 75, 76, 77 and even up to 82 miles per hour.

The time established by the Chrysler Imperial "80," in addition to setting a new motor car record between the two cities, clipped 71 minutes from the scheduled time of the fastest express train between these two points.

The Imperial "80" phaeton was the same Chrysler that last summer established a new record for cross country driving for 500 miles or more by a standard stock car, when it covered the 702 miles between Kansas City and Denver in the phenomenally short space of 13 hours and 56 minutes Previous to the Cheye ne-Denver mark, this Chrysler car had more than 30,000 miles of service registered on the speedometer.

MOTORS AND THEIR CARE

Quick Way to Dry Brake Linings.

When brake linings get wet, their efficiency diminishes and it invariably happens when brakes are most needed, on wet and slippery roads. They can be "burned" dry by running for a short distance with the brakes set.

A Law Worth Remembering.

"The operator of any motor vehicle overtaking another vehicle shall pass such vehicle on the left, but shall not attempt to pass any such vehicle at intersecting highways or at the crossing of any railroad tracks at grade."

Use Two Mirrors.

In addition to the rear-view mirror, many car owners now are using an additional mirror to give a side view. The purpose of this is to show up the car that is just in the act of passing. It can not be seen in the rear-view mirror.

Find the Heater Leak.

Any leak in the exhaust heater, or in the flexible piping used to connect it with the exhaust, can be found by looking for parts that are carbonized. Wherever there is a place for the gases to escape carbon escapes, too, blackening the metal around it.

Keep Oil from Squealy Brakes.

The use of a lubricant is not advised to take the squeal out of the brakes. Sometimes dry powdered graphite, which will not collect dirt, is applied, but even this is only a makeshift. Application of an oily or greasy lubricant is dangerous. It often leads to violent seizing of the brakes, causing uncomfortable driving and perhaps serious damage to the car. Sheared rivets might result. Gears might be stripped, and even a broken axle might be the disaster.

Keep Tires Clean.

The cleaning of a car is not fully completed if the tires are neglected. They will wear better if washed up and given a shine once in a while. Also, they will add a decided improvement to the appearance of the car. It takes but a few minutes, a brush and some water to do the job. And while laundering the car it would be wise to scrub the garage floor carefully, especially if it happens to be greasy or oily. Oil and grease damage tires and if the garage floor is covered with hem quite serious damage will result to the tires.

Chains a Necessity in Wet Weather.

Chains should be placed on wheels when rain or snow begins to fall. The most dangerous period is just after the first precipitation. There is usually more or less grease on the streets, and until it has rained or snowed long enough to wash it off there is danger of skidding. When the tires are worn treadless the car is practically certain to skid if the brakes are applied suddenly. With good treads the danger is somewhat minimized, but chains should always be carried and put on immediately if the pavements are at all slippery. Properly fitting chains should be carried for both of the rear wheels. One chain is worse than none at all.

Dragon's Breath of Modern Times.

No matter how cold the day, never start the engine in a closed garage. See that the doors and windows are flung wide open. Similarly, always allow enough air in the car to guord against the possibility of a defective exhaust. There is always danger from carbon monoxide fumes, a deadly compound that is the "dragon's breath" of modern times. It is given off by all gasoline engines. The point of fatal saturation is 15 parts of carbon monoxide to 10,000 part of air. Therefore, it is inviting death to start an engine going in a closed garage and almost equally dangerous to drive in an absolutely closed car. In the latter case, a leaking exhaust may allow enough diffusion of the death-dealing gas to cause unpleasant or even fatal effects.

When descending grades, keep the car in the same gear as used in ascending them.

The rattle of windshield glass can be stopped by filling the space in the frame with shellac. This can be applied with a sharp-pointed stick, or a brush, and should be palied slowly so that it will pack tightly in the opening.

The only satisfactory way to remove dust on the hood is to allow water to flow on the surface. Never wipe off with a cloth, as this only grinds the grit into the polish and soon ruins the finish. A light dust brush of fine hair, or a wool duster may be used.

120 Miles on Two Gallons of Gas

AUTOS START INSTANTLY IN ZERO WEATHER

Omaha, Neb.,—An astounding new invention now makes it possible for autos to run 120 miles on two gallons of gas. Besides the miraculous gasoline mileage, this new discovery, called Quickstart, starts the coldest motor instantly in zero weather. It also removes and prevents carbon, eliminates spark plug troubles, saves oil and repairs and lengthens life of motor. Many users report 40 to 60 miles on one gallon of gas besides unfailing instant starting of motor. The inventor wants agents and guarantees traveling expenses and liberal drawing account to exclusive distributors. Chance to make $50.00 to $400.00 a week guaranteed. While attending the National Automobile show at Chicago one could not help being impressed with the great reduction of exhibitors. Only a few years ago there were above 300 while this year there were less than fifty.

The coach work of today on medium priced chassis is equal in beauty and refinement to the wonderful custom creations of past years. While the creators of custom coach work of today use so many foreign words and phrases in describing their beauty, that they can be appreciated only by seeing the marvelous dimensions, fabrics and hardware .

One of the most striking creations was a petit sedan landaulet for four, mounted on Hupmobile eight chassis. Front and rear seats were partitioned with cushioned arm rest. Upholstery was blonde broadcloth with fine black stripes, spaced an inch, trimmed lavishly with beige broadlace. All interior hardware was sanded bronze.

7-Bearing Crankshaft; Impulse Neutralizer; Oil-filter; Air-cleaner; 4-Wheel Hydraulic Brakes; Full Pressure Lubrication; Manifold Heat Control; Levelizers, front and rear—

These, with many other features that cannot be imitated, have been embodied in the Chrysler "60" ever since its introduction.

These typical features of the Chrysler "60" were harmonized into the car's original engineering design—and are thus uniquely Chrysler—insuring that flashing speed of 60 miles and more per hour, enviable acceleration of 5 to 25 miles in 7¾ seconds, with the almost magical handling and operating ease that are typical of every Chrysler and endure throughout its long life.

It is for this fundamental reason that the Chrysler "60" has been accorded a public preference that has contributed substantially to Chrysler's dramatic rise from 27th to 4th place.

Huskers Take Revenge On Kansas Aggie Court

Nebraska Wins In Whirlwind Finish

Cornhuskers Come Up From Behind and Turn Back Kansas Aggie Cagers By Margin of 26 to 24.

BY MAYNARD BROWN.

MANHATTAN, Kans., Feb. 12.—The Nebraska Cornhusker basketball team took the lead at the right moment tonight and, after trailing the Kansas Aggies throughout the game, finished with a spurt that shot the Huskers into a tie two minutes before the end of the game and, with a second to spare, Captain Smaha cast in the winning basket. The score was 26-24.

Smaha the Main Cog.

It was Captain Smaha, the Husker left forward, that won the game for the northerners. His long shot in the last minute arched perfectly into the basket to break the lead even while the final gun was sounding. He made eight field goals and two free throws for a total of 18 of his team's points.

It was Captain Smaha that started the scoring when early in the game he made a field goal. Byers soon tied the count, however, but then Smaha edged his team ahead by a free throw after Mertel's foul Byers retaliated with a basket and from that point the Aggies held the lead until the final and fatal moment. After Smaha had made his baskets early in the game the Aggies watched him closely and he was kept scoreless until the second half when he did damage a plenty to Purple hopes.

Aggies Led at Half.

Byers, Aggie forward, took up the scoring burden in the first half and aided by Skradski and Edwards ran the Aggie score to 18 while the Huskers were kept at 15.

When the second period started the passing of the Purple players became ragged and several times the passes were overshot and the ball lost to the opposition. Both teams started the second half with indifferent basketball but the Aggies had the advantage of shooting and worked the score to 25 to 13 before the Huskers got started.

Smaha on Rampage.

With the Aggies 10 points ahead of them, the Huskers took a new hold and Smaha registered a free throw on Edwards' foul and then repeated with a basket. A moment later the Husker captain snared another field goal. Skradski then took up the Aggie burden and registered a free throw on Page's foul, but Smaha could not be kept from scoring very long and he soon sent another spiral through the hoop. He followed that with a neat dribble the length of the floor and a clever cast at the end. In but a few moments the Nebraska captain had made eight points and put his team within two points of a tie.

Mertel made his final foul of the game and was replaced because of excessive fouls by Weddel. After the substitution, Holm made both of the free throws to tie the score.

Wins on Long Shot.

With but little more than a minute left to play, the teams battled for the chance at the basket and each team made several futile casts to toss in the winning counter. Smaha finally arched a long one from deep in the court and even before it went through the hoop the gun sounded with the Nebraska victory on the score book.

Captain Smaha was easily the star of the game although Byers played his best home game in three years. He made only five baskets but played an aggressive and clever floor game. The score:

SUDDEN BOOM BY IDAHO SCRAPPER

Myers' Stock Soaring As Result of Decision Over Callahan.

BY COPELAND C. BURG.

CHICAGO, Feb. 12.—(INS)—James "Spug" Myers, blond tiger of Pocatello, Idaho, fell into a unique position in pugilistic circles today.

Indications were he would get a crack at two world's boxing titles within the next six months.

Matches bringing the Idaho slugger against Mushy Callahan of Los Angeles, world's junior welterweight champion, and Sammy Mandell, lightweight champion of the world, are now reported in the making.

Promoter Jim Mullen, who staged the bout here Thursday in which Myers won a decision over Callahan, after a sensational tenth-round rally, was reported negotiating for both clashes.

Eddie Sears, manager of Callahan, has protested Myers' victory, and is anxious for a re-match, with the title at stake. If terms offered by Mullen are acceptable to Callahn and Myers, the re-match wil lbe staged in Chicago in April.

Myers, because of his recent draw here with Billy Petrolle, Fargo, N. D., "express", is Mullen's choice for a crowd-bringer in a title bout with Mandell.

The lightweight champion has refused to defend his tile against a worthy opponent since he pushed over the ancient Rocky Kansas almost a year ago, but he is understood to have assured Mullen he would fight for him this summer. The bout would be staged in a big league ball park, where a $100,000 gate might be attracted.

Able to Make 135.

Although the Idaho slugger weighed more than 140 pounds when he fought Callahan, his weight for the recent Petrolle bout was announced as 135 pounds and Myers claims he can get down to that weight for Mandell without weakening himself.

Mandell is already being subjected to fire by Chicago sports writers because he has not risked his title and he probably will be forced into the ring before long. He is said to consider Myers as not a particularly tough opponent.

Mandell, in addition to holding the lightweight title, is the ring's best bicycle rider and Myers chances for victory would depend entirely on his ability to catch up with the shifty champion and put over one of the right crosses with which he rocked Callahan the other night.

Myers is rugged and a slugger, but the light-punching title-holder can outbox him every round of a dozen.

TOURNEY TIME FOR HIGH FIVES

Three Invitation Fests On This Week's Book In Nebraska.

Omaha Central Contest Features Program In Capital City.

BY GREGG McBRIDE.

Invitation basketball tournaments at Peru Normal and Chadron Normal will attract considerable attention in Nebraska high school circles this week, each of the cage compets having attracted a well-filled slates of teams.

The Peru Normal invitation meet, labeled the M-I-N-K tourney, has attracted entries from southeast Nebraska, Iowa Missouri and Kansas, while Chadron Normal will pull in the strong teams in northwestern Nebraska to compete with representative cage aggregations from Wyoming, Colorado nad South Dakota.

The Peru Entries.

The Peru Normal tournament has attracted among its early entrants Plattsmouth, Virginia, Peru Prep, Auburn, Nebraska City, Syracuse, Shubert, Waco, Salem, Sterling, Bratton Union, Dunbar, Elmwood, Panama, Denton, Nemaha, Brownville, Verdon, Adams and Stella. Kansas entries include Berne, Sabetha, Salina, Hiawatha and Axtell. The Iowa roster will include Malvern and possibly Missouri Valley. Blanchard and Sidney. Missouri quintets will include Corning, Tarkio and Rockport.

The Chadron Normal tourney promises to be the largest meet in Chadron history. The teams will be divided into three classes, regular four-year high schools being permitted to chose A or B competition, schools offering less than four years' work and very small schools being placed in class C.

The Chadron tourney is scheduled for Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Probable entries include:

Tourney at Fairbury.

Jefferson county teams will gather at Fairbury to rtheir annual tournament. Coach Frank S. Furman's Fairbury team seems to be the class of the county aggregations, the squad having the height and speed necessary to compile a fine record, considering basketball is comparatively new to Fairbury athletes.

BRASS TACKS

BY CY SHERMAN

Three Dumb Dukes.
Merely Ballyhoo.
Skinning the Judge.
Pigs Ain't Pigs.

Small wonder it is that the "three dumb dukes" comprising the state boxing commission of New York are in bad with a long suffering public and that pressure is being put on Governor Al Smith to make vigorous use of his bouncing machine. Boxing czars generally are not overburdened with popularity. Much of the criticism aimed at their heads may not be justified, but the Empire state triumvirate has gone the limit of absurdity in handing down rules, decrees and ukases quite so silly as to merit naught but condemnation and contempt.

Witness the commission's ruling in the case of Jack Delaney, alias Chapdelaine, Canada's most illustrious contribution to the art of mauling ears. Delaney, by virtue of his skill in socking with his right, has hammered his way to the throne in the light-heavyweight division. Although world's champion of the 175-pounders, the punching Canadian has a laudable ambition to acquire Gene Tunney's heavyweight crown.

Promoter Tex Rickard placed the stamp of his approval on Delaney's aspirations by entering the woodsman from the Quebec country in his heavyweight tournament, due to get under way this week as the first of a series of elimination matches in which the survivor will be pitted against Champion Gene. Delaney vs. Maloney is the bill for the tournament inaugural, dated for next Friday night, and press dispatches from the scene relate that Maloney will strip at 200 pounds, whereas the "terrible three" have ruled that Delaney, being the light-heavy titleholder, must not scale above 175 pounds.

Fair play and common sense, quite apparently, would dictate that all details involving weight be ignored in a heavyweight contention, yet the decree by the dumb dukes means that in event Delaney scales as much as a half-pound over the 175 mark he will be subject to forfeiture of his weight and appearance money and probable suspension.

Effect of the commission's ruling will be to send Delaney into the ring next Friday lugging the burden of a heavy handicap. Maloney may weigh just as much as he pleases, whereas the Canadian dare not go in at more than the light-heavy limit. Apologists for the commission explain that Delaney is not the victim of a new rule; that the boxing board merely is standing pat on a former decree, which means, simply, that the commissioners have been making chumps of themselves since the day they stepped into power and purpose to be consistent until the day they step out.

The case of Babe Ruth vs. the New York Yankees is being tried at the bar of public opinion and the verdict is all but rendered in favor of the King of Swat. The Big Bam is reputed to be demanding that his annual salary of $52,000 be multiplied by two, meantime giving notice that he will take nothing less than that or step out of the national game. Fandom generally has lined up in support of the Babe, while Col. Ruppert, Yankee owner, is taking a panning for his niggardly treatment of baseball's greatest slugger and drawing card.

The writer's hunch is that the Yankees are playing a clever game; that the dispute with Ruth is a smoke screen—a ballyhoo let loose for the single purpose of drumming up publicity. While fandom is working itself into a torment over the Ruth case, it is forgetting about the scandal talk of recent vintage, all of which is so much soothing syrup to the men who pull the strings in the major leagues.

As a matter of course, Babe will get his boost in pay. Extravagant as the statement might seem on its face, the Big Bam would be cheap at twice $100,000. Without Babe, big league baseball would be a drab institution. With him, the magnates will reap another golden harvest. Shrewd followers of the game have estimated that in each and every season since he joined the Yankees, Ruth has been worth an extra million paid admissions to the eight clubs of the American league.

If the casual observer has been lugging the suspicion that the Yankees and Babe may not get together on the salary topic, now is the time to forget it. The ballyhoo business may continue another week or so, but eventually the Bam will get down on the dotted line, signing at a figure that pleases him in every way, and Col. Ruppert and his fellow magnates will exude an extra chuckle in proof of their knowledge that the public likes nothing better than to be fooled.

Comment by a Kansas City editor, writing for the Missouri Democrat on the topic of K. Mountain Landis, qualifies for first prize without even a suggestion of dispute, his remarks being as follows and to-wit:

"When the ancients wrote about the travail of their mountain, which 'brought forth a mouse,' they knew nothing whatever about our own contemporaneous Mountain Kenesaw, ex-federal judge, incumbent baseball commissioner. When he labors and goes through travail, instead of bringing forth a mouse he usually delivers himself of a whale.

"The man is unsafe. His day ended with the day of the Spanish Inquisition. Baseball had better be rid of him. He has become a common scold.

"How can Landis reform baseball if he cannot reform himself? A man who would sacrifice the high dignity of a place on the federal bench must have a better reason than an aggravated pay check to convince the public he is solely judicial. More, and more, and yet more is his cry. He was being paid the enormous sum of $50,000 a year and a few weeks ago allowed his dupes to raise this to $65,000. A week later after that increased emolument he began to further destroy the goose which was laying his golden egg. Mere vanity. Kenesaw Mountain Landis is a misfit marplot. It is now in order for the public to try the managers who are keeping him in control."

Paolini Uzcusdin, heavyweight fighting man from Spain, was made to look foolish recently by his claim that he had killed three Cuban wild boars with no weapons other than his maulles. Subsequent investigation disclosed that the boars he had slain were three perfectly harmless razorback hogs, denizens of a Florida swamp.

But Uz was not the first athlete of renown who didn't know his eggs—or, rather, his pigs. Hans Wagner, king of all the baseballing shortstops in his heyday with the Pittsburgh Pirates, once knew so little about porkers that he thought a pig wasn't a pig unless it was black.

Years ago, when Hans was teaming under Fred Clarke, who managed the Smoky City club, the great shortstop accepted an invitation to partake of the hospitality of the Clarke ranch in southern Kansas, later to accompany his host on a fall hunting trip.

In due time, Hans showed up at the ranch, an expansive insttitution of 1,500 or more acres. The husky Dutchman was eager for the hunt and refused to be satisfied, so Clarke armed Hans with a gun and suggested that he sally forth alone, trying his luck in the river bottom which skirts the ranch.

Wagner was absent scarcely fifteen minutes, when back he came in triumph, balancing a dead animal over his shoulder. The ranch foreman met Hans on the way. One glance threw the foreman into a frenzy of rage. The victim of Wagner's blunderbus was one of Clarke's prize duroc-jersey shoats.

"You dumfool," snorted the foreman, "you've killed one of Fred's registered pigs."

"Pig h--l," Hans retorted. "This thing is red."

PICKS OPPONENT FOR TED GARTIN

Billy Hale Pits Michigan Boy Against Lincoln Welterweight.

Check Fulmer, Also Local Product, Is Matched With Toby Smith.

The four principals in the double main event of legalized scrapping, scheduled for Monday night, Feb. 21, at the City auditorium under promotion of the Maccabees lodge, have been sorted out and otherwise selected by Billy Hale, acting matchmaker, and all arrangements for a mitten-whirling entertainment of five bouts and thirty rounds are declared complete.

TED GARTIN.

Ted Gartin, Lincoln welterweight whose prowess in slinging padded firsts lacks but little of putting him on an even rating with Ace Hudkins, and Jack O'Neil of Grand Rapids and St. Paul, will tangle in the 10-round windup, while Check Fulmer, also a local welter, and Toby Smith of St. Joseph, Mo., will hook up for 10 rounds in the opening half of the twin bill.

Check Seeks Revenge.

The Fulmer-Smith affair has all the brandmarks of genuine class. Toby stands credited with a paper decision over Check in a recent bout at St. Joseph, although the Coach Browne's Basketeers Even Up Account With St. Joseph When Fisher Hurls Final Goal.

BY RAY OSBORNE.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Feb. 12.—Lincoln high school's basketball team got revenge here tonight for the defeat handed the Nebraska aggregation last night by Central High school, annexing a victory which was won after a tussle which matched that of last night for action, the final score of the game being 17 to 16.

Fisher's long heave for the basket in the last minute of play was the two-pointer which won the game for the invaders. Central was leading at that time, 16 to 15. His toss cleaved through the netting without touching anything but the string and a minute later the stirring game was brought to a close with the Lincoln team out in front.

Free Throws Big Factor.

Fouls figured largely in the scoring. Central made thirteen personals on which Lincoln scored nine of its seventeen points and gathering in four baskets. Central counted seven points on nine chances at the basket from the foul line on personals. The St. Joseph team made as many field goals as did the invading team.

Fisher, stellar forward for the strong Lincoln team, was snowed under until the last half-minute of play. But the field goal that he connected for won the game for Lincoln.

Lincoln Out In Front.

The score of the game at the end of the first quarter was 7 to 1, Lincoln making five free throws and one field goal to a charity toss by the locals. Lincoln was held to a free throw in the second period, while Central connected for two field goals and a one-pointer, the score at the end of the half being 8 to 5, Lincoln.

The tally at the whistle for the end of the third period found Lincoln out in front, the tally being 15 to 12.

Fisher Breaks It Up.

Hanna was fouled by Morrison as the fourth quarter started and the Central player was awarded the basket he made, gathering in a third point on a free throw. Farnham made a free throw a minute later and St. Joseph was leading. Several minutes elapsed and neither team scored. Came Fisher's basket and then the whistle and a closely fought basketball game was ended. The score:

Yanks Confident Bambino In Diamond Duds This Year

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—(U. P.)—"Babe Ruth will be back in right field for the Yankees when the season opens," Ed Barrow, business manager of the New York club, predicted today.

Barrow refused to say whether the Yankees would have to meet the Babe's terms, or that the star home run hitter would have to take what the club wants to give him, but he intimated much when he said that they had always been able to get together in the past.

Couldn't Keep Him Out.

The Yankees say the seriousness of the Ruth case is being grossly exaggerated.

"I do not believe we could keep the Babe out of the game if we wanted to," Barrow said. "He would be the unhappiest man in the world if he was out of baseball. I know that from the experience I had when he was playing for me with the Boston Red Sox. When he first started to break into the outfield, he would almost cry when I took him out of the game for a right-handed hitter."

HAVELOCK LOSES TO HOLDREGE HI

Shoptown Cagers Nosed Out By Margin Of One Point.

HOLDREGE, Neb., Feb. 12. — A fourth-period spurt by Holdrege high netted three baskets and six points here tonight, the local youths coming up from behind to nose in front of Havelock, 13 12.

The cagers from Lincoln's shoptown suburbs threw a big scare into Holdrege ranks by taking an 8-3 lead at the half and increasing their advantage to 12-7 at the end of the third quarter.

Basket hits by Manley, Barber and Edney produced the needed points for Holdrege during the final period, while Havelock's shots went wide of the netting.

Hulbert, substitute guard for Havelock, had a chance to tie the score on a free throw during the last minute of play, but missed his shot and Holdrege maintained its one-point advantage to the final pistol shot. The score:

Cincy Club Pilot Is Standing Pat; No Trade Pending

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—(U. P.)—"Unless some trade pops up to our advantage that would further strengthen the club, we will make the 1927 race with the club as it now stands." Jack Hendricks, manager of the Cincinnati Reds, said today before leaving for home.

Hendricks denied that he had any trades pending with the New York or St. Louis clubs. It was reported that the Giants wanted to buy or get Adolfo Luque, Cuban pitcher, in a trade and that St. Louis had offered Jess Haines, holdout pitcher, for Luque and Wally Pipp, veteran first baseman.

"We have never discussed Luque with the New York club," he said "Some time ago I offered to trade Luque to St Louis for Haines, but the offer was refused. The report that St. Louis had offered Haines for Luque and Pipp is news to me."

Hendricks thinks that Pipp was reported on the market because he procured George Kelly, Giant first baseman.

"Kelly is the best all-around player in baseball and that's the reason we traded Roush for him," he said.

"We have no intention of releasing Luque or Pipp. The fact of the matter is that everyone else wants Luque and we also want him."

Canadian Skater Amateur Champ

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Feb. 12.—(I. N. S.)—Charles Gorman of St. Johns, N. B., won the international amateur speed skating title on Mirror Lake here today with a total of 140 points. Gorman tied the world's record for the 220-yard dash, when, in the semi-finals, he was clocked at 18 2-5 seconds.

Ross Robinson of Toronto brought the world's record for the five-mile event down forty seconds when he completed the distance in 14 minutes, 30 3-5 seconds.

MARTY RETURNS TO LEAD OILERS

BY JOHN B. OLD.

TULSA, Okla., Feb. 12.—Simultaneous with the announcement that Manager Marty Berghammer was expected to arrive here Monday to supervise plans for spring training, Joseph R. Friel, business manager, stated tonight that seventeen contracts were mailed Saturday to Oilers. Signed contracts of seven players are already resting in the club safe

While Berghammer will come to Tulsa some two weeks ahead of his players, spring training will not get under way at McNulty park until March 6. Marty has been wintering in St. Paul and is said to have left there Thursday with Mrs Berghammer. They are driving through.

Four Vet Outfielders.

The four veteran outfielders of last season are among those to whom contracts have been offered. They are Joe Riggert, "Powerhouse Red" Bennett, Floyd Patterson and Pete Casey. The latter has been in Tulsa since the close of last season as a member of the traffic force of the city police department. Last year, Casey led Western league batters despite the fact that he suffered a broken arm near the close of the season in a game at Oklahoma City.

Bob Brown On List.

Bob Brown, shortstop, and Otis Branon, second baseman, are the only two regular infielders of last year who have been offered contracts Guy Sturdy, the league's home run king and Oiler first baseman, will go to Tarpon Springs, Florida with the Browns John "Pewee" Lewis, third baseman, has been recalled by the St. Paul Saints

Karl Black, the venerable and faithful southpaw, heads the list of pitchers to whom offers have been made. John Tesar is the only other pitcher who took a regular turn last season who is listed. Art Kinney, the young southpaw with the Oilers last spring, who was later farmed, is slated for another trial.

Four Players Suspended.

Luke Stuart, utility; Jack Roach, catcher, Harry King, pitcher, and Chuck O Brien, catcher, were also offered contracts. All, however, are on the suspended list and the offering of contracts was merely a protective measure, it was explained.

The signature of Joe Munson heads the list of seven signed contracts already received. Others are those of Bill Raper, a pitcher from the sand lots of Muskogee; Melville Ficks, semi-pro pitcher from Utah; Don Caywood, semi-pro outfielder, from Jenks; Edward Grimes, infielder from the Chicago sand lots; Fred Gullic, a local infielder of the public service team of the city league, and "Preacher" Meek, a Dallas semi-pro infielder.

DIAMOND MOGES DO SOME KICKING

Club Owners Protesting Players Demanding Too Much Pay.

Just the Same, Giants Are Spending Plenty To Win Pennant.

BY HENRY L. FARRELL.

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—(U. P.)—Since the baseball players started digging both hands into the money bags, major league club owners have differed in their opinions as to the commercial value of a pennant winner.

Owners of these clubs which have staged million-dollar series—New York, Washington, Pittsburgh and St. Louis—claim seriously they would have lost money on a four-game series and that with the receipts from a seven-game series they made hardly enough to compensate them on a union scale of pay for the time, labor and trouble involved.

This is a bare statement of facts and is not intended as the note of a cheer leader to whoop up the boys who think that series are arranged to go seven games for the benefit of the impoverished magnates.

McGraw Wants That Flag.

There is a certain glory in a championship team, but club owners do not seek glory as much as cash, and, while there may not be Ford profits in a series, there must be some special assets in the possession of a pennant winner. Otherwise John McGraw would not be making the desparate gamble in money and flesh to win the 1927 National league pennant for the New York Giants.

The business office insists that no money and only ball players on the hoof were concerned in the deals that brought Rogers Hornsby, Eddie Roush, Burley Grimes and George Harper from other clubs. But, if this is so, the trades caused the club something in the differences in salary that will have to be paid to the three stars.

Heavy Outlay of Cahs.

The purchase of Bevo Lebourveau, Al Devormer and other rookies represented a heavy outlay of cash that might not have to be expended if McGraw was not so serious in his intent to win.

The Giant pay roll this year can not be less that $145,000 and may run as high as $200,000, a sum that would stagger the Phillies or the Red Sox.

The Salary Roster.

Hornsby, $40,000.
Roush, $19,000 to $21,000.
Grimes, $15,000.
Jackson and Lindstrom, $11,000 each.
Young, $13,000
Barnes, $11 000
Tyson and Mueller, $8,000.

In addition to the cost of winning a pennant, there is a financial penalty attached to the victory, as Sam Breadon, owner of the St. Louis Cardinals, will attest

Cards' Boss Files Kick.

Although the St. Louis club earned a stock dividend last season, Breadon insists that he would go broke if he met the salary demand of his unsigned stars. He fired Rogers Hornsby, the manager of his first championship club, and traded him to New York. He has placed Jess Haines on the market and it is reported that he will give Jim Bottomley his passports if he can get Wally Pipp from the Cincinnati Reds Regardless of the moans, there must be money as well as glory in a pennant, otherwise there would be no inducement for a business man.

King of Amateurs Plans Play Pros On Florida Links

ATLANTA, Ga., Feb. 12.—(U. P.)—Bobby Jones will play in the southern open golf championship here March 23-26, it was definitely learned today, previous to the champion's departure for Saratosa, Fla., to open a golf course named in his honor.

Jones' initial 1927 appearance in competition will find him facing a group of America's foremost pros, including Walter Hagen and Bobby Cruickshank, both of whom have signified their intention of playing. "I love to battle the pros anywhere, and I want to play in this tournament," the young Atlanta star said.

He had previously demurred as to entering the tournament until the dean of Emery university law school, which Jones attends, gave his formal sanction.

The richest purse in the history of southern golf will tempt the leading pros here. The top prize will be 4,000 and $12,000 in all will be divided.

DEMPSEY QUITS BED OF SICKNESS

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 12.—(I. N. S.)—Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight boxing champion of the world, was able to get up and go downtown today for the first time since he took sick ten days ago with an attack of blood poisoning on his left arm.

"Feeling like a million dollars," the ex-champion said when he was recognized by friends downtown. "May have to take things easy for a while yet before I resume training for my comeback, but things'll work out all right, I'm sure."

Step Has Old Spring.

The old spring had come back to Jack's footsteps and he did not give the appearance of a man just up from sickbed.

Estelle Taylor, the former champion's pretty wife, was delighted that Jack was able to be up and going again.

"Jack is a mighty poor patient," she said, "and it's hard to have to keep him cooped up."

HIGH HARRY ON SCORING SPREE

Kersenbrock Hurls Eight Baskets and Doane Wins, 34-25.

BY GREGG McBRIDE.

Harry Kersenbrock & Co, fresh from a victorious performance at Peru Normal which broke a Bobcat record of some eight years' standing, paused in Bethany Saturday afternoon for a matinee exhibition.

The basketball drama went over big from a Doane viewpoint, the Tigers copping a 34-25 verdict, while the Bulldogs gleaned satisfaction from the fact that they fought the Doane cagers toe-to-toe a major portion of the first half.

"Long Boy" Kersenbrock, former Crete high star, was the sparkling light in the Doane offense. The seven-foot center scored 23 points before he was retired during the second quarter by the personal foul route.

High Harry Busy Scorer.

The elongated basketeer took his station beneath the hoop and scored eight baskets. He might have done still more if Glass, a rather diminutive Cotner guard, had failed to do a neat bit of guarding. Glass' stunt was to leap high in the air to intercept passes to Kersenbrock, a trick in which he was unusually successful, considering Doane confined most of its efforts to feeding the ball to "High" Harry.

The Doane team appeared rather slow at the start, perhaps being fatigued from the Friday game at Peru and midnight ride back to the capital city. At any rate, it was nip-and-tuck for the first ten minutes, with both teams enjoying the lead for brief moments.

Score Once Deadlocked.

After a 14-14 deadlock Kersenbrock went on a scoring spree and the Tigers wound up on the heavy end of a 22-16 score at half-time. The Bengals came back strong at the opening of the second period and were riding in a 31-16 lead before the Bulldogs scored a point.

With the count 33-21 in favor of Doane and six minutes to play, a fourth personal foul sent Kersenbrock to the showers and both teams milled about in a ragged fashion. Cotner's two baskets and a Doane free throw being the only scoring during the remainder of the contest. The score:

Joetown promoter evidently figured Fulmer earned a good draw, as he is bidding for a return engagement by the Lincoln battler Check is anxious to wipe out the stain of that alleged decision and expects to take Toby's measure in his next home appearance, as verdicts by the referee are permitted in Nebraska, which bars the paper awards by partisan scribes

Gartin In Demand.

After a month of steady training in Lincoln, following a prolonged layoff from ring activities, Gartin whipped himself into perfect fettle and neatly mauled Mike Rozgall, Omaha middie, in the main event of the recent St. Joseph program. Gartin's ability to deliver is pretty well noised around in the middle west and Ted has a series of offers for his services in such fight centers as St. Paul, Kansas City, Sioux City and Denver.

Tricky Weights Barred.

Gartin and O'Neil are slated to tangle at the 145-pound limit and Matchmaker Hale declared Saturday night that it would be 145 and nothing but—not seven pounds over, which might be construed as a gentle rap at Ace Hudkins, who was billed to battle in Lincoln last month at the 142-pound mark and went into the ring scaling 149.

Gartin's feat of trimming Rozgall at St Joseph was decisive, judging from the following comment in the St. Joseph Gazette

Mike Had Dizzy Night.

"Alva Graves was dead wrong! Acting as official spokesman for Michael Rozgall, his ring protege, Graves yesterday issued a statement that Rozgall could whip any fighter in the middle west up to 150 pounds Teddy Gartin, however, last night convinced 1,500 assembled ring fans that Graves was merely garrulous.

"How this clever veteran ringster from Lincoln, Neb, manhandled Michael! Tricking Rozgall into leading, Gartin slipped past the devastating left and counter-punched his fellow Nebraskan dizzy.

Ted Clever Jabber.

"A lightning-like jab that kept darting into Rozgall's face made him furious. Rozgall gritted his teeth and grew red in the face, particularly about the nose. Finding himself out-smarted he grew vexed; then desperate. As he lashed out with his left, Gartin ducked and took it on his head then slid down Mike's arm to land a resounding smack to the ribs Mike then tried his right, but Gartin was gone and Mike swung on nothing more substantial than the air.

"Tricky from the word go, Gartin was master of the situation in six rounds, while Rozgall took one and the rest were even. It was one of the prettiest fights of the year."

WALTHILL DEFEATS PENDER CAGE FIVE

WALTHILL, Neb Feb. 12.—Walthill high school ran gup another basketball victory last night by defeating Pender on the Pender court, 15 to 10. Walthill played a fine defensive game and held Pender scoreless during the second half Brownrigg, husky guard, featured the Walthill defense.

Fighters Seek Redress In Courts; Plan Sue Commish

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—(U. P.)—Legal tests of rulings by the New York boxing commission may come as a result of penalties inflicted by the commission on principals of the Rosenberg-Graham bantamweight championship fight.

The commission revoked the licenses of Harry Segal, manager of Rosenberg, and William Parr, manager of Graham, suspended the two fighters for a year and held up Rosenberg's purse until 7 1-2 per cent of the sum is returned to Graham.

Lawyer Prepares Papers.

Hymen Bushel, counsel for Segal, said today he was preparing papers for action to force the commission to hand over Segal's money and another action demanding that the commission show reason why Rosenberg should be suspended for a year.

The suspension handed out by the New York commission bars Rosenberg from every state where boxing is permitted, as he was set down for life some time ago by the Illinois commission and the national boxing association. Rosenberg claims, if the suspension is upheld, it will end his career as a fighter.

Maloney In Mood to Bet.

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—(U. P.)—Jim Maloney, Boston heavyweight, is willing to bet Jack Delaney, the world's light heavyweight champion $20,000 that he stops Delaney when they meet next Friday night in Tex Rickard's Garden. It was announced today by William S Farnsworth New York sports editor

Maloney wired the offer of the bet to Delaney and offered to place the money in the hands of Farnsworth, after he heard that Delaney had said that he would knock out Maloney.

Maloney and Delaney continued their training work today. Delaney is working at his home in Bridgeport, Conn, and Maloney is working at Jimmy De Forest's camp at Long Branch, N. J.

Porta died after he had been knocked out in the second round of a scheduled three-round battle held by the Panhandle Athletic club, an organization of the Pennsylvania railroad

The dead youth's father, a former pugilist, said today he considered

THE NEW MORRILL HALL

MORRILL HALL, the newest building on the enlarged campus of the University of Nebraska, houses the museum and the school of fine arts. It was made possible through a gift to the university by Charles H. Morrill of Stromsberg.

The building stands south and to the east of the field house and faces to the north. It is an imposing structure and catches the eye immediately as one enters the university campus. It is three stories high, the school of fine arts being on the two upper floors.

When the structure was designed it was with the specific idea in mind of giving the school something worth while. This the architects have done, as it not only combines beauty and convenience, but also has that one factor so essential to a structure housing art and rare specimens of bygone ages, light. There is an abundance of it, not only for the museum but for the art galleries also.

Morrill hall is located on the corner of Fourteenth and Vine streets and is plotted in accordance with the university regent's scheme of campus development. It is about 200 feet east of Bessey hall and and faces north towards the proposed Memorial hall.

The architectural style of Morrill hall is quite similar to that of Bessey hall and other newer buildings on the university campus. The building is in the shape of a rectangle with a projection built to the south and is so constructed that it can be added to at any time in the future when the funds are appropriated for this use.

The front length of Morrill hall is 250 feet and the pillars and pilasters on the north side together with the long broad flight of stone steps approaching the front door add greatly to the appearance of the structure.

Morrill hall will prove of inestimatable value to the University of Nebraska museum. Few people realize the value and the amount of material which has been collected and presented to the Nebraska museum because there has been such inadequate means of displaying the exhibits in the past.

Since 1908 the museum has been housed in the small brick building just north of the armory. But of late years tons and tons of material which should be exhibited because of its educational and historical value has been hidden away in attics, basements and even in the tunnels below the university campus.

The unique gallery of the elephants is one of the most striking features of the new museum. It runs the full width of the building from the north to the south. The mammoths are placed in glass cases ten feet wide and sixteen feet high which line the sides of the hall. As one passes from the north to the south end of the gallery the size of the fossils grows, the smallest ones having been only about two feet tall while the largest, the great American mastodon is about fourteen feet high at the shoulders. An individual can pass from one end of the gallery to the other in a few minutes but in doing so he witnesses a process of evolution which progressed over thousands of centuries.

Outstanding in the annals of Nebraska will ever shine in resplendent glory the name of Charles H. Morrill of Stromsburg, courage pioneer of the state, and a man who has left his imprint not only on the state but on the city of Lincoln and hundreds of its citizens.

A pioneer, stalwart and courageous, Mr. Morrill is one of the outstanding figures in the state's history, and always held a dominant place there.

His life has been a contribution to the state and to its cities and towns, especially to Lincoln.

Coming to Nebraska in the early days he has seen it grow from a prairie state into one of the richest of the nation, dotted with beautiful homes, cities, schools and universities. And he lives to know that his has been a remarkable contribution to that development of little more than a half century.

Mr. Morrill has had a remarkable career. He has accomplished much but the influence of his example outweighs all the results of his efforts.

His Service to Lincoln and the state arises largely from the influence of his example as a courageous pioneer, patriotic citizen and loyal friend.

The great lesson to be drawn from his life is that future success is usually conditioned upon self denial; that courage and persistance will bring its reward.

The dedication of Morrill hall marks the latest and probably the finest service that Mr. Morrill will ever give to the community.

This building will stand a monument to his greatness, and generation on generation to come will go forth from its portals learned in the arts, to give courage and cheer to other generations, happiness to themselves.

In this action, Mr. Morrill gave to the state his influence, an influence imperishable; an influence that will work for the uplift of mankind as long as there is time.

Morrill hall is one of the new buildings of the university campus and houses the museum and school of fine arts. As a museum it is one of the best in the nation and as a home for an art school the very latest known to educational building architects. Here both departments of the school will be permitted to grow and expand in a way that was impossible under their former conditions.

Both will glorify Charles H. Morrill, pioneer donor of the structure, and enscroll his name on the pages of history forever.

Anniversary Date of Parent-Teacher Idea to be Observed As Yearly Child Welfare Day

February 17 has been designated as the day to be set aside by the National Parent Teachers association for the observation of child welfare. Thirty years ago on that date, Theodore Roosevelt sent out printed invitations over the seal of the secretary of state which brought together at Washington, D. C., a group of people including Mrs. Phoebe Hearst, who later gave much financial assistance to the Parent Teachers association, and Mrs. Theodore W. Birney, who or the group as the National Congress of Mothers. The name of the organization was changed in 1908 to the National Congress of Parents and Teachers and Mothers and again in 1924 to the National Congress of Parents and Teachers.

The dream of Mrs. Theodore Birney for an organized, intelligent, sympathetic motherhood found realization in the organization of the National Congress of Mothers in 1897. It included from the first, a large and representative group of men and women of intellectual achievement and reputation; leaders in religious; educational, philanthropic and social affairs; as well as fathers and mothers to fame unknown, all drawn together by an object which should most appeal to the father and mother heart of the world—the highest welfare of children.

A Washington paper of that date thus comments: "The National Congress of Mothers is not a congress to make laws, negotiate treaties, impose tariffs, and debate political questions, but it is a congress organized to discuss questions of more vital interest to the nation than any measure which the United States Congress has ever had before it—the welfare of children and the manifold interests of the home."

This organization, financed by Mrs. Phoebe Hearst, well known for her warm interest in the welfare of children, was incorporated in 1900 as the National Congress of Mothers; in 1915 as the National Congress of Mothers and Parent Teachers Associations and in 1924 as the National Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Wonderful and far reaching has been the progress and influence of the National organization in the thirty-one years of its existence. Local associations have been formed in every state in the union with over 10,000,000 members; Forty-six states and the District of Columbia have been organized as the state branches of the National; much literature has been disseminated and a national office has been established in Washington, D. C., with an executive secretary in charge. Child Welfare, a magazine published officially, is sent to every member of the organization with the purpose of keeping each of the 18,000 local units, in touch with up to date proceedings in that phase of work. Hundreds of thousands of leaflets are printed and distributed dealing with child welfare. In short, each year the organization has come to be recognized as an influence in the educational, religious, philanthropic and social world, and is of untold value in protecting, enriching and beautifying child life.

On June 1, 1922, the Nebraska branch of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers was formed. By the end of the year 1926, there were over 15,000 members in this state alone. The first president of the organization was Mrs. G. H. Wentz, who was succeeded recently by Mrs. Ida Yungblut.

The aims of the organization are to promote citizenship, health, thrift and countless other things toward the betterment of child life in its relation to school, home and the community. In our own state of Nebraska this work is done under the direction of individuals who have studied the situation and are keenly interested in it. An investigation of the moving picture question in connection with the child's progress was made and Mrs. Julia M. Harrison, chairman of that committee, made this report:

"Approximately one-sixth of the entire population of the United States visits the motion picture theaters each day. Disregarding the classes that seldom or never attend, it is safe to assume that on an average the young people of school and college age see at least two performances a week. The average is probably much higher. Recognizing the impressions received through the medium of sight are the strongest and most lasting, is it any wonder that the National Congress of Parents and Teachers takes cognizance of this new and potential influence?

The work of the motion picture committee follows two main lines; the first of which may be called educational. An earnest effort is being made to arouse parents to the fact that the movie plays a tremendous part in the molding of the lives of their children, and that it is the parents' job to see tha this influence is helpful and rightfully used. Mothers are urged to keep small children entirely away for health reasons. For reasons of health and thrift, the attendance of older children should be strictly limited. And most of all—no child should be allowed to see a picture which is known to be not worth while and unsuited to his age.

The second line of work followed by the national motion picture committee is that of sending out lists of films reviewed and recommended by them. These lists are published monthly in the child Welfare magazine, and are classified for adult and family patronage. They are an invaluable aid to parents.

The motion picture committees of local Parent-Teacher groups are urged to co-operate wherever possible with exhibitors The exhibitors as a rule are always anxious to do so. If, therefore, parents the country over, can be aroused to discountenance the bad and patronize only the best in motion pictures, we may hope that this powerful factor in our modern life will soon begin to wield helpful rather than destructive influence."

In previous years, perhaps dating back as far as the "little red school house" of so much fame, there has been a slightly noticeable barrier between the parents and the teacher. They have not met on a common ground to discuss the affairs of the children in school. The Parent Teacher association is organized principally to bring about a mutual feeling between the two, and to help the foreign mother to become acquainted with the methods and proceedings in the educating of her children. It enlists the foreign parents' cooperation in the work of Americanization.

Miss Mary Ellen Brown, state chairman of the home economics committee, has been interested in the school child from the viewpoint of home environment. She recently sent out 416 questionaires to farm mothers asking them to check five things which they most desired from a list of needs in rural education. Requests by the mothers for better trained teachers and better salaries for them, higher standards for teachers, better buildings, close co-operation between parents and teacher, and athletics for the physical development of all rather than the competition of the few, were made.

Miss Brown also concluded that no matter how much these farm women desired certain added physical comforts, they were not after the dollar of material wealth, except insofar as this wealth will bring them better schools and communities. They are not so interested in the buying power of the farmer as they are in the kind of school teacher that teaches their boys and girls, the kind of company they keep and their attitude about the responsibility toward other people on the state and nation.

Another state chairman, Mrs. Hazel Nohavcec of the committee of music in connection with P. T. A. work is busy with the compiling and editing of a Parent Teachers' association song book. She hopes that this will be more conducive to more and better singing in the individual groups and that it will help to unify when the larger groups are in session.

What the child reads is responsible to a great extent for what he is as he is developing and when he is grown. It is the second step in his collection of facts. Mrs. David Greisel, state chairman of children's reading, is working toward a complete library in every public school. She says that every school room should have in addition to a reference library, one with various entertaining books of travel, well selected American literature, and other kinds of books for the broader education of the children. It is especially well to train children on their reading before the age of fourteen. The habits formed before this age are the ones which are retained the longest and which make the deepest impression.

Health of the school child has long been a subject of concern to hygiene authorities and to the nation. Through the P. T. A. this work has been simplified. The co-operation of teachers and mothers has brought about a great change in the health conditions of our schools. Miss Louise M. Murphy, R. N., in her report of the work being done by the state P. T. A. says, "For four and one-half years the division of child hygiene has been seeking to help parents understand the physical needs of the child as well as his mental and spiritual characteristics through literature, child conferences and personal instruction of parent and class groups. It was with the special enthusiasm that our work was enhanced and broadened by co-operation with the state P. T. A. in the spring of 1926. The toddler from two to seven age, long a most neglected period in the child's life, is now given real consideration and study by parents and teachers, the school authorities and physicians. This is the time when physical defects begin to develop and malnutrition starts its destructive work and untoward mental characteristics assume startling prominence.

To send the child to school free from physical and mental defects, full of buoyancy and joy in work and play is the great desire of the parents. Last spring 2,438 children were examined in child health conferences and may defects corrected before the opening of school in September.

Th estate divisio nof child hygiene stands ready to help every parent in the work of sending each Nebraska school child to school at the opening of the term healthy in a three fold manner, physically, mentally and spiritually.

Miss E. Ruth Pyrtle is chairman of the legislative committee of the Nebraska P. T. A. The program of the committee for 1926 was centered in working for three measures, namely: The child labor amendment, educational bill, and law enforcement. The committee is also interested in the enacting of a teachers' retirement law in that it is an important step in he direction of providing the state's children with efficient teachers.

Recreation is a vastly important feature in the work of child welfare. What to do with their 'leisure time" and how best to develop their physical beings is cared for in our state through the efforts of Mrs. Fred Easterday, chairman of the recreation committee. The welfare of the child, the real object of the P. T. A., is the basis upon which all recreational activity of the national congress has been founded, she says. Safe places for the children of the community with school grounds as well as parks provided with play centers, the use of the school buildings as community centers, where one night a week is set aside for the play night of the community—these are included in the program of the recreational program of the state.

Last year seven associations in the state were active in the recreation work in their communities: Plattsmouth, Walthill, Bayard, Havelock, Valentine, Omaha and Lincoln. The Lincoln P. T. A. has probably done the most of any in recreation. As a result of their efforts, Lincoln has a recreational playground system. Last summer twelve supervised playgrounds were conducted on school grounds and city parks with a total attendance of 48,933 children covering a period of ten weeks.

With a quarter of a century and more of effort by the National Congress of Parents and Teachers for the welfare of the child in the home, school and church the organization has passed into history. High hopes are now entertained for the future upon a new year of endeavor in preparation for the Golden Jubilee anniversary, February 17, 1947.

INQUEST DELAYED IN PRICE'S DEATH

NASHVILLE, Ill., Feb., 12.—(I. N. S.)—Declining absolutely to discuss his action, Dr. Paul B. Rabbenneck, Washington county coroner, today postponed indefinitely the inquest into the murder of Lorey L. Price, state highway patrolman, whose mutilated body was found on a farm near Duquoin, Ill., last Saturday.

Today's session was held behind closed doors. Names of witnesses and the nature of testimony was not disclosed.

It has been reported that several witnesses have been reluctant to appear before the coroner's jury. This led to the assumption that the postponment was made necessary by failure to locate witnesses or the refusal of some to appear.

BASIC SCIENCE BILL IS ISSUE

Interest In Proposed Law Causes Committee Call Public Hearing.

Introducer Says Measure Is Necessary For Public Welfare.

Probably no single bill before the senate has drawn so many petitions and comments from the people of the state as S. F. 61, which is more commonly known as the "basic sciences bill."

For this reason Senator Chappell, chairman of the medical societies committee has set aside Thursday evening for a pubic hearing on the bill. It is expected that the senate chamber will be completely filled on that evening with persons appearing before the committee in opposition to support the bill.

Senator Loren Laughlin is the introducer of the bill and he has given out the following statement explaining the purpose of the proposed law:

"Senate File 61, commonly known as "the basic science bill" is in substance the law enacted by the Wisconsin legislature in 1925. It passed their assembly, or lower house, with but four dissenting votes and passed the senate unanimously.

Senate file 61 provides for a preliminary examination in certain fundamental subjects of all persons seeking license as practictioners in the various lines of medicine which are subject to license in Nebraska. It is not retroactive and therefore does not apply to any M. D.'s, D. O's or chiropractors now practicing. Neither does it apply in any way to any Christian or faith healers who are not subject to license under Nebraska law since they do not engage in medical or surgical practice.

Basic Knowledge Needed.

"The bill may be compared to the standards of our colleges and universities in requiring a student to have a diploma from an accredited high school or academy showing him to be proficient in fundamental subjects before he can enter the higher institution of learning, where he may specialize in history, science mathematics, the languages. The analogy is complete when we see that all medical practitioners practice upon our bodies and no matter what treatment they may properly pursue in treating human ills, they must all first of all, diagnose the trouble. And diagnosis requires a knowledge of the basic subjects of sciences of anatomy, physiology, chemistry, bacteriology, pathology, and hygiene referred to in the bill.

"There is no attempt to discriminate between the various branches of medicine and the bill contains no reflection upon the many eminent and well qualified practitioners of the various schools of healing now operating in Nebraska."

(Signed)
SENATOR L. H. LAUGHLIN.

Examining Board.

The bill provides that an examining board consisting of five members shall be appointed by the department of public welfare. The members shall serve respective terms of "one for one year, one for two years, one for three years, one for four years, and one for five years."

The members of this board must be selected because of their knowledge of the basic sciences, and no member shall be actively engaged in the practice of the healing arts or any branch thereof.

Candidate Requirements.

Section 7 of the bill provides that no certificate shall be issued to an applicant unless he is twenty-one or more years of age, of good moral character, a graduate of an accredited high school, or possessed of an education equivalent to that before he began the study of the healing arts, and has a comprehensive knowledge of the basic sciences as shown by the passing of the examinations given by the board.

Tucker Addresses Brother Jewelers In Unique Letter

The following letter has been sent out by C. A. Tucker of Lincoln, president of the Nebraska Association of Retail Jewelers, to the members of the organization, calling their attention to the state convention at Hastings, February 22 and 23:

"Lincoln, Nebraska,

"Dear Brother Jeweler:

"Twenty-two years ago, when the Nebraska Association of Retail Jewelers was organized, "fixing" clocks was 50 cents, cleaning of new mainspring in your watch 75 cents to $1, pin tongues 10 cents, and watch glasses 15 cents to 25 cents, beer was five cents a glass and the lunch was free. Eggs were three dozen for a quarter and milk was five cents a quart. The butcher gave liver for the cat and treated the kids to bologna. The hired girl was satisfied with two dollars a week and did the washing. Women did not powder or paint, smoke, play poker or do the Charleston. The men wore boots and whiskers, chewed tobacco, spat on the sidewalks, worked eleven hours a day and never went on a strike. A kerosene lamp and a stereoscope in the parlor were luxuries. No one was operated on for appendicitis or bought glands. Folks lived to a good old age just the same and walked miles.

"Today everybody rides in automobiles or airships, plays poker, shoots craps, plays the piano with their feet, goes to the movies, smokes cigarets, drinks homemade hootch at ten dollars per, and growls about the high cost of living. They never go to bed the same day they get up and think they are having a wonderful time. This is the age of short skirts and long profits, legs and bootlegs, excess taxes and prohibition; but still and for all, she's a great old world and we're all tickled to death to be here. So let's all gather at the Clark hotel, Hastings, Nebraska, February 22 and 23, and enjoy the Hastings Jewelers' hospitality, the hospitality of the Hastings chamber of commerce, Secretary Ed Fanske's wonderful program, the Ku Ku's extravaganza and do not forget to bring mother and all the girls along to attend the meetings of the Ladies Auxiliary who tell me they have a wonderful program hidden away for the occasion.

"'Hastingly' yours,
"C. A. TUCKER,
"President."

Old University Pipe Organ Will Remain in Memorial Hall Until More Suitable Place Is Found

The old pipe-organ in the auditorium of Soldiers' Memorial hall at the University of Nebraska will not be moved although the entire building has been turned over to the department of physical education for women. There has been much shifting of equipment, offices, and whole departments this year, but the old organ, perhaps out of place in a gymnasium, will not be molested, university authorities say.

The instrument is the property of university alumni. It belongs not to one class, but to all. And it really belongs to Soldiers Memorial hall, too, for the alcove at the end of the large room on second floor was especially built to accommodate the organ, according to Prof. P. H. Grummann, director of the school of fine arts, who came to the university in 1902, the year the hall was built. The new field house, thought by many to be the logical place for the organ, is much too large for it, and the cost of repairing the instrument and installing it there would be more than its value, Professor Grummann says.

When the Trans-Mississippi exposition was held in Omaha in 1898 the organ, then new, was purchased for the temple of music by the organization in charge of the exposion. It served its purpose there, but when the exposition was over there was no further use for it. Then it was that a group of alumni suggested that the organ be bought and given to the university.

Willard Kimball, then in charge of the affiliated school of music of the university, was one of those who strongly urged that the organ be brought to the university. It was decided to seek subscriptions from alumni, and about $3,500 was raised to buy the instrument. This price was about half the amount paid for it a year before. The contributions came in promptly, according to J. S. Dales, secretary of the board of regents, who was one of the first graduates of the university and was connected with the administrative staff at that time.

The organ was brought here and installed in Soldiers Memorial hall as soon as the building was completed. Since that time it has furnished music for convocations and for a great variety of musical productions, including the presentation of Handel's famous oratorio, "The Messiah," at Christmas time each year.

Because of the difficulty of holding public gatherings in the hall, now that it is used primarily as a women's gymnasium, it is probable that the organ will be gradually forgotten. To move it would necessitate the consent of the alumni and considerable expense in repairing and installing it. But first of all, a place suitable to its size and volume must be found; and such a place does not seem to be available; so for the time being, at least, the old organ in Soldiers Memorial will not be disturbed.

Mrs. Hart Divorced Against Her Desire; Plans Film Career

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 12.—(I. N. S.)—Winifred Westover Hart, just divorced from William S. Hart, star in movie "westerners," said tonight she plans to re-enter the movies.

Mrs. Hart arrived here from Reno, where she was awarded a decree of divorce from her "two-gun man" husband.

"Yes, I plan to take up my work in the films," Mrs. Hart declared. "I have several offers to consider."

William S. Hart, jr., 4, was with his mother. Mrs. Hart said she had postponed repeatedly her application for divorce, hoping that the boy could have the benefit of his father's influence.

"I am sorry that little Bill cannot have the companionship of his father," Mrs. Hart said sadly. William S. Hart, on the screen, was the ideal of many youngsters. It's a pity he couldn't be his own son's companion and ideal. He is such a wonderful rider, marksman and lover of the out-of-doors that his companionship would have meant everything to little Bill."

Mrs. Hart, although divorced, does not believe in divorces.

"I had to do it to get the custody of my son and to open the way for my re-entry into motion picture work."

FLOWER'S SKULL NOT FRACTURED

(Special to The Star.)

YORK, Neb., Feb. 12.—O. T. Flower, Grand Island real estate man, injured in an automobile accident two miles from Utica Saturday morning, is resting as well as could be expected in the hospital here tonight.

An X-ray examination revealed that Mr. Flower did not suffer a fracture of the skull as was at first feared, though it has not yet been determined whether he sustained internal injuries.

The physicians who are attending him have every hope that he will recover.

The wife of Mr. Flower, who, with three children, was with him at the time of the accident, sustained a broken arm.

Mr. and Mrs. Flower were injured when their automobile overturned at an intersection when he attempted to dodge a car coming in at right angles with the road they were traveling. The children escaped with scratches.

They were on their way to Lincoln.

DEATH OF BALL CLEAR SUICIDE

Sioux County Attorney Satisfied and Will Drop Investigation.

HARRISON, Neb., Feb. 12.—(U. P.)—No further action will be taken in the investigation into the fatal shooting of Garfield Ball, 45, wealthy rancher, at his home Tuesday, County Attorney A. L. Schnurr of Sioux county said tonight.

"The report of the sheriff shows clearly that Ball's death was a case of suicide," Schnurr said, "and I do not expect to take further action unless something new develops."

Ball was found dead four days after he had married Miss Lottie Jones, 20, Marion, Ind., at Alliance, Neb. Their marriage culminated a romance by mail. A coroner's jury returned a verdict of suicide.

"No new evidence has been brought to the attention of the Sioux county authorities," Schnurr said, indicating that Ball's widow will be permitted to return to her former home in Indiana.

WANT VOTE AT SPRING PRIMARY

Backers of 18-Member Council Would Force Early Decision.

An attempt will be made to bring the proposed amendment to the city charter calling for a council of eighteen members and a mayor, to a vote at the spring primary election. Commissioner E. E. Duncan, candidate for mayor, will base his campaign on opposition to the plan, he said.

"I intend to make one of my campaign planks the present form of city government," the commissioner said. "I am absolutely opposed to anything that will savor of a debating society in city government. Such a council will be nothing but a bureau of argument with little if anything possible of accomplishment. It is a backward step and as Lincoln is now making rapid forward strides it will not do to start backing up."

Friday one of the sponsors of the petitions asking that the proposed amendment to voted on at a special election, called at the city hall and withdrew the petition. While there he asked the mayor if the council would submit at the primary without sufficient petitioners. "Absolutely not," he was told, "but the council will submit it at the May election without the required number of signers, if it is desired."

Petitions to have he proposal submitted at the primary election have been in circulation for several days.

This is not only true in Lincoln proper but equally so in University Place and Bethany, where some who were planning on submitting another proposal, have given up the idea.

Labor leaders Saturday night were still working on the petitions they have out and were getting them well filled. They will submit a counter proposal, they declare, if the 18-member proposal is submitted. It was said that the labor petitions already have in excess of 8,000 signatures.

Farmer Calls Two Witnesses and Then Takes His Own Life

GADSDEN, Ala., Feb. 12.(I. N. S.) After making careful preparation and calling two witnesses to watch him, Ollie Shell, 47, Sand Mountain farmer, said: "I'll meet you in Heaven," and calmly pulled the trigger of a shotgun, ending his life.

First indication that Shell planned to take his life came when he called Luther Davis and Govan Lonnergan, woodcutters, from their wor kand announced he was going to kill himself.

"Do you think it's quite safe?" Shell asked the two men.

"Not according to Scripture," Davis replied; whereupon Shell said: "I'll meet you in Heaven," and pulled the trigger.

Shell was a bachelor until about three months ago, when he married Mrs. Rosa Meody, whose farm adjoined his, and who was twice before a widow. Shell left three notes, one to his wife, one to the Sand Mountain community, and the third to his brother.

CLUBS JOIN TO HONOR LINCOLN

The annual banquet and program commemorating the birthday of Abraham Lincoln was celebrated Saturday evening by the '61 club at the Grand hotel. Guests of the club were the Sons of Veterans, the Woman's Relief corps and the Grand Army of the Republic making a total attendance of nearly 150. Talks of the evening were given by Edward Crofoot of Omaha, Senator L. H. Laughlin of Beatrice and Rev. H. P. Fox of the First Methodist church of University Place.

A feature of the program was a group of selections by the G. A. R. male quartet composed of Christian Diehl, O. C. Bell, J. N. Fletcher and J. C. McBride. State commanders of the organizations present were introduced and each made a few remarks. Those introduced were J. E. Wilson of Broken Bow, state commander of the Sons of Veterans; Mary G. Weakley of Lincoln, state president of the Woman's Relief corps; and J. O. Moore of Milford, state commander of the G. A. R.

Besides the selections by the quartet Mrs. R. C. Van Kirk sang several numbers accompanied by Mrs. Hilda Chowens. The invocation was given by Rev. Harmon Bross. Singing of "America" opened the program and singing of "Auld Lang Syne" closed the affair. Lee Bayse, president of the organization, introduced Judge George A. Eberly of the state supreme court, who acted as toastmaster.

In his address Rev. Mr. Fox discussed briefly foreign policies of this nation, the agricultural situation, prohibition and the growing tendencies of materialism in America.

Before democracy can be considered even partially successful the old proverb of "Equal protection for all and special privileges for none" must be made more valid, Rev. Fox asserted in speaking in connection with agricultural relief declaring that the government was protecting capital and corporations and permitting the farmer to shift for himself.

Thus, the speaker said, capital is granted and guaranteed protection and special privileges while the laboring farmer who supplies the people of the country with vital necessities is left unorganized.

Senator Laughlin said in a detailed review of the life of Lincoln that the people should think of him not as a perfect man but as a common man with faults and weaknesses like the citizen of today. He should be thought of as a man who had the vim, the zeal and the vigor combined with the wonderful personality to overcome these characteristics and become the national hero he is today and always will remain.

The Civil war cabinet was outlined and discussed by Mr. Crofoot. He pointed out the amazing contrast between Seward, Chase, Stanton and Lincoln.

It is the possibility of another conflict and the possibility of this nation being utterly unprepared that military drill is still kept as an integral part of the mapority of state universities, Mr. Crofoot said. He does not believe it should be abolished until it is made certain that war is completely outlawed.

HUMANE SOCIETY DEMANDS HEAVY

January Report Shows That 348 Complaints of Cruelty Were Investigated.

The society is receiving many complaints of cruelty to animals from out in the state, McClain said, and he may try to organize a number of societies in other towns. Whenever any of these cases are investigated the officers of the society or McClain do it at their own expense.

Hoppe Keeps His Cue Title

BOSTON, Feb. 13.—Sunday—(U. P.)—Willie Hoppe retained his world's 18.2 balkline billiard championship here tonight in a 1,500-point match by defeating Welker Cochran of Hollywood, 1,500 to 1,315. The match ended in the sixty-fourth inning. Hoppe's highest run was 98 and Cochran's 89.

Kieckhefer Ties.

CHICAGO, Feb. 12.—(U. P.)—Augie Kieckhefer tied Otto Reiselt for the lead in the national three cushion billiards championship tournament here tonight by winning from Art Thurnblad, 50 to 26 in 48 innings.

Reiselt lost his first match of the tournament in the first game of the evening to Gus Copulos 50 to 42.

Both of the leaders have lost one game and won six. A play-off will be necessary to decide the championship.

Art Griggs Set Take Over Izzies

WICHITA, Kans. Feb. 12.—(U. P.)—A deal for transfer of the ownership of the Wichita Western league baseball club has progressed to an extent assuring that Frank Isbell, owner of the Izzies, will retire from active participation in Western league affairs.

Two details for sale of the club are pending. Art Griggs, who piloted the pennant-winning Omaha team in 1924, and Otis "Doc" Crandall, veteran pitcher of the Pacific Coast league, are considering an outright purchase, it was announced tonight.

If Crandall does not go through with the deal, which seemed likely tonight, Griggs will buy a half interest in the club, Isbell retaining an equal interest. Under this arrangement, Griggs will assume active control. Should Crandall enter the proposed transfer, he will become player-manager.

Isbell has been a resident of Wichita 27 years, 15 of which he has been identified with professional baseball here. Iszell played infield for the Chicago White Sox nine years.

PROMOTER SITS ON ANXIOUS SEAT

Defeat Might Play Hob With Plans for Heavy Tournament.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH.

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—(I. N. S.)—Tom O'Rourke, the strong, occosionally silent, man of the uplifting and up-ending art, broke down with an announcement tonight that caused our Mr. Rickard to confine himself in a cool, dark spot, where one may shiver with or without apprehension as he sees fit. The tidings were merely that Jack Sharkey and Pat McCarthy, Boston heavyweights, had been matched to meet in a 10-round bout at Chicago on thenight of March 24, but they proved peculiarly disturbing to Mr. Rickard's peace of mind.

If Sharkey muffs this one, much of Rickard's heavyweight program will have been disarranged, for Sharkey was and is generally considered as the gent who will take issue with the awinner of the Delaney-Maloney fight. A Sharkey defeat might even send the Delaney-Maloney survivor in with Tunney-Maloney survivor in with Tunbuild-up, and that might not prove a desirable state of affairs in the box office.

Except for Sharkey, the only remaining candidate in view is Jack Dempsey, the great authority on poisons, and no one knows that gentleman's intentions, probably himself least of all.

O'Rourke figured in the Sharkey-McCarthy announcement as the eastern representative of the Coliseum A. C. in Chicago, which fact served to make everything right and regular. Otherwise, Thomas is given to making announcements at the slightest provocation.

Sharkey vs. McTigue.

It will be Sharkey's second so-called warm-up of the month, as he is down on the books to dally with Merciless Michael McTigue in the Garden on March 3. In warming up with McCarthy, however, one should exercise great care that one is not knocked cold. McCarthy, a great man when he is winning, gave Herry Persson something of a high polish just before the Swede went in with Maloney irritating Mr. Rickard considerably.

The latter, in viewing with alarm Sharkey's latest move, neither denies nor affirms the allegation that history never repeats. He simply doesn't see why history shouldn't be given the chance.

SCHULTE SQUAD CINDERS WINNER

Husker Tracksters Show Heels to College Men In Indoor Meet.

BY GREGG M'BRIDE.

University of Nebraska track athletes swept through to an impressive victory in their 1927 debut Saturday evening, Coach Henry F. Schulte's Cornhuskers outscoring an all-star Nebraska college conference team in an interesting indoor meet at the Memorial stadium, 81 1-2 to 39 1-2.

In behalf of the state college entries it should be explained that the Nebraska conference track and field men were hobbled by the lack of indoor training facilities which gave the Schultemen an important advantage in a mid-winter meet.

Clean Sweep in Two Mile.

Nebraska led the state college athletes in nine of the eleven events, scoring a clean sweep in the two-mile run when McCartney, Cummings, Hasy and Sprague led Evans of Hastings, state conference champion, to the tape. The Huskers also placed three men in the 880-yard run, low hurdles, broad jump and 440-yard dash.

The pole vault and high jump saw the state college athletes grabbing most of the points. Hastings college scored heavily in the vault with Frank Wirsig, Nebraska's crack vaulter, on the hospital list, and Doane plucked off first in the high jump.

Doane Led the Colleges.

Coach Ward Haylett's Doane college athletes set the scoring pace among the state colleges, with Coach W. G. Kline's Hastings college squad a close second. The colleges scored as follows:

Doane colleges	18
Peru Normal	4
Cotner college	1½

Nebraska Wesleyan, Grand Island college and Nebraska Central failed to score. Chadron Normal, Kearney Normal, Wayne, York college, University of Omaha and Dana college did not compete.

The 60-yard dash and hurdles furnished the real thrills of the evening. Competition was keen in the three events, with close finishes.

Ray Alf, Doane sprinter, and Captain Bobbie Stephens of Nebraska, were credited with a tie in the sprint. The pair sprinted the distance in 6 6-10 seconds, with Krause and Davenport of Nebraska finishing in order.

Krause, West Point youth, won the high and low hurdles, Phil Taylor of Doane crowding him in the highs and Frank Dailey of Nebraska running him second in the low barriers.

Set Stadium Record.

Captain Bobby Stephens of Nebraska established a new record for the stadium indoor track when he broad jumped 22 feet 7 3-4 inches. Glen Johnson of the Cornhuskers equalled his indoor mark for the 880-yard run when he was clocked in 2 minutes 1 1-10 seconds.

Ed Weir won exhibition low and high hurdle races from a set of crack freshmen hurdlers. Weir topped the timbers in the 60-yard highs to beat out Trumble of Cambridge and Keiss of Grand Island. Weir was clocked in 7.9 seconds, fast time for the indoor course. In another heat, Keiss won first, with Weir finishing second and Trumble third.

Weir repeated in the 60-yard lows, Keiss finishing second and Trumble third. Weir's time was 7 2-10 seconds.

Alva Martin, "flying parson of Otoe," was clocked in 1 minute 24 1-10 seconds for the 660-yard run. The national intercollegiate and A. A. RADIO INQUIRY IS COMPLETED

Manufacturers Expected To Deny Charges Anti-Trust Law Violation.

Investigation Of Alleged Gigantic Monopoly Under Way Five Years.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12. —(I. N. S.)—Investigation of what the government alleges is a gigantic monopoly covering every phase of the radio industry virtually has been completed by the federal trade commission, it was learned today.

Within a month final hearings will take place in New York and the government's side of the probe of activities of the Radio Corporation, General Electric, Westinghouse and other corporations during "the birth stage" of radio will be in the hands of a commission examiner.

The corporations are expected to make a general denial of violation of the anti-trust laws through an elaborate defense, paving the way, if necessary, for an appeal to the Federal courts.

The investigation started in 1922 as a result of a congressional resolution.

Importance is attached by commission investigators to a contract between the General Electric and American Telephone & Telegraph Co. covering the purchase by the Radio Corporation of all broadcasting operations of the telephone company and the inter-use of radio patents.

Takes Over Stations.

Under the contract the Radio Corporation took over Station WEAF of New York, and WCAP of Washington, broadcasting equipment at the Capital theater, Waldorf Astoria hotel and Metropolitan Life of New York, with other rights and property.

As a result the National Broadcast Co. was organized. This "R. C. A.," subsidiary, through hook-up of broadcasting stations from coast to coast, has developed the greatest system of chain transmission of programs ever conceived in the radio art.

Allegations against the radio combine hold that following the war many companies through the pooling of patents, interchange of contracts and organization of subsidiary companies, sought to parcel out the radio field looking to stifling of future competition.

The American Telephone & Telegraph, it was charged, obtained an exclusive field in the construction, operation and sale of broadcasting stations, while Westinghouse and the General Electric were to manufacture receiving sets for distribution by the Radio Corporation.

Important Legal Point.

The question of patent pooling for the purpose of preventing competition is one of the important legal points underlying the case.

Among other companies involved are the Western Electric, Tropical Radio, a subsidiary of the United Fruit Co., the Wireless Specialties, Federal Telegraph, International Radio Telegram, and the Marconi Company of America.

Should the commission decide that a monopoly exists, it would invalidate the contracts between the respondents, after which the companies would have recourse to the Federal Court of Appeals, according to E. L. Smith, who is conducting the case for the commission.

TO HEAR SHARP APPEAL FEB. 25

Supreme Court Will Consider Case Of Lincoln Man Under Death Penalty.

The appeal of Frank Sharp from the death sentence given him when he was convicted in the Lancaster District court of the murder of his wife, will be argued before the Supreme court Friday afternoon, February 25.

The hearing has been delayed several times but it has been listed on the call which was issued Saturday.

The murder took place early last spring. The body of Mrs. Sharp, who had been beaten to death, was found in the family automobile a mile northeast of Havelock. Sharp maintained that he was innocent, but was convicted and sentenced to death in the electric chair.

LITA SEEKING TO RE-OCCUPY CHAPLIN HOME

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 12.—(I. N. S.)—Lita Grey Chaplin, who fled from the Charlie Chaplin home in Beverly Hills November 30, last, will go before Judge Guerin of the Superior court next Tuesday to plead for a court order allowing her to reoccupy the home.

The petition, prepared by Mrs. Chaplin's attorneys, alleges she is unable to meet the $1,000 rent bill due February 17 on the house she now occupies in Beverly Hills.

According to Mrs. Chaplin, the only funds supplied by her husband for her support since she left him were $400 forwarded by Lloyd Wright, the comedian's attorney. These funds, in the form of a weekly check for $100 have not been cashed by Mrs. Chaplin, her lawyers admitted.

Two other developments sustained public interest in the Chaplin case. The first was an indignant denial by prominent club women of a report that Los Angeles society and club women were gathering money to help Mrs. Chaplin to pay her rent and grocery bills.

The second development was a denial by Judge Guerin of a petition by Alfred Reeves, Chaplin's studio manager, that a restraining order now in effect, prohibiting sale or removal of any of the studio property, be vacated.

OPENING THREE SALES OFFICES

Chevrolet Prepares For Increased Activity By Adding Dealers.

Make Many Changes In Staffs to Handle Anticipated Business.

Reflecting increased sales activity under the 1927 sales program, the Chevrolet Motor company has just announced the opening of three new zone sales offices located at Columbia, S C, Salt Lake City, Utah and Richmond Va. making a total of 37 zone sales offices now operating.

Possibilities of increased sales of Chevrolet automobiles in the territory embraced in the new zones are such that it was vitally necessary to create new zone headquarters, with adequately increased staffs, to handle the business, according to C. E. Dawson, assistant general sales manager of the Chevrolet Motor company.

The new zone offices will supervise more closely the activities of field forces and Chevrolet dealers. Offices will be supervised by zone sales managers, with an assistant and the necessary clerical force to maintain proper records. The opening of the new offices is in line with the Chevrolet Motor company's policy of concentrating more closely on districts where past sales indicate a rapidly growing market.

Following are the changes and appointments made in the various sales zones and regions. H. L. Horton, assistant regional sales manager of the Atlantic Coast Region at Tarrytown, N. Y., becomes regional sales manager at Tarrytown succeeding D. E Ralston, who becomes regional sales manager of the Middle West region, with headquarters at St Louis, Mo., E. W. Fuhr, regional sales manager at St. Louis, becomes Pacific Coast regional sales manager at Oakland succeeding F. M. Coats, resigned; R. L. Myers, assistant regional manager at St. Louis, becomes zone sales manager at New York City, succeeding G. H. Schmidt, who is transferred to the Atlantic Coast Regional office at Tarrytown to assist Mr. Horton; W. E. Holler, city sales manager at Los Angeles, Calif., becomes assistant regional manager at St. Louis; L. M. Dreves, zone sales manager at Los Angeles, becomes zone sales manager at St. Louis, succeeding W. J. Burns, who becomes zone sales manage at Oakland, Calif; G. H. Wallace, zone sales manager at Oakland, assumes a similar position at Los Angeles; E E Jones, sales manager of associate zone at Richmond, Va, operating under the Baltimore zone office, now heads the new zone office at Richmond; C. G. Smith, zone sales manager at Little Rock, Ark., becomes zone sales manager at Memphis, Tenn, replacing T. J. Burns, resigned; M. B. Roys, city sales manager, Chicago, becomes zone sales manager at Little Rock; P. A. Watson, sales manager of sub-zone at Columbia, S. C., operating under the Charlotte, N. C. zone office, becomes sales manager of the new zone at Columbia; C. B. Spraker, sales manager of sub-zone at Salt Lake City, operating under the Denver zone office, becomes sales manager of the new zone office at Salt Lake City.

ERSKINE SIX IN LINCOLN

New Studebaker "Little Aristocrat" Introduced Here.

A model of Studebaker's new-type car, the Erskine Six, has been received in Lincoln by the Studebaker dealer, the DeBrown Auto Sales company at 1717 O street.

This car was introduced at the New York automobile show and is said to be a distinct evolution in automobile building, an American fine car of the European type.

The Studebaker company claims that the car will develop 60 miles an hour speed without effort, that it has acceleration enabling the driver to forge ahead of the traffic the instant that the green light flashes, five to twenty-five miles per hour in 8½ seconds, and that it will travel 1,000 miles to a gallon of oil and from twenty-five to thirty miles on a gallon of gasoline.

Another feature of the car which is being stressed is the ease of handling it, for it turns in a radius of eighteen feet and it will park in spaces which to other cars are inaccessible. Riding comfort is secured because the Erskine Six is cradled in a spring base equal to 32 per cent of its entire wheelbase and has the longest wheelbase for its size of any car built in America.

In appearance the car is said to fulfill the description of being "The Little Aristocrat." A great artist, Dietrich, whose custom bodies are identified with the world's highest priced cars, designed the Erskine Six.

It is upholstered in broadcloth with broadlace trim; is equipped with hardware of bright silver finish; a dome light, robe rail and silken curtains. There are compartments for gloves or cigarettes at each end of the instrument board. The car is complete in every detail including new-type, one-piece windshield, automatic windshield cleaner; rear-vision mirror; hydrostatic gasoline gauge on the dash and co-incidental lock to ignition and steering.

ORDER ERSKINE SIXES BY RADIO

Deal for 1,000 Automobiles Arranged Across Atlantic.

Heavy Demand Manifest For Studebaker's New Car.

The largest export order for motor cars ever placed by telephone was consummated last week by the Studebaker Corporation of America by means of the new trans-Atlantic radio telephone service to London when L. J. Ollier, managing director of Studebaker (Great Britain) limited, sat at his desk in London and asked Paul G. Hoffman, vice president of the Studebaker Corporation of America, who was seated at his own desk in South Bend, for delivery of 1,000 Erskine Six cars.

As the Erskine Six, Studebaker's new 2 1-3 litre car, sells in England for 295 pounds sterling, the total amount of the order represents nearly $1,500,000 worth of business—said to be not only the largest automobile order placed by means of the new service, but one of the largest single business transactions made thus far via the wireless telephone.

The order for 1,000 Erskine Sixes represented only the April quota of these cars for Great Britain, where the Erskine has met with remarkable success following its initial showing at the famous Olympia show in October

"We could deliver this entire quota of Erskine Sixes immediately if we had them," Mr. Ollier told Mr. Hoffman during their 5,000 mile conversation. "Business is opening up here wonderfully for the new car."

Mr Hoffman's call to London was the first trans-Atlantic message telephoned from Indiana on the opening of radio telephone service to the states of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota, February 9. Until that time the service had been confined to the eastern part of the United States only.

The conversation was transmitted via long distance telephone wires from South Bend to Rocky Point, Long Island, thence to the radio station in England on wavelengths of 20 and 5,000 meters. Use of two wavelengths permits the receiving station to pick up whichever wavelength is meeting with the least interference. Communication between the English radio station and London was over the regular telephone wires Mr. Ollier's part of the conversation was received at a radio station at Holton, Maine, whence it was relayed by long distance wires to New York, thence to South Bend over the same circuit connecting Mr. Hoffman with the station at Rocky Point.

A number of Studebaker officials, including H S. Welch, manager of Export Sales, A. J Chanter, assistant to A R Erskine, president of the Studebaker Corporation; H E. Dalton, general auditor; and L. Manson, Holland distributor for Studebaker, were in Mr. Hoffman's office during the conversation and greeted Mr. Ollier, who was vice president of the corporation before taking over the sale of its cars in Great Britain

Nebraska Trappers Reap $2,000,000 This Season; Furs Dearer Than Ever

BY C. G. RICHARDSON.

Furs. Furs. Furs.

Two million dollars worth trapped in Nebraska this past season.

More valuable than when Ashley's hundred or Henry's band or others of the pre-pioneer days poled up the Big Muddy with cargoes of whiskey and beads and other geegaws to trade to the Indians for their winter's catch.

And all because Dame Fashion decrees Milady must wear a fur or fur trimmed garment in summer as well as winter.

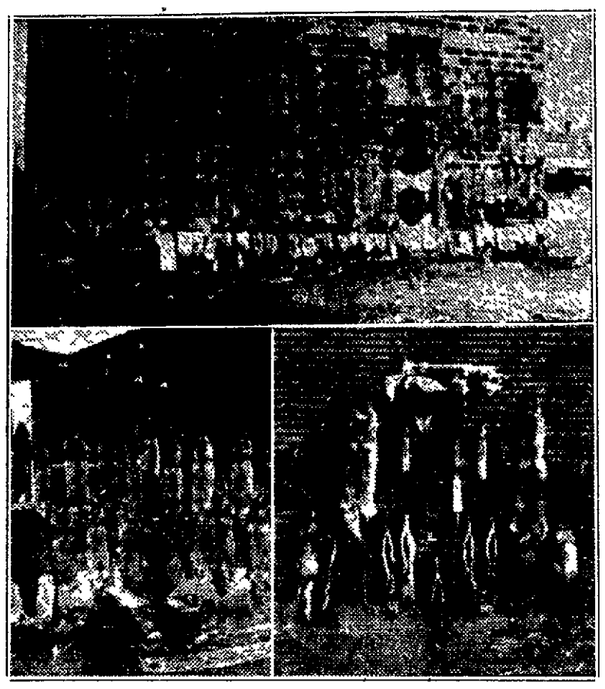

There are many fur bearers in Nebraska: Beaver, muskrat, coyote, skunk, mink, coon, fox, badger, weasel and bobcat.

The beaver, once the king of fur-bearers, for a long time was threatened with extinction. Then the law makers came to his rescue and protected him for many years, in fact until owners of timber along the streams complained of destroyed trees and damaged property. It is now permissible to trap beaver during the months of November, December and January. It is also permissible for owners of property along streams where beaver are building their dams and homes to kill them in August, September and October.

The beaver is a wary animal to trap and requires the greatest skill of the experienced trapper to land him. More than one animal has escaped by chewing off a foot. Harry Rienmuth of Broadwater caught a 75 pound individual during the 1925 season that had only three legs. Rienmuth found the den early in the season and caught two smaller animals from it But he thought there was still another and larger one left. For six weeks he pitted his skill against the old fellow's cunning and at last landed him. His time was well repaid for the three pelts brought more than $50

Coyotes His Specialty.

But Rienmuth's specialty is coyotes There are just as many of these animals in Nebraska as there ever was according to old timers. Civilization helps him to survive instead of making it harder as it does for so many wild things. Chickens, calves and sheep that belong to the farmer make just as good a meal for Mr. Coyote as jack rabbit or cotton tail and they are a lot easier to catch. Communities that consider themselves too well settled to harbor an animal of prey are subjected to his depredations more than they suspect. He can hide under a weed in daytime and sneak into the barnyard at night.

During the favorable weather last fall Rienmuth ran three strings of traps. He was up in the morning between four and five o'clock and made the round of one string before breakfast. After eating he was off again in another direction, pounding the old fliver over prairies to cover some fifteen or twenty miles to make the round of string number two. In the afternoon he was off again not to return until six or seven With more than a hundred traps spread out over 200 square miles of land he was busier than a one legged hen scratching in a straw stack But he brought in the game; sometimes two, three or even four coyotes a day. His record catch was seven coyotes and five skunks on one day.

There is a knack of trapping which can be learned through experience. Every season a dozen or so new trappers, or would be trappers, buy an outfit and start out to make big money. After the first week of disappointment they are ready to jerk their traps and quit, firmly convinced that there is not another fur bearer left in the county. Meanwhile the old hands are quietly going about their business bringing in something every day

Muskrat Trapped Out.

The muskrat furnishes the bulk of Nebraska's pelts So relentlessly has this harmless and inoffensive animal been trapped that there is danger of exterminating him The great sand hill region with its hundreds of lakes makes an ideal home for it. Here the balance of nature is well preserved for were it not for the muskrat the fish in these lakes would perish in the winter for want of air. The rat with his houses somewhere out in the lake and with his many runs leading to them drag in air under the ice so that the fish are supplied. When the rats of a lake are killed off thousands of fish suffocate during the time of thick ice.

A favorite practice of ranchers owning land with lakes on it is to sell or lease the trapping rights to some professional trapper. Sometimes they demand a percentage and in good seasons more than one rancher has received well over a thousand dollars for his share.

A number of men, foreseeing that wild game will sooner or later not be able to supply the enormous demand for furs, have started fur farms. A score or more permits have been granted by the Bureau of Game and Fish. Muskrat farming seems to be the most popular in Nebraska but in other northern states fox farming has had many followers.

Muskrats are easy to raise, they rear large families and their pelts are worth from one to two dollars so there is no reason why the business should not be profitable.

Nor is hunting wild game in Nebraska without its thrills Hunting coyotes with dogs and hounds provides as much sport and excitement as a man could wish. Harry Ewing of Morril county and Jim Sandoz of Sheridan county each ride behind a pack of lean, pencil-nosed hounds every winter. On a keen, nipping morning with just enough snow on the ground to make tracks visible the hounds have not long to wait. Mr. Coyote tries to slink over the hill and out of sight for the dogs can outrun him and he knows it. But it is too late. He has been seen Dogs and ponies string out according to their respective speeds with far in advance a slinking, doubling, panting "wolf" dodging over the hills for his life A mile or so sees the finish. Old scat or Nip range along the side of the fleeting animal who turns anon to snap at his pursuers. But in a moment the dogs are upon him. There is a brief moment of snapping and snarling and flying fur and when the ponies and men arrive there is no more left of Mr. Coyote than of a pup in a sausage factory.

FORD'S PICTURE IN SHOWROOM

A large bust picture of Henry Ford was placed in the showroom of the Hussong Motor company, 1800 O street, Monday. The picture, an oil painting eight by eleven feet is a work of art and is a striking likeness of the automobile manufacturer Mr. Hussong, who is one of the Ford dealers in Lincoln, purchased the picture through the Thomas Cusack company. The picture was painted to order.

AUTO NOTES

True circularity of the brake band can be tested by applying the brake and trying to insert a thin piece of metal, like the blade of a knife, between the lining and drum to find any spot where the lining fails to grip the blade.

Renewing the storage battery on a car is just as necessary and as normal an expense as renewing the tires

Dominance
Among Straight Eights

TWO years ago, with the coming of the Hupmobile Eight, an alert public quickly sensed the fact that here at last was an eight of new and sound simplicity—

An eight lavishly generous in miles-per-gallon; distinguished in smoothness and soft silence.

So Hupmobile quickly became the largest selling straight-eight in the world; making complete conquest not only of its own market, but taking unto itself large sections of new markets beyond.

And this will be plain to you, the first time you drive this Eight.

You will find yourself asking where else on earth you could find such super-smoothness, such surpassing ease, such a wealth of power with such a finished manner of turning it into performance.

There is a difference between this Eight and any six; and it is that final degree of distinguished performance which is bringing to the Hupmobile Eight, scores and hundreds who had thought the higher-priced six the finest car they would ever drive.

Dancing Clubs of Lincoln Plan 'Something Different' For Parties the Coming Week

To afford some deviation from the ordinary routine of "just a party," the dancing clubs have planned various affairs and entertainment for this coming week and the near future. Valentine parties are still in vogue, though toward the end of the month the holidays are becoming more scarce.

On Monday, February 14, at Rosewilde, the Merrymyx is celebrating Valentine's day. The hall will be decorated with valentine suggestions, and there will be two favor dances carrying out this idea. A lunch will be served later in the evening. Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Edwards are chairmen of the committee in charge, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. E. Erickson, and Mr. and Mrs. D. The favors will carry out the valentine suggestion, and there will be several prizes.

Paul Neyron Dinner Dance.

The Paul Neyron club will hold a dinner-dance at the Lincoln Monday, carrying out the valentine idea. Sixty couples will be seated at one large table, diamond-shaped, which will be decorated in valentine colors and favors. Large parchment panels will be placed in front of the orchestra and the ball room will be decorated with hearts of many sizes. Small hearts will hang from the chandeliers, and there will be red candles on the table. The committee for arrangements consists of: Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Clarke, chairmen, Mr. and Mrs. Will Beachly, Mr. and Mrs. John Agee, Mr. and Mrs. Frank DeBrown, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stephens. CLUBS WILL OBSERVE NATIONAL DRAMA WEEK.

Mrs. Arthur G. Christensen, Fremont, state press chairman of the Nebraska Federation of Women's clubs, makes the following announcement regarding "Drama Week," to be celebrated February 13-19:

"Dr. George H. Locke of Toronto, Canada, president of the American Library association, has written to Mrs. John D. Sherman, president of the General Federation of Women's clubs, congratulating the club women of America, on their work for better plays. The two great organizations are closely related in their support of the fine arts, in the encouragement of new writers and the patronage of the old.

"The movement on the part of women's clubs to extend the reading of drama is one that merits the hearty co-operation of every librarian," says Dr. Locke in his letter, "a co-operation which bears fruit not only in the immediate pleasure of those participating, but in the increase of a public demanding that the stage live up to the standards of taste they have developed."

"Among their other activities both the clubs and the libraries have done good work for the drama by holding competitions which encourage and give an outlet for dramatic writing."

"Only through the reading of the good plays can the public be educated to demand such plays on the stage, and the inevitable outcome of such a demand seems at present to be the establishment of community theaters The production of a play at a community theater leads to a demand for other works by the same writer, period or school."

The "radio tea," originated by Mrs. A. S. Harrington, of Omaha, state chairman of drama of the Nebraska Federation of Women's clubs in celebration of national Drama week, and which was popularized by Mrs. Harrington a year ago, now promises to become a nation-wide institution among club women and others who are interested in the observance of Drama week through the radio program.

Mrs. Harrington has arranged the following programs which will be broadcast each day this week at 3:30 from the studio of WOW:

Sunday, a talk on religious drama by Rev. C. G. Butler, and a one-act play "At the Gate Beautiful," by the students of Omaha university.

Tuesday, a talk and play by the Technical high school students.

Wednesday, a talk and play by the Omaha Woman's club.

Thursday, a play "Moth Balls," by the Bellevue Woman's club.

Friday, a talk and one-act play by the Omaha College club

Saturday, the Omaha Woman's Press club in an historical play written around facts of early Nebraska history.

Drama week is sponsored by the Drama League of America. It was inaugurated "to educate the public to the importance of the theatre as a social force and as a great educational movement."

DEPARTMENT HEARS OF YOUTH A CENTURY AGO.

The parliamentary department of the Woman's club, met Thursday in the Y. W. C. A. where Prof. F. M. Gregg gave an illustrated lecture on "Lincoln," describing the characteristic youth of a century ago The speaker showed a picture of the cabin where Lincoln celebrated his eighteenth birthday; it was here that he climbed pegs to his bed of leaves in the loft. The cabin, in which his mother died, had only a dirt floor.

Lincoln's schooling was very meagre but during the time he went he ranked at the head of his class. He earned his first money transporting people across Anderson creek in a ferry boat.

Efficient Management—Volume of Business. The little dentist around your corner, who has only three or four patients a day, makes you pay a larger part of his rent. Who supervises this dentist's work? He is the judge—you are the victim.
SMALL MARGIN OF PROFIT
The Farrington System Dentists charge you for only the dentist's time you actually use, only a small portion of the rent. You benefit by quantity of materials, not through some dental supply house that also makes a profit, but direct from the manufacturer. DEPARTMENT STUDIES PAUL, THE MISSIONARY.

The Bible department of the Lincoln Woman's club met Tuesday in Social Science hall." Thessalonians, First and Second Letters" was the subject of the lecture delivered by Prof. Lewis.

The speaker said "It was during his first missionary journey that Saul, the Jew, because Paul the Roman and the pioneer missionary to the Gentile world. The epistles or letters of Paul were written to comfort and encourage and exhort the members of the several churches, which he had established earlier; these letters are all practical and have a very definite aim.

"The epistles fall into four groups; the proctical group, which contains very little doctrinal teaching, although they portray a warm heartedness and personal touch that makes the mthe most delightful of letters. First and second Thessalonians are included in this group.

"The Doctrinal group, including Galatians, Romans, the most doctrinal of all Paul's letters as well as the most elaborate and carefully written; First and Second Corinthians, which were written at Ephesus.

"The prison group, including Philemon and Colossians, Ephesians, a rather formal letter, and Philippians. The group four, the pastoral group, planned to give information to ministers and workers out in the great field of Christianity; this group includes First and Second Timothy and Titus.

"The primary reason for the writing of First and Second Thessalonians was to remove the doubt some people had in regard to the second coming of Christ. Paul urges them not to worry about Christ's coming again and told them that would be taken care of by God; but that their duty is to be ready, to be doing his work by being good citizens and living clean undefield lives.

The Lincoln chapter is the sixth one organized in the state of Nebraska. There are 315 chapters in the United States. The American War Mothers was incorporated by act of congress approved Feb. 24, 1925. Upon the first of January in each year the corporation must make and transmit to congress a report of its years' proceedings including a full and complete report of its receipts and expenditures. It is absolutely non-political and non-sectarian. The object of the corporation is to keep alive and develop the spirit that prompted world service; to maintain the ties of fellowship born of that service and to assist and further any patriotic work, to inculcate a sense of individual obligation to the community, state, and nation; to work for the welfare of the army and navy; to assist in any way in their power the men and women who served and were wounded or incapacitated in the World war; and to foster and promote friendship and understanding between America and the allies of the World war.

The American War Mothers has established and maintain a national memorial home just outside of Denver, near Fitzsimmons hospital for ex-service men. The home is dedicated to the Gold Star mothers, and is for the use of all those who wish to visit their dear ones in Fitzsimons hospital.

BRING A. R. HATTON HERE FOR LECTURE.

Mrs. Ellery Davis, publicity chairman for state board of League of Women Voters reports the following league activities undertaken by the workers of Lincoln, the state and the union:

Mrs. Maud Wood Park, long recognized by women as a legislative genius, summed up the senatorial approval of the extension of the maternity and infancy act for two more years, as "a great victory for the short session." Mrs. Park's friends and admirers are disposed to grant to her the credit for such an achievement, especially as it was brought about in a short session. And further, these same friends say, there a few women with the brilliance and capabilities for the society world which Mrs. Park possesses, who would care to do the hard work and drudgery which some one must do that the result may be a victory.

Miss Gertrude Ely who is at the present in Bagdad indicated her continued interest in the "Youth of the Land" in a cablegram to the national board.

The Lincoln League of Women Voters brings A. R. Hatton to the city on Friday. Mr. Hatton teaches municipal government at Western Reserve College, Cleveland. He is a member of Cleveland city council and is the expert advisor of the national municipal league. He drafted the Cleveland and Cincinnati charters and the combination charter for Butte and Silver Bow county. The last named is an innovation for it combines the management of the big county seat and the county business.

The Nebraska legislature in 1925 defeated a bill for combining of Omaha and Douglas county.

The chamber of commerce and the Kiwanis club will entertain Mr. Hatton at a 12 o'clock luncheon and from 2 to 4 o'clock he will hold a round table at the chamber of commerce to which every one is invited and in the evening he will give a lecture followed by round table in the Social Science auditorium.

Thursday the Lincoln League of Women Voters will entertain the Legislative Ladies league at a breakfast in the University club at 11 o'clock.

Mrs. Carl Newlon held a round table on February 8, which was attended by eighteen people. Mrs. J. D. Hicks led and will lead again on the 15th and 22nd of February.

Mrs. J. G. Aldrich held her meeting on Thursday at 11 a. m.

The state board of the League of Women Voters held a meeting Friday evening at which eight wards and precincts reported a meeting held and all members studying either the "Federal Maternity and Infancy Bill" or the "Federal Child Labor Amendment." Next meeting, March 11, a luncheon.

A bill is now pending in the Nebraska legislature which was introduced by the members of the league asking that county officers be required to report regularly.

Mrs. Clarence Miles, Bethany, held a round table, Friday. The child labor amendment study was started at this meeting. Tea was served.

Montana ratified the child labor amendment early in the week. Five states have now ratified.

It is being agitated that a law requiring enforcement officers to take the civil service examination would be a good one.

February 19, the Grand Island League of Women Voters will discuss, "International Relations."

On February 22, Friend Workers of the League of Women Voters, will hold en evening meeting for discussion f "Legislation."

Mrs. C. H. Dietrich of Hastings, state president of the League of Women Voters will address the Havelock Woman's club, Tuesday in the city library.

To those who attended Mr. Nohavec's preliminary study for the Kansas City Little Symphony concert on Monday, the Thursday evening program was an especial treat. Mrs. Nohavec not only takes up a study of the numbers on the afternoon and evening programs, which in this case were almost entirely by modern composers, and therefore less familiar, but also gives her hearers some understanding of the composition of the orchestra. This study is being enjoyed by others besides those who attend the Thursday concerts as it serves to supplement their musical education. The next concert is March 17 which brings Mrs. Nohavec's third study hour on Monday, March 14. These preliminary study hours are free and both men and women are welcome.

Monday evening saw the second term class in batik on silks and paintex, finishing one-half their course. Visitors to the class constantly express surprise at the variety and beauty of the work done, which includes scarfs, bats, lamp shades and handkercriefs. The class members recently enjoyed observing some work sent in from the Omaha Y. W. C. A. Many people are under the false impression that it is not possible now to enter the groups for work in marcelling, basketry, china painting and batik or paintex on silks. In the group work and classes the length of term varies greatly and seldom coincides with the dates of the city and university extension classes.

That is a record to be proud of. Perhaps there were more. Some might not have come to the attention of Henry Allen Brainerd of Lincoln who compiled the figures.

Grandmothers Were Wonderful Home Makers But Old When 40 Without Modern Conveniences

This is the fifth of a series of articles on better homes prepared by the Nebraska Federation of Women's clubs following a survey of the entire state.

BY MRS. WILL MINIER.
President of Nebraska Federation of Woman's clubs.

Someone asked me the other day: "Why so much fuss over better equipped homes? Our grandmothers did not have home equipment conveniences as provided by the applied sciences of today, and they were wonderful home-makers."

True enough But do you remember how quickly our mothers and grandmothers and great grandmothers became old and how hard they worked?

Our Puritan mothers were efficient However, from early morning until late at night, their every thought was confined necessarily to the four walls of their homes because they had none of the modern conveniences which are timesavers and enable the home-maker today to spend some of her time in self-improvement. Their lives were filled with hard work which brought all too soon to them aches and pains, wrinkles and gray hairs.

Were Old at 40.

These women, efficient though they were, without modern conveniences became old at forty. These statements are based upon a study of the homes of other generations

Bruce Barton, one of America's most popular writers and philosophers, has written a very interesting bulletin entitled: "How long Should a Wife Live?" He says:

"Do you know what happened to the Pilgrim mothers, my friend? I will tell you. They died. They died young. It took two or three of them to bring up one family. The fathers were tough and lived long, but work and hardship made short work of the wives Listen a minuete! Of the men who graduated from Yale between 1701 and 1745, 418 became husbands. What happened to their wives?

"33 wives died before they were 25 years old

"45 died before they were 35 years old

"59 died before they were 45 years old.

147 Died Early.

"Harvard wives fared no better. Take the Harvard class of 1671 as typical It had eleven graduates of whom one died a bachelor at 24 Of the remaining 10:

"Four were married twice

"Two were married three times

"For ten husbands, therefore, there were eighteen wives."

It was not the fault of the husbands of Puritan days or of their wives that the above is a true story It was the result of the conditions of that day The cistern or the well in the yard, the outhouse, the wood pile and the garbage dump were the public utilities of their day.

"There is no excuse for the continuance of life-shortening methods of household labor in these days," Mrs. John Sherman, president of the General Federation of Women's clubs said recently. 'The kitchen wood-box has evolved into the huge gas-holder, or the electric power station that can furnish fuel for cooking to hundreds of thousands of homes The candle and kerosene lamps have been submerged even in the smallest towns by floods of light coming over the wires and through the gas mains at the touch of a button or the turn of a valve. The men and women are no longer forced to live by the riverside to be sure of a water supply—because we have learned to capture the running water and bring them to the service of the family."

Better Homes Program.

Because the average home in Nebraska has not taken advantage of many of these conveniences the Nebraska Federation of Women's clubs are carrying on a better equipped homes program It is comparatively easy for the average homemaker today to eliminate needless labor, to conserve her health and her energy, to build up a healthy and happy home environment by making use of the applied sciences that have been brought to her door

Content and Happiness.

No one can deny that drudgery and inconveniences in the home lead to discontent and that conveniences and relief from drudgery lead to contentment and happiness and make the home a better and more precious family possession

Mrs. Sherman, our national president, also said: "In all communities where community water works systems are feasible, it should be easy to introdduce running water and sanitary sewage disposal. Where they are not, the power-driven pump should be used to take its place.

"We want the people of America to help to get into the grain of public thought—woman thought and man thought—that running water in the home, sewer facilities, gas, electricity, proper heating systems are vital parts of the American home organization. In communities where no water works exist, we want to emphasize our slogan, 'Running water in every American home.'"

Water In Every Home.

Co-operation in the communities that are in need of water works and a planning together on the part of the men and women of the homes in the rural communities will bring into every Nebraska home running water and the other modern conveniences that make for the home's physical well-being.

If this is done, the women of today may all live in well-equipped homes and need not grow old at forty.

GET RID OF YOUR FAT

Thousands of others have gotten rid of theirs by my simple and efficient method of fat reduction without starvation diet or burdensome exercise, often at a very rapid rate and WITHOUT PAYMENT until reduction has taken place.

I am a licensed practicing physician and have made a careful study of the physiological requirements of the human body. This has enabled me to select such ingredients and in such proportion as in my opinion will produce not only a loss of weight without harm and an improvement in health, but with it an alleviation of all of the troublesome symptoms which frequently accompany and often are a direct result of overstoutness, such as shortness of breath on slight exertion, palpitation of the heart, etc., not to speak of the relief from the embarrassment of being too stout. Stout persons suffering from such diseases as Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Eczema, Asthma and high blood pressure are greatly relieved by a reduction of their superfluous fat.

My treatment will relieve that depressed, tired, sleepy feeling, giving you the renewed energy and vigor which come as a result of the loss of superfluous fat.

If you are overstout do not postpone but sit down right now and send for my FREE TRIAL TREATMENT and my plan whereby I am to be PAID ONLY AFTER REDUCTION HAS TAKEN PLACE if you so desire.

Minerva's Mail

Take Your Troubles to Minerva

The Right of Children Must Be Considered or They Will Lost Their Sense of Justice —Jealousy Not Always a Tribute — Trial Should Come Before Punishment, Says Minerva, Commenting On the Latest Movie Scandal.

A Vital Subject

This is a letter which I hope will make you sit up and take notice. It concerns the rights of children and I'd like that vital subject discussed. Any number of you think that your offspring have no rights —and few privileges. You think they owe you unquestionable obedience.

Well, I disagree and I hope there are others who think with me in this. For instance, the boy who wrote this letter is going to have his sense of justice killed deader than a door-nail if his parents don't wake up. And the worst part of it is, they are all unknowing of the harm they are doing. They simply don't think.

Dear Minerva: Can you spare a moment of your precious time to give me some advice on the bossy family question? It certainly seems to me that something is wrong when one person is constantly picked on and made the goat, while the other members of said family are neither picked on nor abused. Let me quote a few instances:

In the first place, I am a boy of seventeen; am a high senior; earn all my own spending money and pay $5 a week for board at home in addition to buying all my clothes, books and so forth. I started by carrying papers and built up a sizable bank account at this, but am now working in a store during my spare time. I have bought a flivver sedan and use it a great deal.

Now to get to the point: The other day I came home with the intention of using the car to deliver bundles for the store during a particularly hard rush—but what do I find? My sister, with nothing said to me, has taken the car for the evening. And when she finally got home with it I found that a brand new tire had picked up a nail, and although there was a spare handy, my sister had calmly driven home on the flat. Result, a good tire gone to glory. And on top of that she had left the car out and someone had stolen the stop-light, the French horn and other extras.

My sister has a good position, and it is only fair that she should pay me for the damage done through her carelessness. But she will not pay me a cent and the rest of the family uphold her in this. Now Minerva, what do you think?

Case number two: Mother insists that she have charge of all my money. When I started earning money I had a bank account of my own. But as soon as she found out about it, she made me put her down as trustee. Now that I handle my own affairs, I want to have control of my own money, but she will not hear of it. Again, is this right?

Case number three: On Christmas mother would not let me have more than $5 for Christmas gifts. I bought such presents as I could for the family. And have just discovered that mother and father had opened my bundles and thought the presents inadequate and had taken twenty dollars more from my bank account and bought presents for the aunts and cousins and sent my original presents to the charity organization.

Now I am out $20 for which I had planned another use and mother and father will not even discuss the affair with me. Or rather I am out $25. I would like to have spent about $10 on the family and chosen the gifts myself.

I was given a bathrobe for Christmas by a friend and the folks made all sorts of fun of it because it was a loud color, and finally, they took it out in the back yard and burned it.

Now Minerva what can I do with such an unreasonable family?

JOHN.

A. Might certainly makes "right" in your case, and I'm sorry. Instead of encouragement, you are getting a raw deal and not many youngsters your age can touch you for enterprise. But you know the fellow who succeeds in spite of opposition is twice as strong as the one who gets shoved along.

Your family isn't vicious; it is just careless and thoughtless. You are only "a kid" in their eyes, and have no rights. Sister is selfish and I wish you would show this letter to that family of yours. Since they are merely thoughtless, it might wake them up. If it doesn't you'll just have to grin and bear it.

You'll go ahead, earning money, taking care of yourself, and succeed, regardless of what happens. But don't let your sense of fairness be blunted, will you?' Make that a goal that you will always live up to, and remember it when you turn comes to guide and help youngsters on their way. Co-operation beats obedience any day in the week.

Here's a friendly hand-clasp for you.

How Many Agree?

Here is a description of the jealousy which meets the approval of most of us. If the very best beau isn't jealous, he doesn't love us. There you are. Lack of jealousy proves a very beautiful trust, say I, but how many agree?

Dear Minerva: Don't think me foolish, for I'm only fifteen years old and am desperately in love with a boy twenty-three. I have been going with him for almost eight months. Now don't judge me as silly, for I really don't think I could do very well without him. People have told me, and also him, that he was once a woman hater. Well, indeed he is not now. Do you think that I could have caused him to be fond of the female sex again?

I'm dreadfully jealous of him and he is not a bit jealous of me. This hurts for it makes me feel that I'm not worth being jealous of. He did say several times that there was nothing to be jealous of. Now Minerva, explain that.

And Minerva, I want to ask you this. Am I too young for him? Do you think that he, being experienced, will see the inexperienced rough edges in me and get tired of me, or rather, disgusted?

He is not my first steady beau; I went with another man almost two years.

My mother does not like this man. He is really very practical and not a bit mushy. He is saving up for our future home and wants me to fill my hope chest which he gave me. Should I take him seriously? TINY.

A. There are more fifteen year old in love with twenty-three's than the other way around, I think. Twenty-three generally looks upon anything under eighteen as a mere infant while fifteen gazes wistfully and longingly at the maturity of twenty-three. Perhaps you are the shining exception however and the man is neither childish nor insincere.

But you, my dear, you are too young to be concentrating on a hope chest or one man. Fill your chest if you wish, but for some dream man of the future. Perhaps your mother dislikes the man because she feels you should be playing with youngsters your own age, which you should.

Men Sometimes Pay.

What do I think of the Charlie Chaplin case and should his films be barred?

Half a dozen readers have asked me this question.

There is the old warning that the woman always pays, and on the other hand there is the more recent phrase, though by no means recent occupation, of the "gold digger." Of course sometime the woman pays, and sometimes she is a successful prospector whose business it is to see that the man pays. But both of these posiions—that of the payer and the gold-digger—are as often taken by men as by women.

There is, for instance, Count Salm, who has recently left for Europe with a "settlement" of several hundred thousand dollars from his wife's family. The count did nothing to earn that money, but he was paid it nevertheless. When he got it, he left—a successful bit of gold digging, and it was the woman who paid.

On the other hand, in this latest movie scandal, it is the man who pays. Shortly after her marriage, Lita Gray Chaplin set out to get a settlement of a million dollars on her son before his birth. She has now has been granted an immediate alimony of $4,000 a week. One of her accusations in her legal complaint is that Chaplin called her "a gold digger." Well?

Who am I to judge if Charlie Chaplin's films should be barred or not? It is a poor sense of justice which would take away a man's source of livelihood before the evidence, both for and against him is heard before the proper tribunal. Yet many cities are doing that very thing.

It is the business of the court, and not of any board of censors, to investigate the charges made against Chaplin, and it is not the business of anybody to ask that one of the principals should be penalized in advance. We have a fairly firm tradition at law that the accused must be proved guilty before he is punished.

This whole practice of barring films by public opinion on account of the conduct the the actors is of fairly recent application. Sarah Bernhardt was not ostracised from the stage because of her conduct off the stage. The pictures, and the acting in them are simply what they are and nothing else. If a plumber failed to conduct himself as a moral example, no one would hold that his plumbing should be taken out of our houses and that he should not be allowed to do any more plumbing. Charlie Chaplin's marital affairs have nothing more to do with his pictures, unless they are the subject of these pictures, than the bricklayer's moral conduct has to do with the laying of his bricks. The action taken in the moving picture field, and nowhere else, is more than unjust—it is stupid.

Questions In Brief.

Bertha: Yes, negroes are admitted to the Phi Beta Kappa scholastic fraternity.

Fred: The specific gravity of a substance is the ratio of weight of a given bulk of any substance to that of a standard substance. The substance taken as the standard is water for solids, and liquids, air or hydrogen for gases. There are, however, numerous other ways of obtaining this relation, as by the use of the pycrometer and the hydrometer.

Doane Notes

Dr. Margaret E. Thompson Sheldon, '86, of Lincoln, a trustee and former dean of women of Doane, was a guest of president and Mrs. Dean Monday. On Monday afternoon, under the auspices of the Daughters of the American Revolution, Dr. Sheldon gave a talk on "Some High Lights in the History of Nebraska," in the reception room of Gaylord hall.

The combined A Capella and training choirs have begun work on a lenten cantata, "From Olivet to Calvary," by Maunder, which will be presented on Good Friday night, April 15.

The officers of the Lincoln-Doane club are planning a mid-winter banquet for February 17, at 6:15, at the Grand hotel. Doane graduates and former students living in Lincoln, Havelock and University Place, including all formerly connected with Gates college, who are now a part of the Doane alumni, have been invited.

A large portion of the Congregational churches of Nebraska are planning a "Doane Day," on February 20, at which time the cause of the college will be presented by the pastor or an outside speaker and a special fund raised for current expenses.

Thomas Doane Perry, '97, the oldest son of President Perry, now secretary of Bigelow, Kent, Willard & Co., consulting engineers of Boston, Mass., has had published in the magazine of Mechanical Engineering a long article entitled "Technical Training in Woodworking." This article is a summary of replies to a questionnaire sent to 750 public schools, colleges and universities by the wood industries division of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

Dr. Henry P. Fairchild, '00, professor of sociology of New York university, visited his parents, Dr. and Mrs. A. B. Fairchild, a few days during the past week and spoke in chapel Wednesday morning. Dr. Fairchild stated that bigness for its own sake is the thing which Americans have been inclined to worship, but this is not to be commended. He said that quality is the thing to be commended, and only if we have quality is bigness to be desired. Professor Fairchild congratulated Doane upon maintaining quality, while at the same time she is increasing in numbers.

A. F. Thiel, associated with the plant pathology department of the College of Agriculture of Lincoln, has arranged for the services of Phil Taylor, a junior in Doane, for the coming summer months. Wilfred Alf, a Doane senior, worked in that capacity last summer and will continue his services this summer along with Taylor. The activities of this department carry the young men to all parts of the state.

Mrs. D. B. Perry writes from San Diego, Cal., and reports that Chancellor and Mrs. Samuel Avery, '87 (May Belle Bennett, '91) have arrived there, and that Chancellor Avery is far from well. Mrs. Perry also writes that her second son, Carl, who has been residing in England the past few years, is at present in Switzerland fighting tuberculosis. The family is anxious about him but hope that within six months or a year he will find recovery. Carl Perry graduated from Doane in 1906.

Books continued to arrive last week for the Doane College library as a result of the drive started a month ago. Two sets of books arrived from extreme distances in the United States. One group came from Mrs. G. A. Fisher of San Diego, Cal. The majority of her book donations are related to the music field. These gifts were appropriate, as Mrs. Fisher was the first music teacher in Doane college in the early 70's. The other group of books arrived from Miss Lorena M. Dillon, ex. '94, of Newton Highlands, Mass. Dr. Goodspeed's modern translation of the New Testament arrived with his compliments last week. Professor Irving Fisher of Yale university offered to send the Doane library a copy of each book of which he is the author. Professor Fisher is one of the leading economists of America.

The Doane string quartet is preparing a new program and will appear in several week end concerts in the spring.

Reports concerning A. H. Bissell, who had charge of the greater Doane campaign in 1922-23, continue to come in and are of a most favorable nature. Mr. Bissell has established an office in Louisville, Ky., and personally conducts large financial campaigns with a number of assistants continuously in his employ. It is reported that since leaving Doane Mr. Bissell has organized and completed two or three important campaigns for colleges.

C. Burdette Wolfe, of the violin department, will give violin lessons to a class of pupils in the public school of Crete.

Hastings Notes

The affirmative debate team won a 3 to 0 decision over the Kearney Normal negative team at the college chapel Wednesday night. The Hastings team was composed of Robert Bell, Chicago; Louis French, Hastings; and Lyle Ashby, Hastings. Kearney was represented by Clinton Gitchell, Clarence Lindahl, and Lee Harbottle. Prof. H. M. Cunningham of the college faculty acted as chairman. The judges were J. A. True, McCook; C. K. Morse, Curtis; and Don R. Leech, Harvard. The Hastings negative team debated at Kearney on Thursday night. The next home debate is scheduled with Midland for February 22.

The regular weekly Y. W. C. A. meeting was held Thursday morning in the college chapel with Margaret Morton, '27, Doniphan, in charge. Mildred Neller, '30, Beemer, sang a solo. The reviews of two books, "Are You Rectangular or Round?" and "The gift of Leadership," were given by Ruth Ebersole, '28, uperior, and Gertrude Bechtel, '30, Hastings.

"The Troubadours," a musical organization, is working hard in preparation for the production of "Sweethearts," a comic opera by Victor Herbert. The cast includes: Freda Tricson, Cheyenne, Wyo.; Horatio Farrar, Hastings; Phyllis Gillette, Holdrege; Laurens Williams, Gothenburg; Ned Greenslit, Hastings; Mary Newell, Hastings; Luther Keplinger, Denver, Colo.; William Tempel, Seward; Cleo Talbert, Hastings; Eva Crissmen, Hastings; La Verne Talbert, Hastings; Hazel McKay, Hastings; Edna Moore, Alexandria; Marie Tippin, Ord; Elloulse Mitchell, Hastings.

"Hurdling the Barriers," or how are students able to resist temptation, was the subject discussed at the regular college Y. M. C. A. meeting last Thursday, under the leadership of Laurens Williams, Gothenburg.

Mikhail Mordkin, world famous male dancer, and his Russian ballet dancers will appear with a company of sixty, and a symphony orchestra, at the Hastings municipal auditorium, February 14, under the auspices of th ecollege conservatory of music.

Will Plant Section Sawyer-Snell Tract in Spring

Planting the second section of the Sawyer-Snell park southwest of the city will begin as soon as the frost is out of the ground and workmen can work the ground. The tract pictured above comprises nineteen acres and lies immediately south of the Humane society shelter at Hatch street and Park boulevard.

The reproduction of the planting scheme is from a drawing prepared by the city engineering department under the direction of Phillip Edinborough, assistant superintendent of parks.

Further development of the Sawyer-Snell tract southeast of the city and which is pierced by Park boulevard, will be under way this spring, according to Phillip Edinborough, assistant superintendent of parks. The tract to be developed will comprise about nineteen acres immediately south of the Humane society shelter. The first development is a tract of about thirty acres at First and South streets. The third piece lies to the south of this, west of the boulevard and comprises about fifty acres.

The plan of development adopted for the second tract is similar to that used for the first. There will be heavier forestation, however, Mr. Edinborough said, because of the differences in the ground and the purposes for which it will be used. It is to be for picnic purposes mostly the north tract is more for play purposes.

Entrance on Boulevard.

The entrance to the park will be off Park boulevard, and this will be the only method of ingress and egress.

When he chose the trees with which to border the park, Mr. Edinborough had in mind a type that would be rapid growers and soon screen the railroad tracks to the east and west from crowds and at the same time produce a pleasing effect on passengers who would see it from passing trains.

Two rows of trees will be used, honey locust being alternated with Norway poplars, which are fast growers. In the course of time these will come out and only two rows of honey locust will remain. These, however, will be properly spaced, Mr. Edinborough says, and will provide equally good a screen as provided earlier by the rapid grower.

Th driveway skirting the playground for children in the middle of the tract also will be lined with trees. They will be of the same species and arranged in the same manner as those edging the tract, but there will be only one row on each side.

When entering the park the visitor will be met with a cluster of barberry bushes where the drive divides. These will be reinforced with a small group of red cedars, which are also to be used as a bank behind the trees wherever the drive curves away from the straight line as it encircles the tract. Cedars also will be used at a number of places on the edges of the playgrounds.

To the south of the drive and almost midway between the two ends will be a row of pines between the cedars and the border. At other places there will be tamarack, Siberian dog wood ,snow berry, golden and black alder, and Indian currant, so arranged to present a picture in landscaping, when seen in connection with the flowering shrubs that will be placed here and there. Mr. Edinborough said that one of the trees that will add a touch of beauty to the layout will be the Chinese Tree of Heaven, or ailananthus.

Will Have Drainage.

The plat shows the tract divided by a ditch. This will be widened slightly and deepened sufficiently to carry away all water that comes from higher sections of the city, even as far away as South street and Sheridan boulevard. It will be deepened through to Salt creek, he said, and should provide sufficient drainage to prevent overflows.

Dirt obtained by deepening the ditch will be used to fill some of the low places. Plantings along the ditch will not be made until after the ditching has been finished. There the same scheme used elsewhere will prevail here, however.

Through an arrangment with the Humane society, sewers already have been installed connecting the property with the sewage disposal system of the city. This will mean sanitary conditions second to none, Mr. Edinborough says.

Rustic bridges will span the ditch.

Miss Hazel Brittell, and distribution of valentines, was followed by an address on Abraham Lincoln and the sacrifice made by those who went down with the Maine.

Refreshments preceded the dancing which closed the evening.

On Wednesday evening, February 23, the post and auxiliary will meet in joint session. The two organizations will take part in a tribute to Charles A. Fraley, who lost his life in the World war, and in honor of whom the post is named.

"A New Horizon Every Week" was Chancellor I. B. Schreckengast's subject as he addressed a group of Wesleyan students Wednesday evening in Huntington hall. "A new horizon comes to college men and women every week. There are horizons you haven't discovered that you should discover. There is an adventure of faith in the unknown when you are venturing out—that is creating a new horizon. That is setting the stake farther out. It is possible to make experiences add to your life."

Chancellor I. B. Schreckengast and Dr. M. E. Gilbert went to Grand Island to attend a Methodist Men's council of the Omaha area, held February 10 and 11. Three thousand men attended the meetings. The following speakers addressed the council: Ralph Conner, Pat M. Neff, Bishop Robert E. Jones, Walter E. Pierce, Edward A. Steiner, Bishop Frederick T. Keeney, Bishop Edwin H. Hughes, E. Dow Bancroft, Hugh Dobson, Will Winton Alexander, Frederick F. Shannon and Bert Edward Smith. Chancellor Schreckengast presided at the Thursday night meeting.

He said: "What we want in Mexico is the right hand of fellow-ship. A new day is coming in Mexico. I feel hopeful about the Mexican situation. I am glad America is not thinking of sending her soldiers there. The people in Mexico encourage religious work that is vital. There is a great national spirit there that gives Mexico a chance to climb to the top of the ladder."

Whittall Rug Loom Exhibition—

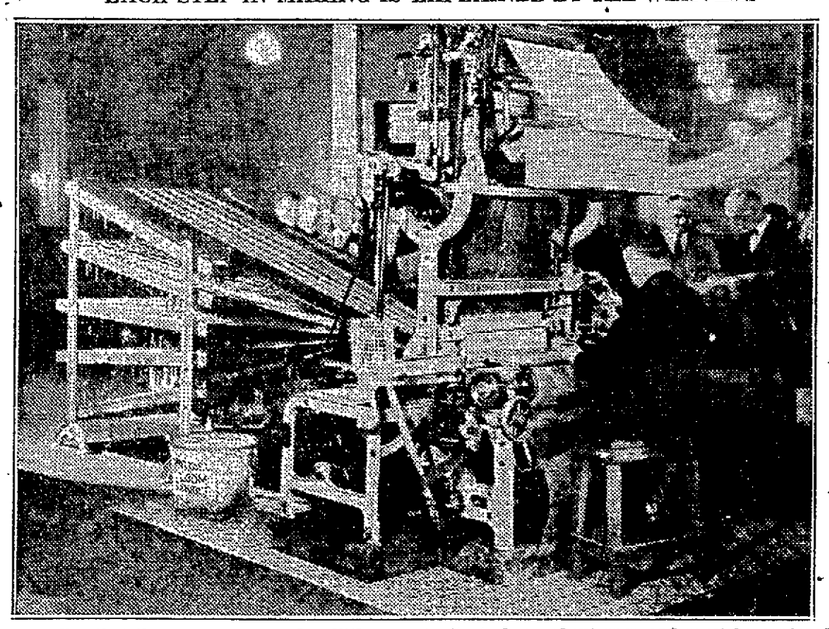

INTERESTING! UNUSUAL!

At Hardy's all This Week

On a special Pierce-Arrow bus, the Whittall Exhibition Rug Loom arrived here Wednesday. This special equipment, weighing more than 18,000 pounds and valued at approximately $40,000.00 will be here for one week, as an educational exhibit from the M. J. Whittall Associates, Rug manufacturers of Worcester, Mass. It has taken three days to assemble this loom and it will be ready for inspection tomorrow.

To our knowledge, it is the only rug loom ever built for educational and exhibition purposes. Carpet and rug looms and more especially those which weave the finer grades of fabrics, seem almost gifted with human intelligence. It is an interesting sight to watch this loom handle the hundreds of different strands and place each one exactly where it belongs.

EACH STEP IN MAKING IS EXPLAINED BY THE WEAVERS

We realize that the average person has little opportunity to learn about rugs and must be confused by the wide range of prices and the many trade-names of weaves. It is our constant desire to help you make your dollars last longer and go further. That is why we have arranged to have this WHITTALL DEMONSTRATION. Mr. Henry Coley and staff have had years of experience in weaving the famous Whittall Rugs. They will show you where quality lies hidden in a fine rug and where it is omitted in a cheap one. They will explain the difference in yarns and show you why good yarn and poor yarn can be spun from the wool of the same sheep. They will tell you why the same dyes can make either fast or fugutive colors. Come, and learn for yourself how to judge the quality of a rug.

Indorsed By Colleges, Schools and Civic Organizations

This exhibit and tour, which will require two years' time and include all of the principal cities in the United States, has been seen, appreciated and indorsed by educational, civic and municipal authorities wherever it has been booked.

We extend to such organizations, especially all of the schools, a special invitation to visit the store during this exhibit. Teachers may arrange for special appointments for their classes by phoning B6607. Everyone is cordially invited—COME.

Nebraska Has Erected a Magnificent Capitol and Extended Its University Campus, and Lincoln Must Give Them the Background

BY LULU MAE COE.

It's an impressive walk south on Fifteenth street from O toward K street, with Nebraska's new capitol building rising at the far end, a magnificent stone concentration of the power of the state.

Unfinished as that building is ,it is indeed an indifferent or a disinterested person who can walk those four blocks ,even in the unsoftened and glaring sun of midday, without a realization of the symbolism of that sturcture. It represents the state, builded on firm foundation, constructed with care and thought of a future, designed in its beauty.

When the world is dark, and only the meagre little light shines above the door, with the pure, austere lines of its architecture dimly outlined in the darkness, it is not only the sentimental who feel a slight inward quiver, a desire to pause a moment to appreciate classic beauty, to remember that out of the prairies has come this monument to the state that is. It isn't the silly or the foolish ones who gaze on that panel of the onward western trek of the pioneers and then raise their eyes toward the heavens where the tower shall some day point.

In those moments, Nebraska's capital isn't a thing of steel girders and carved panels and $8,000,000. It is the thing we are building because men and women dared to ford rivers, to deny themselves beauty, to believe, to dare to foce life with a laugh three score and more years ago.

But it needs space, this creation of modern minds, even as we of the plains long for their unbroken lengths in the mountains . It needs vistas, so that it can be seen. It needs a spot from which it can look down on lesser sights, because it is a patrician, this building.

A diamond is no less a diamond because it is in a coal heap. But platinum lends it fire and color. Another Ponselle or Raisa may be singing in a garden today But the Metropolitan or Chicago stage gives them background, and wider appreciation.

Must Pay for Growth.

However, a city clinging too closely to it can hamper its effect. The city can not appreciate the charm of that huge structure if it must all but stand at the foundation and peer up, like another Jack gazing upward at a beanstalk. It is like an old master whose are can only be appreciated in fullest degree at a distance.

People must pay for growth, however. In money, of course. A Utopia where one might realize dreams without sordid consideration would be the perfect state. We've not come to that point, and perhaps it might be stultifying did we. No, we have to pay money, for our improvements.

Even more, all of us must pay in enthusiasm and energy and vision. We must give ourselves, if Lincoln is to grow in beauty as well as in building permits. Those who have had faith for many years, and who have had the unusually fortunate pleasure of seeing their faith justified ,have provided the first leavening. In their discerning interest, they've pointed the way, these men who could visualize the oak in the acorn.

It's our part to give of our interest and eagerness and farsightedness now. Without leavening, a loaf is a flat, useless, unsightly affair, but it takes more things than a little yeast to make a light, crusty browned loaf. It's ours to help with the crust and the browning.

Lincoln within the last few years, few compared with the years of its growth, has created a central north and south shoppin gcenter.

In proportion to the size of Lincoln, it is doubtful if any thoroughfare elsewhere has seen the construction of so many splendid new buildings within so brief a space of time. Lincoln rushes down town each morning to see if another new building is in process of construction, and it is as interesting as a game to watch story being piled on story with such amazing speed.

Lincoln's construction has been of the permanent type. All of the new buildings under construction and contemplated will serve for generations. They've been erected from the standpoint of beauty as well as utility. The exteriors lend attractiveness to the street; their interiors concentrate the downtown population of the day about this street.

After the erection of the two large department store buildngs on Thirteenth, the Buck was erected. The next building of note was the National Bank of Commerce. Last year, the Hotel Cornhusker was opened on M and Thirteenth street. Within the past year, permits for the erection of the sixteen-story Sharp building and the Federal Trust structure of a dozen stories were taken out. During the last week, announcement was made of the new Stuart office building and theater.

The city has done well by its business center. No one need be ashamed of it. In fact, it is superior in size and appearance to many cities whose actual population is twice that of Lincoln. It has an air of prosperity and progressiveness lacking in many retail commercial centers, even though their wealth may be equal or greater, because Lincoln knows that seeing is believing. Visualization means more than all the fine tales of the best boosters.

Plan Already Outlined.

That outstanding building has been given us, and we should make the city in its vicinity worthy of it. It will, of course, but it would be a worthy ideal to give the building setting and landscaping while it is new, so that all might be new together, and all might grow old together.

The civic affairs committee of the chamber of commerce have seen the need that the capitol brings with it, and the members have made plans to meet it. It's not a simple project, but it is one that can be carried to completion without undue difficulty with the enthusiastic co-operation of Lincoln's residents.

To afford the capitol building a fitting approach from the north, an extra half block of ground on each side of Fifteenth street from K to L streets would be taken in, according to plans outlined by Frank D. Eager during the past week. In this parked space it is planned to erect the monuments to the G. A. R, the Spanish War veterans, and the World war veterans, and to place the statue of Abraham Lincoln, which stood on the old capital grounds. That would make the space the patriotic center of the city.

It has been said that the extra half blocks on each side of Fifteenth street would extend from K to M streets, but Mr. Eager is doubtful of this. The angle of vision from Fifteenth and L streets is sufficiently wide to take in the width of the capitol without difficulty.

At L street, Fifteenth will return to its present width of 120 feet. When the project is completed, that 120 feet will extend from L to R streets, where it will meet the university campus and at the had of which will be the very fine new library building planned for the college. The two blocks from L to N streets under this plan would be reserved for buildings of semi-public nature.

The vista down the street, either from the capitol steps or from those of the proposed library, would be a splendid thing. Therein would be embraced seven blocks, which would form the civic center of Lincoln, but two blocks away from the center of the shopping district. The wide avenue would form a popular promenade or an excellent parade grounds for special occasions, being somewhat on the plan of Pennsylvala avenue in Washington.

"There is no sentiment on the committee for a 200 foot street.

"On the 120 foot street, there will be a paved stretch 80 feet wide, which would be an excellent thing for any patriotic celebrations."

The 120 feet is the width from lot line to lot line. Off of that width is taken five feet for the lot line on each side, ten feet for sidewalk on each side, an unusually wide sidewalk which is valuable for spectators in watching any procession or for strolling along the real promenade of Lincoln, and five more feet for sod on each side.

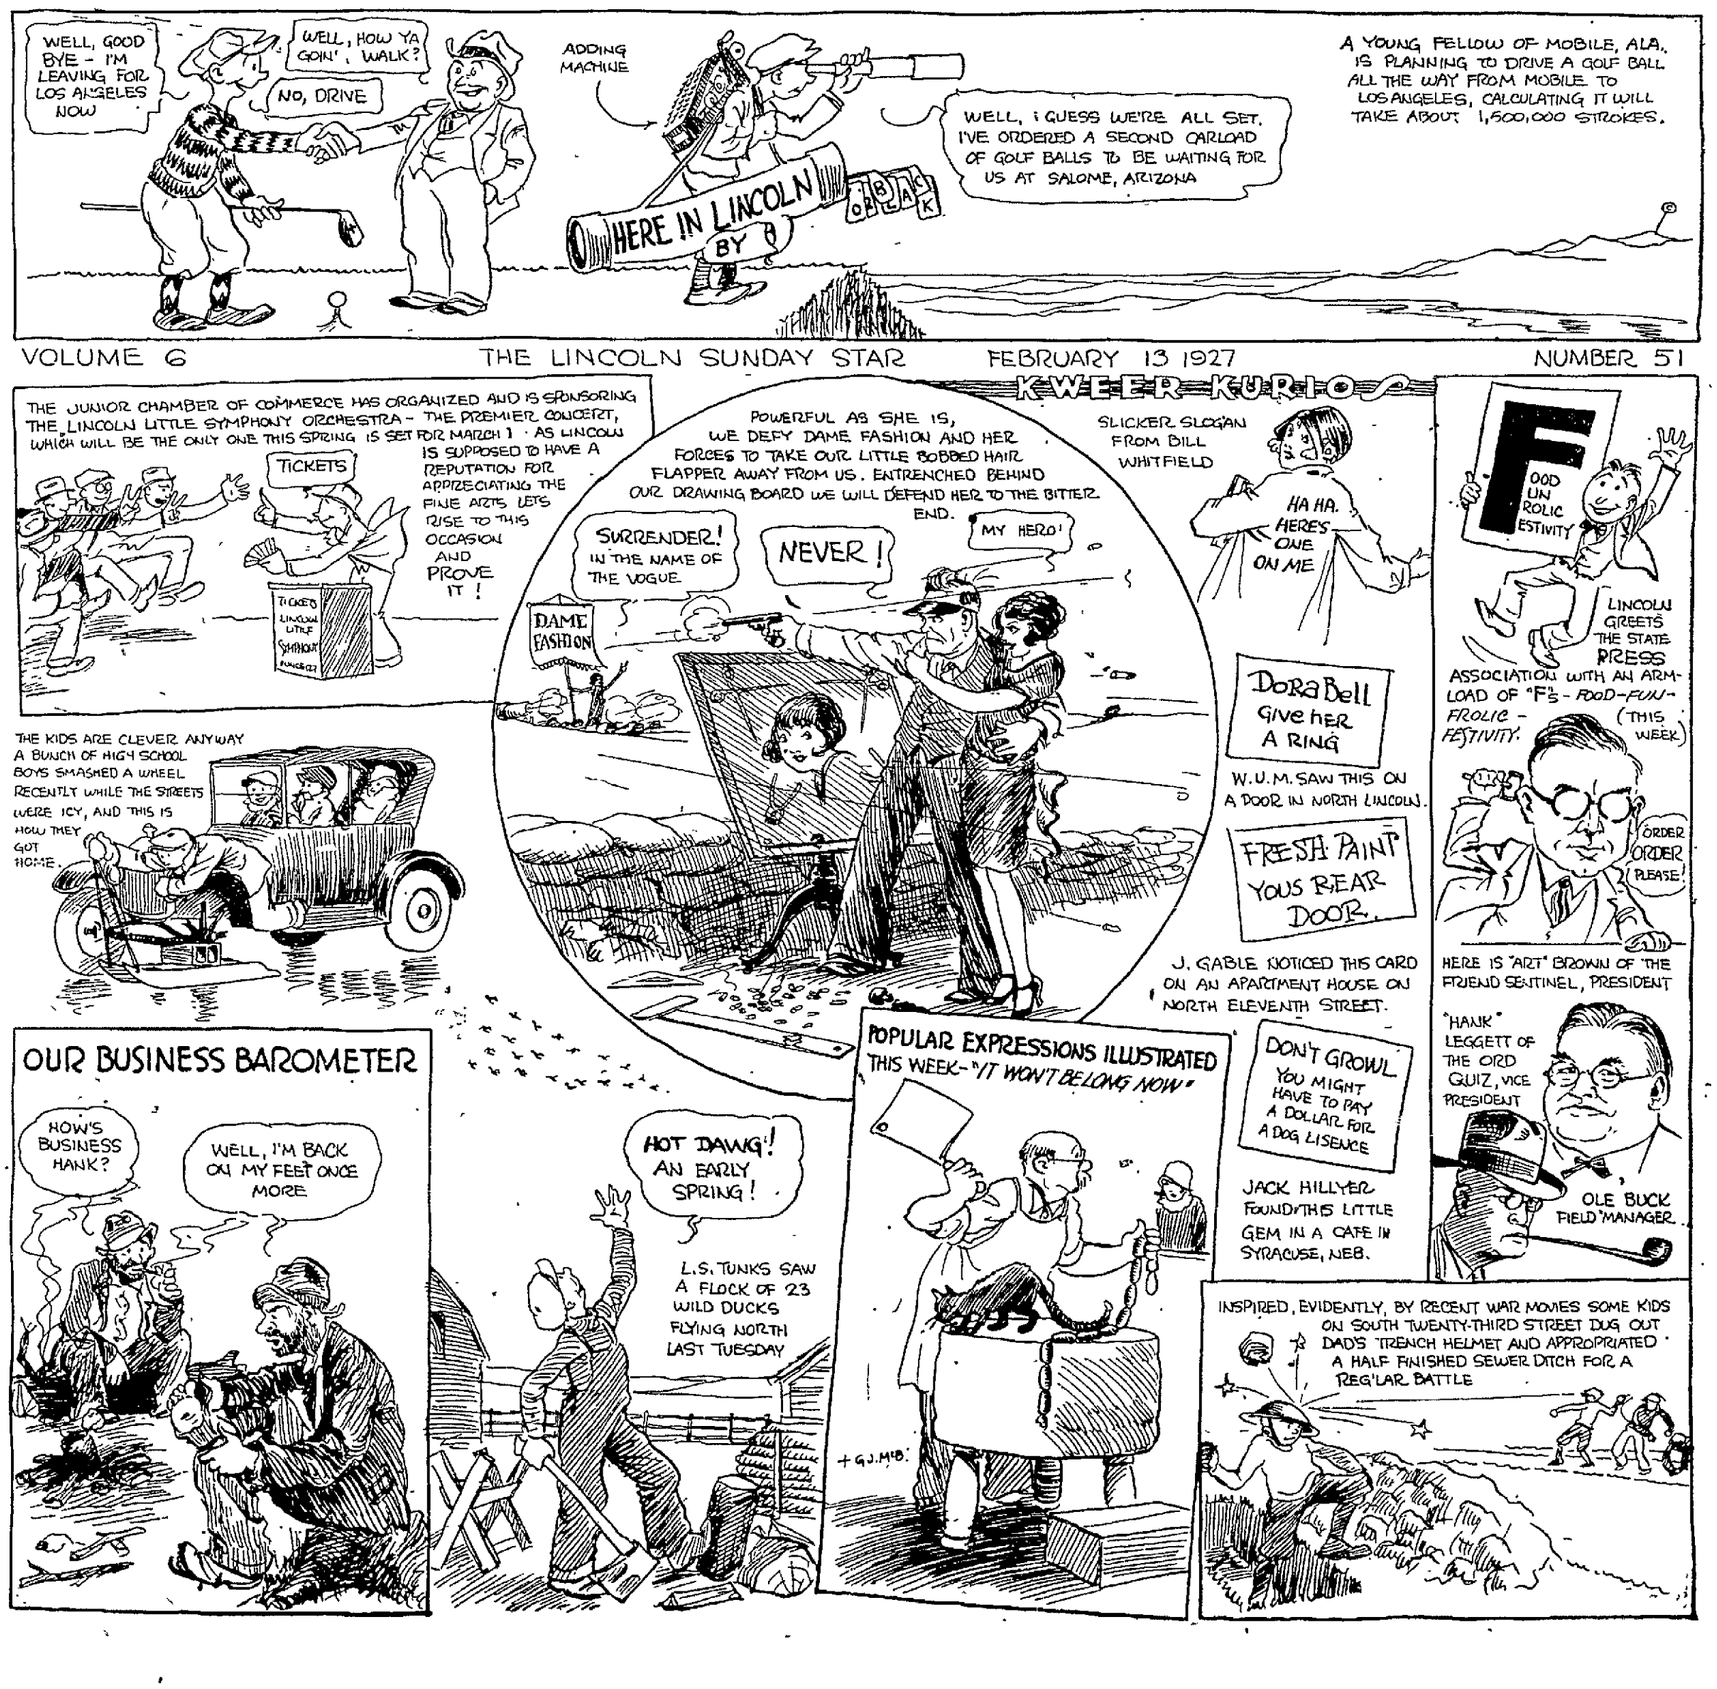

According to Mr. Eager, the cost of such improvements would be about half a million dollars. It would be paid for by money raised from an assessment on the benefitted property, together with a suitable contribution from the city.

Five hundred thousand dollars is a fortune to those of small incomes, but it isn't a formidable sum for such improvements. That amount of money means that two of Lincoln's most interesting centers, the university campu sand the capitol, shall be linked by a broad boulevard, and that Lincoln shall show its pride in these contributions by giving each the background to which it is entitled and shall realize that beauty is as good an advertising agent as buildings.

An Opening The First Need.

Frank D. Tomson has outlined the desirability of making Fifteenth street a longer thoroughfare, not as Herbert Schmidt of the pianoforte department will give a recital Monday evening, February 21 in the Temple theater.

Many former students and friends of the school were entertained by members of the faculty during the Nebraska Music Teachers' association meeting held last week. Lillian Polley entertained for Percy Rector Stephens at the home of Mrs. E. L. Cline Monday evening and also on Thursday evening entertained Jane Pinder of Grand Island. On Wednesday evening Ernest Harrison entertained Hugo Kortschak and Katherine Kimball entertained on Tuesday Mrs. Howard Rushton, organist of the First Methodist church of Omaha.

Hazel Brittell, student in the dramatic department, on Wednesday evening read at valentine parties for the Veterans of Foreign wars in the Odd Fellows hall and also at Grace M. E. church.

The school of music trio consisting of Ethel Owen, Harriet Neweus, and Emma Strangman played at the Country club Thursday evening. Mollia Swanson, student with Vera Upton sang before the Spanish War Veterans at their meeting in Walsh hall Friday evening.

Guarantors and friends were invited last week to attend a performance at the Auditorium theater in Chicago given by popular singers. After the second act of Tosca, the steel curtain was lowered a pulpit brought before it and Samuel Insull, president of the Chicago Civic opera, walked out and delivered in a strong, clear voice, a speech of which the most salient parts were: The promise of a new opera house and recital hall; the fact that the guarantee fund has been raised for the next five years; the number of performances given during th past five years; the fact that the attendance has been greater this year than ever before; that hte season will begin next year November 3, and will continue for twelve and a half weeks; and that the list of artists will be the same next year as this year.

A greater recognition of American composers of church music is urged as a feature of the national Music week, May 1 to 7. It is suggested that church musical services consisting entirely of American compositions be prepared by organists and choir masters for May 1, the opening Sunday of Music Week. As a basis of this program, each organist or choir master is asket to elect for performance what he think the best American works, in accordance with the following scheme: Three organ pieces, three hymns of American composition and three vocal numbers including two choral numbers and one vocal solo.

The Seattle Symphony orchestra under Carl Krueger has made tremendous progress in a short time. In a recent concert, it acquitted itself most creditably with that exceedingly difficult score, the Rimsky-Korsakoff Scheherazade suite. At this concert, were presented two novelties which have not been heard in the east—"The Marriage of the Pigeons" from Braunfel's opera, "The Birds and Crisantemi," a youthful work for strings by the late Giacomo Puccini.

Geraldine Farrar, who has been invited to sing as a guest this season at the Staatsoper in Berlin, will appear in three of her most famous roles, Madame Butterfly, Tosca and Carmen. Miss Farrar's teacher, Lilli Behmann, a world famous artist in her day, is still alive and actively teaching in Berlin.

On the proposal of M. Herriott, now the French minister of public instruction and fine arts ,the centenary of the death of Beethoven is to be celebrated publicly in Paris.

RADIO DIGEST.

Radiograms.

A radio receiving set the size of a package of cigarettes may become part of the equipment of policemen in Passaic, N. J. The one-tube set will contain batteries and collapsible ear phones. A wire will connect it to the patrolman's badge as an aerial and another with a small red light strapped to the wrist.

Amateur and commercial radio stations located outside of the influence of the big 100-kilowatt transmitter used to send wireless telephone messages between New York and London can listen to the conversation. Anyone tuned in on the powerful station has to desensitize their receiver so that it is impossible to pick up the London to New York side of the messages.

Conversion of Current.

Battery eliminators are designed to convert alternating current into direct current, so that it will be suitable for the operation of receivers. The first step in this conversion of alternating current to direct current is to pass the current through the rectifier, which is a device that permits current to flow in only one direction. When the current is flowing in the proper direction it passes through the rectifier without hindrance, but when the current reverses, the rectifier chokes it off and no current flows in the circuit. The current delivered by the rectifier is a series of electrical puns following each other in rapid succession. This pulsating current, while always flowing in one direction, is just as unsuited for the operation of radio receivers as alternating current, because the variations in the current produce a very decided hum in the loud speaker. The second step in converting alternating current into direct current is to pass the pulsating current delivered by the rectifier through an electrical filter, the purpose of which is to smooth out the pulsations and deliver direct current, which is almost pure direct current from a filter which is sufficiently pure for the satisfactory operation of radio receivers under all conditions requires a filter system which is quite costly. This explains why the best eliminators are so expensive.

Radio Digest

For the Notebook.

A makeshift vernier may be made with an ordinary lead pencil which has an eraser on it. The rubber is placed against the panel so as to touch the edge of the condenser dial and slowly rolled between the fingers.

Adding water and charging the battery are the two main requisites to keep it in good condition. Add pure distilled water to the battery every ten days or so, depending on how warm the place is in which it is stored. Try to keep it in a dry and clean place.

Hydrometer Readings.

A battery is well charged when the hydrometer shows a specific gravity of the solution between 1250 and 1300. It is practically dead when the hydrometer shows a reading of 1150 or lower.

Keep Grid Short and Direct.

The grid return of all circuits should be as short and direct as possible, as well as the lead from the grid condenser to the grid of the detector tube. In fact, the grid condenser should be connected direct to the socket without any wire.

RADIO DEALERS TO MEET HERE

Noll Company Will Conduct Atwater-Kent Conference Sunday.

From sixty to sixty-five Atwater-Kent radio dealers will be in Lincoln Sunday to attend the district conference of the H. C. Noll Electric company of Omaha, distributor of this radio. MARY LEWIS IS TO BROADCAST

Metropolitan Opera Star Gives Program Second Time Sunday.

Mary Lewis, prime donna soprano of the Metropolitan opera and well known concert artist, who made her radio debut last season in the Atwater Kent hour, will broadcast again under the same auspices, Sunday night, February 13.

Miss Lewis says her radio debut placed her before the American concert public more quickly and effectively than could have been accomplished in any other way, and believes that a judicious amount of broadcasting is helpful to any singer's success.

"I think radio will never eliminate the concert," said Miss Lewis. In the final analysis, personality is the thing that counts, and personality can best be felt and 'gotten over' when a person stands in the flesh before an audience.

"However, I do believe that the far-reaching effect of radio on the musical life of the country is just beginning to exert itself. The success of the opera singer depends upon a combination of appearance, voice and histrionic ability. Over the radio appearance is nothing, and the result will be the development of a group of famous radio artists to whom success was denied in opera, long the gate-way to a concert career.

"We are now seeing the early development of chain broadcasting which I believe will increase steadily, making for fewer and better radio artists, with voice paramount. These artists will acquire a vogue hitherto unknown. The popularity won over the radio will result in largely increased concert earnings. The concert, however, will remain as the real test of a singer's success, whether attained by way of opera or the radio."

Aria' "Deh, vieni, non tardar" from Marriage of Figaro.....Mozart
Miss Lewis and orchestra.

Correct Way to Charge Battery.

Charging a storage battery consists of passing a undirectional current through it in the reverse direction. That is, the positive pole of the charging source is connected to the positive pole of the battery. If this is not done the battery will be ruined.

Causes of Most Noises.

In a properly built receiving set there should not be any noise other than atmosphere and radio signals. A great deal of distortion and noise is due to operators not thoroughly knowing how to properly operate their radio set, even though they have had one or even several.

To Appear Here

Here's "Sarge The Windjammer" who has the voice with a smile. He is the official announcer and entertainer for radio station WAMD, the Radisson hotel at Minneapolis.

Sarge will be remembered by Lincoln radio fans as a musician, having played with some of the leading musical organizations here.

His experience in vaudeville makes character numbers one of his air features, and this with his musical ability has won for him first honors in Minneapolis as well as a host of followers among the dial twisters.

Negotiations are being made to have the "Windjammer" appear over a great number of stations, and his friends in Lincoln may be assured a personal appearance at KFAB will be arranged if he comes this way.

RADIO FANS SEEK MORE MEMBERS

Lincoln Club Plans Drive And Contest Ending March 7.

Sends Telegram to Senator Howell Urging Vote for Dill Bill.

Lack of funds is hampering this work, according to President Guy TouVelle, because of the relatively small membership of the organization. While Lincoln has thousands of radio enthusiasts, only a few hundred actively co-operate in the interference fight.

At its last meeting the club determined to put on a membership drive. A contest, open to every one not an officer of the club or a radio dealer, has been arranged.

To the individual turning in to the club between 12:01 a. m. February 16 and 7:30 p. m. March 7 the largest number of paid up new membership applications the club will present a new "A" unit of a standard make, valued at $26.50. This unit will consist of "A" battery, charger and automatic switch. Should the winner desire other merchandise, he may have it instead.

The club will also award a second prize of six radio tubes.

Every member of the club has been urged to write or wire the Nebraska representatives in congress urging the adoption of adequate radio control legislation. The club wired Senator Howell of Nebraska as follows:

"Lincoln radio club, representing hundreds of Lincoln users, would appreciate explanation of your opposition to the White-Dill bill. Intense feeling existing here relative to your present attitude. Immediate adequate radio control legislation is necessary and requested, but we do not desire to approve or condemn without hearing both sides. What is the trouble?"

The reply has not yet been received.

The next regular meeting of the club will be held at 7:30 p. m. March 27. Contest prizes will be awarded then and entertainment will be provided.

A Tip to the Amateur.

To be successful in repairing receiving sets, it is necessary to first learn the various circuits so that it is possible to follow them out to locate trouble. Learn the uses of the various tubes; about storage batteries and the correct "A," "B" and "C" voltages for the various tubes and sets. Patience, experience and common sense will find any radio trouble.

KOLSTER owners are very enthusiastic. Their countless letters of approval tell results almost magical.

"I got 50 stations the first evening. We had several sets, the Kolster's the finest. No set equals it in tone, volume and distance." Kolster owners speak in superlatives.

"Here in California, I get everything from New York to Japan" says one. "Here in New Jersey, I got 50 stations the first evening, all perfect" says another.

We'd rather let Kolster owners tell the story—better still, let your own ear agree on Kolster superiority. Hear a Kolster. Compare. We will be glad to arrange a Kolster demonstration for you, in your own home if you wish. You'll agree that any Kolster is priced at half the usual asking—considering the performance.

FARM RELIEF.

Prophecy was fulfilled when the United States senate Friday afternoon passed the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill by the substantial margin of eight votes, two more than the majority by which it was defeated less than a year ago. Its passage in the house is anticipated, although the lower branch of congress may be inclined to change it slightly, in which event there is a chance it will die in conference in the last minute rush of the session.

Some of the factors which have led to this amazing economic blunder have been more clearly outlined in recent weeks. The events which have been transpiring behind the curtain in Washington are highly significant.

At the start it must be recognized there are a large number of politicians from this Central Western section strongly committed to the program for farm relief. Their sincerity is not an issue in it, although seriously open to question. The fact is that they have been given a very effective weapon to advance their own political interests, and to wrest control from those who are now head of the republican party and in control of the affairs of the nation. They have this advantage because the agricultural regions, whether rightfully or wrongfully, feel they have a grievance.

Throughout this entire food-producing section there is the strong belief that affairs in Washington have been handled to place the farmer at a disadvantage to the industrialist and to the transportation interests of this country. Even the farmer who recognizes the utter folly of the farm relief program, and who is fearful of the disaster which will follow in its wake if it ultimately crystallizes, nurses this belief that his lot is made harder by the tariff wall and by the Cummins-Esch transportation act. The real farmer does not want to add to the mistake by enacting a farm-relief law of the type of the McNary-Haugen bill but he does demand the special privileges which have been conferred upon other classes. This is the sentiment which adroit, and in some instances, unscrupulous republican politicians have been fermenting, with the aid of democrats, to secure enactment of the legislation which Friday received the approval of the upper branch of congress.

The pressure to commit America to the most menacing and dangerous adventure in its economic history is increased through the help of a class which has heretofore been hostile to it.

The fate of the McNary-Haugen bill is inexorably interwoven with that of the Pepper-McFadden banking bill.

The latter, originally designed to enable national banks to open branch banks in competition with state banks, has been regarded by the friends of the federal reserve system as vital to its future. The system was chartered in 1914 for only twenty years and bankers have been worrying as to what would happen if congress failed to take affirmative action to extend it before its expiration in 1934. Senator Glass introduced an amendment to the Pepper-McFadden bill, extending the charter of the federal reserve system indefinitely.

The situation leads the Kansas City Star to observe that "desire of the big financial interests to insure the permanence of the federal reserve system and to avoid its being thrown into politics" is the real inspiration for the amazing coalition which has been formed in congress. The Star declares that when Senator Glass first proposed his amendment to the Pepper-McFadden bill, the bank commission directing a lobby was opposed to it because it feared the change might defeat the entire bill. The bankers, The Star asserts, were surprised the Glass amendment went through the senate with scarcely no discussion, and was in turn accepted by the conference committee and the house. Following this action, the banking interests came to realize the enormous importance of the revised banking bill and determined to put it across even at the cost of enactment of a farm bill. They were alarmed, it is said, by the tendency in the farm group to set one bill against the other as representing two fundamentally different economic viewpoints.

"The situation in many respects is analogous to that which existed in the administration of President Jackson when the national bank, created by Alexander Hamilton, was abolished because of the refusal of congress to renew its charter. President Jackson's support had come largely from the agriculturists and small town folk, who were prone to charge all their economic woes to the machinations of the eastern bankers. This feeling led to the fight against rechartering of the national bank, which was the predominant issue throughout the two Jackson administrations and which for the first time definitely drew the line between the farmers and big business in American politics. Recurrence of such a fight is avoided by the present deal."

* * *

So that, we are told on reputable authority, is the inspiration for this latest whim of legislative folly and madness.

We repeat that the men and the women on the farms, who are bearing the burdens and trials and vicissitudes of agricultural effort, are not imploring a benevolent government to take them under its protective wing to meet problems which they will solve themselves, if fool lawmakers will leave them alone.

They haven't a single request to make except that some of this paternalistic undertaking through which government has endeavored to set aside natural economic laws be discontinued. The men who plant corn, and wheat and oats, and all other crops of this marvellously rich section, who "slop" the pigs and milk the cows, and perform the hundred other innumerable tasks of the countryside; the women who rear the family, cook and clean, who separate the cream from the milk and who gather the eggs—these real workers of America want nothing so much as a simplified government where a man garners what he sows and reaps.

No one professes to know the vast and intricate machinery which must be set up to administer the provisions of this McNary-Haugen bill. No one pretends to have information as to the thousands of employes which will be added to governmental payrolls, increasing enormously the already heavy burden of taxation against the farms of this country. The cry has been to do something for the farmer, whether he wanted it or not. And so the politicians propose to hand him the most expensive governmental agency ever created in this country. They propose to turn loose a whole army of government agents to snoop into his business and to interfere with him in his work.

That bill which passed the senate Friday and seems destined to receive the approval of the house is a monument to the stupidity of lawmakers who in their ignorance propose to suspend nature's rules by law. The great fight in this country should be to save the farmer from his "friends." They are now busily engaged in digging a grave for that one great industry which still retains that force which has made America truly great—individualism.

THE BOY SCOUTS.

Scoutdom has been celebrating its seventeenth anniversary.

It was seventeen years ago that Baden Powell, an Englishman, initiated the organization. Powell was a military man, it is true, but it has been recognized the work of the boy scouts has been entirely free from any militaristic stain.

It has been a great force for good in the lives of the boys of today.

There are now scout organizations in fifty-seven countries of the world. Once every four years a world meeting is being held at which the ideal of a world brotherhood is held forth. There are in the United States more than 800,000 boys between the ages of 12 to 18 belonging to the Scout organizations. They are taught the fine qualities of personal cleanliness of mind and body. Indeals of generosity, of charity, of reliance and manliness are inculcated.

That is a fine influence to enter the lives of these 800,000 boys in the formative years. Certain we are that if they only partially obey the mandates of the scout they will be better men than it is likely they would have been. They will be more tolerant, more understanding, more sympathetic, more mindful of others and more willing to help those who need it.

NEW BUREAUS NOT NEEDED.

After sixty years of inactivity, Iowa has awakened to the fact that it is time to begin telling the world of her greatness.

There is quite a story, too, if full time is given for reflection.

With Illinois, Nebraska, and Kansas, Iowa constitutes the greatest agricultural producing section in the world. In the wealth of its soil, this region is without an equal. Iowa is first in corn and first in pork. Alone she produces more corn than is raised by any foreign country.

Probably the truth is that most of the corn belt states have been too busy to give any thought to letting others know what the people of this section are doing. The Iowa legislature is taking the proper step, however, when it names a committee to draft a bill to provide permanently for Iowa publicity. Care will have to be exercised to avoid making it another political adjunct and expense but if undertaken in the right way it can be made extremely useful in aiding in Iowa's comeback.

State publicity has no connection with politics.

The more completely it is divorced from political influences, the better the results. Much of the work can be performed voluntarily. The press and the business and industrial interests of Iowa should see to it that the publicity department will not signify simply another political job for the deserving. Let the already existing agencies be utilized for a definite, comprehensive program of publicity.

WORKING OUT A SCHOOL PLAN.

The complete transition of the Lincoln city schools to the 6-3-3 plan of organization may be accomplished with the completion of the Park elementary school at Eighth and F streets and the Irving junior high school at Twenty-second and Van Dorn streets, according to a report made by Superintendent Lefler at the last meeting of the board of education.

The 6-3-3 plan of organization is relatively a new feature in school organization and has many advantages. This system provides separate buildings for three groups of children: elementary, junior high and high school. As the name indicates six grades are included in the elementary group and three in each of the others.

The junior high school bridges the gap which formerly existed between the grades and the high school. Tenth grade children are much more mature and better able to mingle with high school seniors than are ninth graders. Children of the seventh, eighth and ninth grades are adapted to a different type of instruction than can be given in the elementary school. These children are at which might be called the "gang" age. Forming, as they do, a logical and convenient group it is much better that they be housed in separate buildings and receive instruction in subjects which otherwise could not be given them.

Next fall the seventh, eighth and ninth grade pupils now attending Saratoga, McKinley, Capitol, Park and Prescott elementary schools will be transferred to junior high buildings. The Irving, Twenty-sixth and O street, and Everett school buildings will be organized especially for junior high pupils. The elementary pupils now attending Everett will be reassigned to surrounding elementary school buildings and the high school will receive no pupils below the ninth grade.

This accomplishment, of course, is not the result of action taken at any one board meeting but it represents the result of a wise educational plan and building program which the schools have been operating under for a number of years. As it has become necessary to construct new buildings to relieve congested conditions these buildings have been constructed with the 6-3-3 plan as a guide. Sites have been selected so that no elementary pupils are required to walk more than ten blocks to attend school and junior high schools have been constructed so that when the proposed West side building is completed none of the pupils of this age will be required to walk an unreasonable distance to attend school. It is only through adopting plans which have looked to the future that present accomplishments have been secured.

CLEANING UP THE STAGE.

Without the aid of censorship laws, or any other legislative frills, real progress is being made in cleaning up the stage. The cure is being applied at the source. It is being administered by those who should look after it.

In the last week three plays have been closed in New York in line with Mayor's Walker's crusade to get rid of the filth and a number of actors have been arrested and indicted for appearing in unclean and unwholesome plays.

Executives who were inclined to slyly wink at the mayor's injunction to clean up have come to the conclusion he means business. As a result they are beating the police to it.

There is not a city or state in the union where the results could not be accomplished if anyone seriously put themselves to it. The police and the authorities have all the power they need.

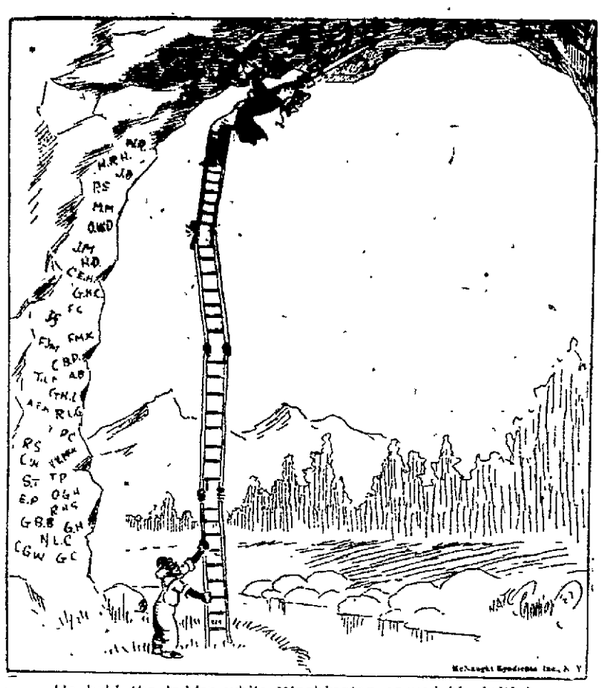

The important phase of this New York City campaign is the unquestioned effect it will have on the rest of the country. New York has long had a reputation for naughtiness on the stage. Each year saw obscenity and vulgarity growing a bit. Most of the racy and questionable shows came out of New York and those which did not got their inspiration from what was happening on the stage there. Mayor Walker is entitled to the thanks and commendation of the people outside New York for what he is doing there.

As a rule you can say it with flowers, but not to the wealthier man.

BY WILL ROGERS.

He held the ladder while Washington carved his initials.

Today you all are going to get a little history. We have just about been fed up on spoiled peaches, cuckoo daddys, Aimees, Nicarauga, Mexico, China, Prohibition, Smith's chances for the nomination and will Calvin go to the post in 28? We hear all those things all the time.

What me and my little band of readers got to do is get out and learn something. Now what can be better to learn about than the world's greatest natural wonders? There is supposed to be seven great natural wonders of the world, and the Natural bridge in Virginia is one of them. Did you ever see it? If it had been in Europe you would have traveled across a half dozen little E flat countries and put up with all kinds of in-conveniences, bum hotels, poor roads, feel like a bunch of sheep while being herded around looking at it, tipped everybody from the king of the country it's in down to the fellow that told you where it was. Americans go prowling around over in Europe looking for old things. Well this bridge is not just exactly what I would refer to as recent. It goes back as far as George Washington's time, and that is as far as any American ought to care to go.

George was a surveyor in his younger days. That's where the apple tree or apple sauce story started. Surveyors always carry hatchets to drive their stakes, and that is how he come to have a tomahawk in his possession when approached by his father. He was a good surveyor. He took the exact measure of the British, and surveyed himself out about the most valuable piece of land in America at that time, Mount Vernon. George not only could tell the truth but he could tell land values. Well this Natural Bridge it seems that George found it. I don't hardly know how he could miss it for it's the only way you can get from one end of Virginia to the other, is to pass over it. Still you can pass over it and never know it. That's what the British had been doing for years. Of course the British hadn't noticed it. They didn't think there was any Bridge but London Bridge. They couldn't possibly figure out how we could have one. But the man who was to become later the "Father of his Country," was not only a prolific father but he was some bridge discoverer. He knew a bridge when he passed over one.

Knew His Pennies.

Well, he went down right away and climbed up the side and put his initials on it. That was not as some think just to perpetuate his initials. It was to be his brand, and it was to claim ownership of the bridge. He was for claiming it and putting a toll house on top of it, and draw people's attention that there was a bridge there. George was not only a soldier and a gentleman, but he was a business man.

Now if George did put his initials where they are on that bridge now, I want to be the first one to claim for him in history that he was also an acrobat. Either that or a second story man. But George dident get the bridge. King George III of England had foolishly taken in too much territory with some of his barn-storming English settlers. He saw he was going to have some trouble holding on to it, so he started out on a little Fall-Doheny plan King George tryed to bribe Thomas Jefferson with the bridge. He figured "Jefferson is a democrat and this bridge is south of the Mason and Dixon line, and in order to swing the democratic vote over to me, King George, I better get to this fellow Jefferson."

Shows you how little those kings know. He should have seen that Washington was the fellow he had to lick. If he had given the bridge to Washington, why Washington might have let him keep the rest of the country. Cause George was just crazy about bridges, and when he couldent find one, he would have his picture taken crossing in a boat. This deed that King George gave to Jefferson was dated on July 5th. 1774, and calls for 157 acres worth of Bridge. July the fifth; that was the next day after the fourth of July. Jefferson was just coming home from the Fourth of July celebration at Roanoke and going back to Lexington when the King sent him the deed. History of no kind ever tells that Jefferson ever paid for it, so it looks like there was a little undercover stuff pulled somewhere. It's funny they wont seat Smith and Vare, and they go ahead and let Jefferson in. This Jefferson seemed to be the only democrat in history with any kind of business ability. Even Washington, the republican, dident have much on Thomas in grabbing off choice lots and villa plots. He grabbed him off a knole overlooking Washington that had great sub-division possibilities. And when he drew up the constitution and by laws of these United States he dident say a word about giving back this 157 acres worth of bridge. He said America should be free, but he put a high fence around the bridge and charged you to get in it. You could drive over it for nothing, but you couldent see it without you paid, unless you run off of it.

Jeff Got the Cash.

George's name is still on the bridge, but Thomas's name is on the deed, That is one case where the democrat outwitted the republican. Washington got the advertising with the name. But Jefferson collected the toll. It was held in the Jefferson estate up to a few years ago. But like all things you leave to relatives, and get rid of them. You are better off if you leave 'em to outsiders. Its the only one of the wonders of the world that is practical. A big highway goes right over it. Niagara is not much good to go over, and the Grand Canyon is only good for the novelty of people that have never rode a mule down hill on a trail before. This bridge is the only one ever built with no graft connected with the construction.

When you go there be sure and get an old darky named "Uncle Jackson" to show it to you. The South has produced three great Jacksons, Stonewall, Hickory and "Natural Bridge" Jacksno. He held the ladder while Washington carved his initials. And character in history or the Bible he will show to you. If you don't see it it's your own fault. He says they are all up there in the shapes and colors of the rocks. I had a little trouble seeing "Daniel Entering the Lion's Den," for Daniel and the Lion had not entered yet. But "Lot's wife turning around and turning to salt," that was so plain I could taste the salt. There was an eagle that I mistook for a buzzard, that annoyed Jackson quite a little. But its all there and if there is no other way of getting Americans to visit it, we will claim Peaches met Daddy there.

Here and There

Their Fathers "In Trade."
(Market for Exchange.)

At a political meeting in England a nobleman and his supporters ventured to speak slightingly of several of his distinguished opponents because either they or their ancestors had been "concerned in trade."

This aspersion excited a young journalist to action and the next morning there appeared in his paper a list of names so illustrious and formidable as to end all argument on the subject. This was his list:

Euripides was the son of a fruiterer; Virgil, the son of a brickmaker; Boccaccio, the son of a merchant; Bunyan the son of a traveling tinker; Luther, the son of a miner; Columbus, the son of a weaver and originally a weaver himself; Shakespeare, the son of a butcher and wool stapler; Ben Johnson, the son of a mason; Cowley of a grocer, Milton of a scrivener, Fletcher of a chandler, Pope of a linen draper, Collins of a hatter, Thomas Moore of a grocer, Jeremy Taylor of a barber, Defoe of a butcher and himself a hosier, Rabelais of an apothecary, Moliere of a tapestry maker, and Rousseau of a watchmaker.

To this list we may add a few more such as Keats, whose father was employed in a livery stable, and John Paul Jones, whose father was a gardener. Nor can we omit Samuel Johnson, Thomas Hood, or Anatole France, all sons of booksellers. William Dean Howells, our American dean of letters, is the son of a printer-journalist. George Bernard Shaw, who wields such a trenchant pen, is the son of a civil servant, while his contemporary, the versatile H. G. Wells, is the son of a professional cricketer.

Forms of City Government

City government in the United States at the present time falls into three classes. These are the mayor-council, the commission and the city-manager forms.

Of these, the oldest historically is the mayor-council type. This form evolved from the English colonial type, in which the mayor as part of the council was chosen by it, and responsible to it. Under the strong influence of the federal plan, this form changed during the nineteenth century. As the result of direct election by the people, the mayor became much more powerful, with a veto power over the council and control over the administration through the appointing power. His main function was to execute the policies determined upon by the council. The council was usually a fairly large body, in many places elected by wards. Sometimes it was divided into two houses.

As cities grew tremendously fast during the nineteenth century, and their governments were expected to do many more things, a terrific strain was put upon municipal government. New boards and commissions were added to take care of these new functions, until city government became hopelessly complex and powers widely diffused. In theory the mayor was still responsible for the execution of policies determined upon by the council, but in actuality, it was difficult to tell where responsibility rested.

Galveston, Texas, during an emergency evolved the commission type of government, and other cities soon followed her example. This form combines legislative and administrative powers, and responsibility in one small representative body. This group, usually consisting of five men, acting as a council decided city policies. Then acting individually, each man as the head of a department, they assume administrative responsibility. This plan has the merit of simplicity, of concentrating power in the hands of a small group who are definitely responsible for, its use. The disadvantages become more apparent when it is put into practice. The non-partisan primary, the initiative, referendum and recall were introduced into city government along with the short ballot.

The city-manager plan attempts to keep the advantages of the commission plan, and at the same time strengthen the weak places by adding an administrative expert. Cleveland, Ohio, is a good example of the way this plan works. There the city council is chosen by proportional representation, insuring representation for the larger minority groups, and a large enough group to be truly representative for the determination of city policies. The council is left free to choose an administrative expert, who is responsible to the council for a satisfactory administration of municipal affairs. Since a large amount of municipal government is really business, this business-like arrangement works very efficiently when the expert is given free rein.

The trend of city government is definitely toward simplification and the concentration of power and responsibility. Successful government depends upon an intelligent electorate, and upon an efficient civil service for subordinate appointments, but it is important to have the most efficient type of government as well.

MARIETTA STEVENSON.

In the Message Center, January number, it stated that Chauncey M. Depew is the only American who has enjoyed the honor of having a statute of himself unveiled during his life time. Dr. Andrew Taylor Still, founder of Osteopathy, on May 23, 1917 stood on the lawn of his home, overlooking the west end of Kirksville, Mo. and the campus of the parent college of Osteopathy and watched a mighty crowd of his followers and beneficiaries witness the unveiling of a heroic bronze statue of himself. The statue was the work of Zolnay and was the result of a project started by the Sojourners club of Kirksville. This club was organized in the late nineties by Mrs. Joseph B. Forraker whose family had been so signally helped by Osteopathy. So prone is human nature to withhold honor where honor is due until the object of the honor has passed away, that these two situations are among the rarities of this generation. Dr. Still was one pioneer who lived long enough to receive the world's honor and to see Osteopathy become one of the leading schools of therapeutics with splendid hospitals and colleges testifying to its worth to suffering mankind. —Advertisement.

Discoveries In Humans

JUDGE GARY FOUND WAY TO CUT DOWN ACCIDENTS IN INDUSTRY WHEN HE DISCOVERED GREATEST "SAFETY ..FIRST" MAN.

But Charles L. Close Might Not Have Found Life Work if Panic of 1907 Hadn't Come

"Gentlemen, we have got to reduce the number of accidents in our plants."

BY PRESTON WRIGHT.

In 1906 Judge E. H. Gary, president of the United States Steel corporation, addressed the executives of the corporation's subsidiary companies at a meeting in his office.

"Gentleman," he said, "we must cut down the number of accidents in our plants."

That meeting and that declaration constitute one of the most epochal events in history. But how many of you have ever heard of it? Or of how U. S. Steel discovered and put into effect accident preventing methods which are affecting all industry?

Human genius evoked modern productive machinery. But man has not learned to operate that machinery without death, injury and a huge toll of misery for himself. It was not until this century that he began to study seriously means of accomplishing machine production without human injury.

Judge Gary's declaration to his executives set afoot the first organized movement for live-saving in industry.

You can't do a thing like that without accomplishing a great deal more than your primary humanitarian aim. Industrial life-saving, with the attendant movement to better the existence of the worker in other ways, has brought a new adjustment in human attitudes.

Not even Judge Gary suspected in 1906 the extent to which accidental injury could be curtailed in industry. His declaration had set afoot a pioneer movement. For some time thereafter the steel corporation was busy merely trying to find out methods of averting accidents.

The circumstance which gave his instructions force was a promise he made.

"All reasonable expenditures to reduce accidents will be honored," he said.

Schiller Gets Busy.

In due course U. S. Steel found methods to control injuries to workers. How effective they were is shown by the latest statistics. The corporation's percentage decrease in disabling accident rate under 1912 reach approximately 83 per cent in 1926.

Now the corporation, which, by the way, has 250,000 workers, has a new slogan. It is:

"Do away with all accidents."

How was the 83 per cent reduction gained? The answer concerns everybody because, notwithstanding the lower rate of accidents in industry, injuries in general are on the increase. It is up to everybody to help change this situation.

William B. Schiller, president of the National Tube company, of Pittsburgh, was one of the executives who listened to Judge Gary's declaration that "something must be done." He went back to his office and summoned the heads of the tube company's thirteen plants to explain what was desired.

"Well, boys," he said, "we've got a new job ahead of us. What's the best way to do it?"

It was, indeed, a puzzling question. It wasn't merely a matter of installing safety devices and using safety construction. Even today the biggest problem in safety work is the human equation. Some men, many men, in fact, apparently like to take unnecessary risks. Back in the old days they were legion. In many industries they looked upon risk as a part of their occupation. Steel was one of these industries.

First Step a Mistake.

"What sort of man should take charge of this work?" asked Schiller.

"A man from the office force would be best," someone suggested —"one without practical mill experience will be more apt to see what is needed than one from the mills. He will have a more detached viewpoint."

It took only a few months to demonstrate that a wrong start had been made. Then everyone awakened to a fact they hadn't realized before. Carrying on safety work in a steel plant was a he-man's job. It needed the attention of somebody who knew steel from A to Z and who also knew men.

"I've got it," said Schiller to himself. And to his secretary: "Tell Charley Close to come and see me."

"The World's Best Burlesque On The Movies"

"The Whole Town's Talking"

A FARCE COMEDY IN THREE ACTS
BY
JOHN EMERSON AND ANITA LOOS

"THE WHOLE TOWN'S TALKING" comes from the collective pens or perhaps collective typewriters would be better—of the most famous and widely known team of authors in the United States—John Emerson and Anita Loos. Composers of outstanding film scenarios, they have pooled their efforts for the first time for the spoken stage, and have added one more triumph to their long collection.
It is not surprising, therefore, that the Emerson-Loos partnership has taken a phase of behind-the-scene movie life as the starting point and center of their highly amusing plot.

Jumps to "Fast Mail."—Shirley Mason, who recently completed her role opposite Douglas MacLean in "Let It Rain," has been signed by Columbia Pictures for the featured role in "The Fast Mail." Ralph Graves will play the male lead.

Two New Jailbirds—The new members have been added to the cast of "See You in Jail," which Joseph Henaberry is directing for Ray Rockett. They are Burr McIntosh, who plays the part of a judge in a Los Angeles court, and William Orlamond, a comedy inventor. Jack Mulhall is featured in the comedy, and Alice Day, star comedienne, plays with him.

Taken on the Fly.—"Sky-High Saunders" is the title of the first of the four air pictures which Al Wilson, noted stunt aviator, will make for Universal. The plot takes on the aspect of an aviation camp with the six airplanes which are used in the picture, buzzing about. Bruce Mitchell has charge of the megaphone.

My Directorate for a Snowshoe—Buying snowshoes in Hollywood is a matter of art. Wallace Beery tramped up one street and down the other trying to locate a pair to use in his next feature, "Looie, the Fourteenth." He finally found some up in the Sierra Madre mountains, where it snows in the winter. Mr. Beery appears as an Alpine guide in one sequence of the picture.

Betty to Ritz It—"Ritzy," the role which Betty Bronson takes in her new picture by that title, is a girl who, as the result of her early training, considers herself superior to everyone about her, until a combination of circumstances brings out her true self. Elinor Glyn, who is responsible for the story, blames parents for the faults of the modern youth.

Tries Twinkle Toe Stuff—Louise Lorraine, who played with Tim McCoy in "Winners of the Wilderness," has been awarded the role of a cabaret dancer in "Red, White and Blue." It's a story of a citizen's training camp life and George K. Arthur, Karl Dane and Marceline Day are featured in the cast.

Here's a New One—A new type of picture is being made at the Cecil B. D Mille studio. The entire action of the story takes place in less than one day. The innovation is titled, "White Gold" and Jetta Goudal is the star. The plot is laid on an Arizona sheep ranch and centers around four characters.

Hollywood Recruits Athletes—William T. Tilden, former singles amateur tennis champion of the world, are the latest additions to the movie colony. Both have been signed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Mr. Tilden has already been assigned a role in King Vidor's new picture in which Eleanor Boardman is featured.

Fans Visit Her Set—Marion Davies' favorite fans are visiting the set where she is filming "Tillie, the Toiler," at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios. The fans, Judge and Mrs. Bernard Wourss of New York are the parents of the star.

Giving Her a Tryout—Vera Veroninga Paramount's latest Russian importation, will have her first American part in "Soundings." Miss Veronina, fled from Russia to escape execution during the soviet revolution. She was co-starred in German films with Lil Dagovver, former UFA star. Miss Veronina is small and has blonde hair and brown eyes.

No Interest Charges—Renee Adoree has been loaned by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer to Universal for the role of Nancy in the screen version of James Oliver Curwood's story, "Back to God's Country." Robert Frazier will play "Peter Keith" and Walter Long and Mitchell Lewis add weight to the cast. Lynn Reynolds wil call the action on the picture.

Actual Production of Scene in Richard Dix' Latest Fighting Film to Be Broadcast Tuesday

Jackie Coogan's going to make star is being assisted by Parks Jones and Erville Alderson.

Ralph Forbes, who plays the young brother in "Beau Geste," is to be given a lead. He's an English youth recently given a contract by Metro, and he is going to do his best in a story of the Swiss Alps. By name it is known as "The Branding Iron"

M. G. M. is also going to do a historical number. It does seem as though all of history were safely laid away in the films, but somebody's always coming up with a new idea. Clarence Brown, director of "Flesh and the Devil," which, with John Gilbert and Greta Garbo, is making a decided furore in the east, is to do "The Trail of '96." As you can guess it tells of the gold rush of thirty years ago, and the scenes will be laid in Alaska.

Having finished "Long Pants," in which some of the sequences are in technicolor, Harry Langdon is looking about for other films to conquer. He's is going to change his mode with this picture. A comedian always, Harry is seeking for an adaptation, rather than an original this time, and he's asking the public to help him. "Easy Come, Easy Go," "White Dollars," "The Outsiders," and "Deliverance have all been suggested to him, but Harrys casting sheep's eyes at "The Butter and Egg Man." He wants to start work early in March.

Lella Hyams, daughter of John and Lella Hyams, vaudeville team known as Hyams and McIntyre, has been signed for the lead opposite Monte Blue in "The Brute." She played in "Summer Bachelors," and Warners considered her a find.

Releasing H. G. Wells "Marriage."

The Fox version of H. G. Wells' novel, "Marriage" will retain its original title on its release. "The Wedding Ring" was considered, as there is an old production entitled "Marriage," but at the last moment the original cognomen won out. Virginia Valli is the wife and Allan Durant is her husband. Gladys McConnell, one of this year's Wampas stars, has the role of the younger sister.

"Carmen" can't be modernized, but they're going to change the lady herself. Raoul Walsh, who is making it for Fox, is going to separate the title role from many of its fripperies and develop the girl along human and wholly understandable lines. "Carmen" will be strictly a 1927 version, if possible. Dolores Del Rio and Victor McLaglen have won the plums for the leads.

Hollywood will be the scene of one hundred rush weddings in a few days, but none of these participating will be married for keeps. The wholesale matrimonial business represents a sequence in Wallace Beery's "The Big Sneeze," which James Cruze is directing. The mayor of a Alpine village issues an edict that all women must marry within twenty-four hours. He wants a wife for himself, and one for his friend. Hence the scramble.

Vera Veronina, who came from Russia to make bigger and better films in Hollywood, is to get her wish. She has been given an important part in "Soundings," in which Lois Moran and Douglas Gilmore have the leads.

Lilyan Tashman has an important role in Adolphe Menjou's newest picture, "Evening Clothes." Virginia Valli, Louise Brooks and Nogh Berry are also featured in the cast.

GUILD RETURNS TO ITS OWN IN ANDERSON PLAY

ENSEMBLE WORK EXACTLY TIMED

Mathew Lang Presents "The Wandering Jew" With Quiet Power.

BY BUSHNELL DIMOND.

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—You come out of Maxwell Anderson's "Saturday's Children" (if you are human) with the sense that you have heard the last word spoken about young love and young marriage and the pitiful, crushing, comic links that bind the two together. That sounds like a staggering order, and I am fully aware that Mr. Anderson's theme is very antique stuff.

But where others—I might mention even Frank Craven and Patrick Kearney—have fallen afoul of either "gag" studded commonplaceness or smug patronizing, the author of "Saturday's Children" has had recourse to nothing but his own inspired naturalism. This story of the $40-a-week clerk and the wife thirsty for a running stream of romance is told with the simplicity, the artful artlessness, the crispness, the credibility and the intuitive intelligence of young Balzac.

With this production the Actors' theater comes into its own again, becoming once more the Actors' theater of those delightful days when "Candida" and "The Wild Duck" were on the boards. Aside from the worth of the play itself, the most generous credit should go to Guthrie McClintic, the new director of the organization, who has cast the piece with infinite cunning and staged it with a technical and spiritual beauty that decorates the bare script like the lustre on old silver.

Cast Perfectly Teamed.

Not since the Guild did "Heartbreak House" have I witnessed such exquisitely timed and teamed ensemble work on the part of a company. The choicest dialectic plums fall into the lap of Ruth Gordon, the same Miss Gordon who has given us a long gallery of comic portraits from "Seventeen" to "Mrs. Partridge Presents——," but whose gifts, it would seem, have been scarcely tested till now. There is pathos in this characterization: a wistful strength and bafflement and sudden glints of sly, shy humor. If you think of Miss Gordon as a mere grotesque, you should see her in "Saturday's Children," not to mention Roger Pryor (son of the famous bandmaster) as the husband and Frederick Perry as the father, and Beulah Bondis as the landlady. Young Jo Mielziner has decorated the play with tactful and sympathetic restraint.

Drama of another day is offered us in the American tour of Mathew Lang, the eminent British romantic tragedian, who has selected for his first New York production Temple Thurston's "The Wandering Jew." This familiar fable, which has a certain pietistic impressiveness to it, in spite of a somewhat too florid style, was done here some years back by Belasco and Erlanger, with Tyrone Power as the undying Semite who spat at Christ.

Mr. Lang's impersonation is more reserved than Mr. Power's. It lacks the declamatory note, and its crises are reached with a quiet self-ontainment. The actor-manager bears a certain slight resemblance to Walter Hampden both in bearing and features. It is presumed that he would make an interesting Hamlet, and his experiments in costume melodrama are awaited with zest. The substantially gifted Huton Britton is his leading woman.

Stellar, But Not Good.

George C. Tyler, who collects stars with the avidity of a small boy collecting stamps, has put on a stellar revival of "Trelawny of the Wells" that, to be frank, is not what it should be. Apparently dazzled by the array of high-salaried performers at his beck and call, Mr. Tyler has permitted the direction to run wild in the way of mugging and self-consciousness. Rather weird, too, is the casting. Why in the world, with Pauline Lord in the company, the role of Rose was handed to Helen Gahagan must remain forever a secret entombed in the Tylerian bosom. The play has a faintly camphorated odor. It is agreeably demure muslin in these rag-tag-and-bobtail days of the rough-house drama.

"For Better or Worse," by Alan de Lano, is a strenuously talkative study of a forced marriage, acted with great persuasiveness and ardor by Tom Powers and promising actress named Gladys Hurlbut. It has a native honesty which is practically smothered by the interminable blanket of dialogue in which its inept author has wrapped it.

Melodrama No. 2,345, by Willard Mack is good entertainment. Called "Honor Be Damned," it sets forth the plight of a hard-boiled attorney who finds the ethical codes at which he sneered violated in his own family. Mr. Mack acts the lawyer with vigor and self-confidence.

"The Scarlet Lily" is a wispy little drama set in post-war France. The heroine has, off and on, sinned, but her heart is in the right place. Marguerite Risser plays the part originally allotted to Margot Kelly. This need not detain you long.

NEBRASKA HAS ERECTED SPLENDID NEW CAPITOL

an artistic, but likewise as a necessary measure. In so doing, Mr. Tomson would like to see that street made a civic center, similar to that adopted by many capital cities of the country.

He says:

"The primary necessity is a need to open Fifteenth street north from O for the handling of traffic.

"A secondary result would be the connecting up of the state capitol with the university. A broad boulevard from the one to the other would give distinction o the building and to the campus.

"The ideal thought is that in the course of time we ought to plan to locate the court house, the city hall, the post office, and a city auditorium, and other civic and public buildings on that street. The school offices are there, and they could continue. Such a centralization would make them central from all parts of the down town district.

"The capitol is such a departure from the usual type of capitol and has been safeguarded by such rare artistic design and decorations that it is an outstanding feature of Lincoln.

"Everything that can be done within reason to give the building a setting should be undertaken by the city officials in cooperation with the state authorities.

"It is possible that Lincoln people as a whole have never quite come to realize the value of various outstanding things that are here, things belonging to the state, nor quite realized the peculiar opportunity the city has to beautify itself by a very limited investment. There are no major problems in making this city and its natural setting invites beautifying."

1907 and a panic year had made superintending the Greenville plant an exceedingly dull procedure. The plant, in fact, was closed down. Close was free to do anything the company wanted of him.

The panic of 1907 destroyed many men. It gave Close opportunity for a satisfying life's work. Incidentally, his case calls to mind one of the pleasantest facts of life—that we never can tell exactly where it is going to take us.

Close started life in a railway express office at Shelby, Ohio, at $5 per week. He wanted more money, so asked the superintendent of the Shelby Tube Company for a job. He got one—right in the bottom.

The executives noticed one thing. Close never kicked about extra work. If extra work wasn't handed him, he was apt to think up some. He advanced until he became assistant superintendent.

The Problem Solved.

The National Tube company absorbed the Shelby Tube company. Close was transferred to the Greenville plant as assistant superintendent. Time passed. He became superintendent.

In those days, it never occurred to him that he'd ever be anything but a member of the operating staff. But then came Judge Gary's decision about safety work. And on top of that the 1907 panic closed down his mill.

"Charley," said Schiller, "I want you to take over the accident prevention work. We need a practical man. It's a big thing and I think you can do it. Go to it; I'll back you to the limit."

Close "went to it." Characteristically, he didn't stop at safety work. He interested himself in sanitation and other matters. The National Tube Company made the best record of all the U. S. Steel subsidiaries at accident prevention. In transferring Close to safety work Schiller had, in fact, solved U. S. Steel's safety problem.

One day in 1911, Close got a message to come to New York. There Raynall C. Bolling, general solicitor of the corporation, who later was to be the first American officer to give up his life in the World War, met him.

"Mr. Close," he said, "Judge Gary wants you to take over the organization of all the safety work in U. S. Steel.'"

It would take a book to tell all that was done subsequently by the organization known as the Bureau of Safety, Sanitation and Welfare. A good share of that book would deal with the mechanics of safety in industry. But most of it would deal with safety education.

Other Companies Followed.

Education is the factor that has counted most. This has been obtained largely through committee organization which has reached into the ranks of the workers. Approximately 10,000 workers are committee members at all times. But memberships are rotating. Since the movement began 120,000 workers have served on committees.

Since Judge Gary's memorable step in 1906, U. S. Steel estimates that it has saved 50,000 workmen from serious injury, and of course in many cases death. Since 1912, when the corporation began to keep complete records, probably 375,000 workers have been saved from disabling injuries.

But an effect more far reaching was obtained. Other big corporations, including great railway systems, fell into line. Today U. S. Steel's achievements are only part of what industry is doing to preserve human life. And the end is not in sight.

Answers to Movie Fans

Dear Movie Editor: I have not written to your page for quite a while, but have been reading it all the time I was silent.

I think Richard Dix is wonderful He is my favorite. I don't agree at all with "An Interested Reader" about him. He is not "sissy" looking. He is strong and handsome. If only "An Interested Reader" would have seen him in "The Vanishing American" he, or she, wouldd have changed his or her mind.

I think Ben Lyon is handsome also. He is another one of my favorites.

Colleen Moore is my favorite among the actresses. To whom is she married? Where was she born?

Are William Duncan and Edith Johnson playing in pictures any more? What has happened to them? I thought they played beautifully in pictures.

Please give me the cast for "Mare Nostrum." Is Antonio Moreno married and if so to whom? Tell me all you can about him.

I saw a picture a while back, but I can't think of the name of it. Conway Tearle played leading man and Barbara Bedford was his leading lady. The two colts were named "Bad Luck and "Good Luck." Give me the cast for the picture please. Who was the man that played as Barbara's brother in the picture? Tell me all you can of him.

Also, tell me of Ken Maynard.

How many actors and actresses were born in Nebraska? What are their names?

I almost forgot to ask if it were true that Richard Dix and Lois Wilson were engaged to be married?

"Art" asked about Bebe Daniels. I think she plays her parts well. I have seen quite a few of her pictures and she is good in every picture.

So many fans favor Jack Gilbert and Ronald Colman, but I don't see anything so wonderful about them.

Please give me the cast for "The Unknown Cavalier." How did they make those cobwebs, also the dust? Was it real?

Thanking you for the space and time, I'll sign myself, "Cute CUTIE, Friend, Neb.

Welcome back.

Colleen More is the wife of John McCormick, manager of the west coast studios for First National. She was born in Port Huron, Mich.

William and Edith have been missing for several months. I'll have to send some sleuths out to see what's happened to them.

The cast for "Mare Nostrum" is: The Triton, Uni Appolon; Bob Esteben Ferragut, Alex Nova; His Son, Ulyssses, Kada-Abd-al-Kader; Caragol, Hughie Mack; Freau Talberg, Alice Terry; Ulysses Farragut, Antonio Moreno; His Wife, Mlle. Kithnou; Their Son, Michael Brantford; Their Niece, Nesita Ramirez; Toni, Frederick Mariotti; Doctor Fedelman, Mme. Paquerette; Count Kaledin, Fernand Milly; Submarine Commander, Andre von Engleman.

Mr. Moreno is married to Daisy Danizger, a Los Angeles society woman. He was born in Madrid, Spain, 38 years ago. Tony came to America when he was only 14 and received his education here. Before starting his picture career he was on the stage with such celebrities as Mrs. Leslie Carter, Tyrone Power and Wilton Lackaye.

He spent several years before the camera for Vitagraph as a leading man and a serial star. Mr. Moreno has the flashing black eyes and dark hair of the Spaniard. He is 5 feet eight in height and weighs 170.

I think "The Sporting Lover" is the picture to which you refer with the colts "Good Luck" and "Bad Luck." The balance of the cast includes: Capt. Terrance Connaughton, Conway Tearle; Lady Gwendolyn Hinsley, Barbara Bedford; Capt. Sir Philip Barton, Wm. Crane; Algernon Hinsley, Arthur Rankin; Paddy, Charles E. Mc-Hugh: Aloysius Patrick O'Brien, John Fox, Jr.; Nora O'Brien, Bodil Rosing; Jockey, George Ovey.

Arthur Rankin, who had the role of the brother, is the youngest member of the well known stage celebrities, the Drew-Barrymore-Rankin clan. His mother was Phyllis Rankin, and his father Harry Davenport, both well known on the stage. Arthur is 25 years old and has dark hair and green eyes. He is five feet ten and still single. He started his picture career in "The Copperhead" and also played with John Barrymore in Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde.

Ken Maynard's ambition is to be the best horseman and roper in pictures, and it looks as though he may eventually attain his goal. Ken was born in Texas, and started his career winding the phonograph in a picture theater at Mission, Tex. He got so intent upon watching the "two-gun" men of the screen that he fell down and broke all the records, so he got fired.

He was sent to a military school, where he joined the cavalry unit. He spent his vacations on a ranch and practiced his stunts of horsemanship which finally brought him a job as chief cowboy and featured rider with such circuses as Howe's, Robinson's, and Ringling's.

While he was in Los Angeles with one of the shows, he was seen by a motion picture company and offered a job in the movies. He played Paul Revere in "Janice Meredith," with Marion Davies, and won recognition for his horsemanship. He is now a featured player with the First National.

I'll let you count the list of players who have been born or educated in Nebraska. They are: Hoot Gibson, Harold Lloyd, Claire Lois Butler Lee, Lillian Concord, Louise Murray, Peggy Betts, Maude Richard Wayne, Rod La Rocque, Frances Howard, Beatrice Van, Doris Pawn, Pauline Bush, Alfred Hollingsworth, Charles Spere, Lafayette Pary, Bill Bailey and Laura Anson. John T. Prince, a former Lincoln man, also has his name in the "Who's Who" among the screen players.

The parties most concerned, Richard and Lois, both deny that they are engaged to each other. They have been reported engaged so many times in the past that there isn't much news in a new report.

The cast for "The Unknown Soldier" is: "Tom Drury," Ken Maynard; "Ruth Gaunt," Kathleen Collins; "Peter Gaunt," David Torrence; "Clout Pettingill," T. Roy Barnes; "Henry Suggs," James Mason; "Judge Blowfly Jones," Otis Harlan; "Lingo," Josef Swickard; "Three Bad Men," Pat Harmon, Frank Lackteen, Raymond Wells; "Bob Webb," Bruce Webb; "Sheriff," Fred Burns; "Billy Gaunt," Jimsey Boudwin; "Tarzan," As Himself.

It might take the thrill all out of the movies for you if I told you all the little tricks in the trade—even if I could. There's usually plenty of real dust as well as reel dust around a motion picture stage. "Hyman spiders" are trained experts. They spin their web from celluloid dissolved in acetone, with the point of a fine hypodermic needle. Old film is utilized in this way.

Dear Movie Editor—Here I am bothering you again, but I'm just full of questions and you answer them so nicely. Please tell me all about Ken Maynard. Is that his real name? Is he married and how old is he? Also please tell me about his horse, Tarzan.

I think Tarzan is about the prettiest horse on the screen. What is Ken Maynard's address? I saw him and his horse, Tarzan, in "Senor Daredevil," and thought the picture was splendid. What is his next picture?

Also please tell me about Dorothy Dwan.

I quite agree with "The Talker" about Lillian Gish. Personally I don't care for blondes and besides she is so insipid looking. This is the last question and I'll bet you are glad it is. Who is Veda Burgett? Could you tell me all about her, especially how she pronounces her name? What is her address?

I surely thank you a lot, and remain, JUST JIMMIE, a COWGIRL, Fairbury, Neb.

Please don't call your letters a bother. It's a pleasure to hear from you and to serve you as much as possible with your problems.

You will find most of your information concerning Mr. Maynard in my answer to "Cute Cutie" above. He was born in 1895 and plays under his own name. I've never heard him mention a wife. Tarzan was bred and trained by Mr. Maynard. You may write to your favorite in care of First National Pictures, Burbank, Cal. They are at work completing "Somewhere South of Sonora."

Dorothy Dwan was practically unknown in the movies when Larry Semon picked her for leading lady in "The Wizard of Oz." Larry liked her so well opposite him in pictures that he decided to make her his leading lady for life. Dorothy is in her early twenties and has brown hair and gray eyes. She is popular as a leading lady now, and when she isn't playing opposite her husband, she's loaned out to some other film favorite.

I'm not acquainted with Veda. If you will tell me the name of the picture in which she appeared, I might be able to get some information concerning her.

Dear Movie Editor—We thoroughly enjoy your column and our Sunday would not be complete without your answer.

We agree with the fun that said Mae Murray's head was as empty as a doll's, and Lillian Gish is just a big overgrown baby.

Greta Garbo and John Gilbert are our favorites.

Wake up, you Gilbert fans, and write! Let's show the Dix fans that we can leave them in the dust. Here goes two great big votes for John Gilbert. Who could have played "Bardelys the Magnificent" as well as he?

Douglas Fairbanks, jr., seems to have a good future. What are the adresses of John Gilbert and Douglas Fairbanks, jr.

Now we'd like to see the Gilbert fans write. Thank you. TWO GILBERT ADMIRERS.

Jack and I both thank you for the kind words. You may write to him at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Studio, Culver City, Cal. He will be happy to hear from another admirer. Douglas Fairbanks, jr., free lances around the lots, but he has a letter box at the Metropolitan Studio, 1040 Las Palmas avenue, Hollywood, Cal.

Dear Movie Editor: I never miss your Sunday column, although I have never written before.

No one ever seems to ask or say anything about Lloyd Hughes, and I think he is wonderful. I liked him so well in "Forever After." I could even enjoy the picture again if it ever comes back. Please sent me his address, as I would love to have his picture.

I that all you do, just write and ask for one? I have never tried before, but if I succeed in receiving this one, I will start collections like some of the other readers are doing.

I guess I have bother enough. I remain, PAT.

A Sunday would not be complete without a new member. We hope you will become an active participant in our department.

It's customary to enclose postage to cove mailing expenses with your requests for photographs, but many of the stars have received them without the fee. They tell me, however, that they get much larger and nicer pictures when they send postage. Write to Lloyd in care of First National Studios, Burbank Calif. and I'm sure your efforts will be rewarded.

Dear Movie Editor: I just can't stay away for long. I always have to come back with more and more questions.

I would like to have the following casts: "The Flaming Forest," "For Another Woman," "S. O. S." and "Black Oxen."

I would appreciate it very much if you could give me a synopsis of S. O. S., "For Another Woman," "Black Paradise," and "Why Girls Go Back Home."

I would like to know all you know about Victor Varconi, also his address.

I hope you are not cross with me for taking so much space. I remain, BLUE EYED TILLIE.

The cast for "The Flaming Forest" is: "Sergeant David Carrigan," Antonio Moreno; "Jeanne Marie," Renee Adoree; "Roger Audemard," Gardner James; "Alfred Wilbledon," William Austin; "Mike," Tom O'Brien; "Andre Audemard," Emile Chautard; "Jules Lagarre," Oscar Veregi; "Major Charles McVane," Clarence Geldert; "Lupin," Frank Leigh; "Donald McTavish," Charles Ogle; "Francois," Roy Coulson; "Bobby," D'Arcy McCoy; "Mrs. McTavish," Claire McDowell; "Sloppy," Bert Roach; "Ruth McTavish," Mary Jane Irving.

The "Black Oxen" cast seems to be incomplete. It features Corinne Griffith as "Countess Zatianny," and "Conway Tearle as "Lee Clavering."

I'll have to send an "S. O. S." out "For Another Woman." Both casts elude my most diligent search.

I have so very few calls for synopses, and they take up so much room in my files that I no longer keep them.

Victor Varconi is a well known player of both stage and screen. He appeared in films here several years ago, and then returned to his native land where he's been making pictures. He's a Hungarian.

Mr. De Mille sent abroad for Mr. Varconi to come and take the role in "The Volga Boatman" which he played so well. He is now on the pay roll at the De Mille Studio, Culver City, Calif., and will be glad to receive letters at that address. As you will not from his pictures, he has dark hair and eyes, and is about thirty-five.

Dear Movie Editor: Here I come again with more questions to vex you.

I would like to have you tell me if Mrs. Charlie Chaplin is a Catholic or not, and do you think this has anything to do with her applying for a divorce. Someone told me it had. Hoping to see this in next Sunday's paper, I am ROSA.

Mrs. Chaplin was a Catholic before she married Charlie and at the time she left, she announced that she would return to her childhood faith and raise her family in that faith.

I don't think religion had much to do with the Chaplin troubles at least it was not a direct cause of the estrangement.

Dear Movie Editor: Some of my girl friends told me I could find the addresses of some of the movie stars. I wanted to know the addresses of Clara Bow, Mary McAlister, Red Grange, Norma and Constance Talmadge.

I will thank you if you will kindly give me the addresses if you have them. LEONE O. Sutton, Neb.

Screen Siftings

Gets Big Role—Donald Keith, the young Paramount player, has his first really important role as leading man opposite Lois Moran in her new picture, "Soundings." Larry Kent, who recently graduated from two-reelers, will also play with Miss Moran in the feature. A Hamilton Gibbs was responsible for the novel from which the scenario was translated.

Must Use His Feet—Lon Chaney is spending his spare time in learning to throw knives with his feet. Mr. Chaney will appear as the "armless wonder" in a sideshow in his new picture, "Unknown." Ted Browning will direct Mr. Chaney at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios.

Shades of Loaves and Fishes—Three hundred and fifteen gallons of coffee and 2500 box lunches were served to that many extras at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot last week. The extras represented German villages and San Francisco Irishmen and were used in the pictures, "Old Heidelberg" and "Faleo Sally Levy."

Cecil Falls at Last—The first lady Cecil B. De Mille ever used appears in his latest picture, "The King of Kings." Mabel Van Buren is the star, and she has been in pictures since 1912 when Jesse L. Lasky and Cecil B. DeMille started producing films in a small barn in Hollywood.

Barbara Featured.—The leading feminine role in "Flight," which Emory Johnson will direct for Universal, has been given to Barbara Kent. Miss Kent is one of the new 1927 crop of Wampas stars. She will have the role of a French girl who falls in love with an American aviator. Raymond Keane will portray the aviator.

A New Kind of Heroine—Billie Dove is to have one of the most difficult characterizations of her career in her new George Fitzmaurice picture, "The Tender Hour." She will have a role with/in a role as the heroine of a dramatic love scene in a pageant. Paris is the locale of the story, and ultra modern Parisian models will be worn throughout the picture by the star. Ben Lyon is featured with Miss Dove in the production.

Presenting Mrs. Semon—Dorothy Dwan, who in private life is Mrs. Larry Semon, will play opposite Ken Maynard in his new First National feature, "The Land Beyond the Law."

This Is Your Opportunity
Home Furnishings!

¶Use Robertson's Exchange Plan for beautifying your home. This feature has met with wide spread approval. A great many homes have adopted this means of better home furnishings the past two weeks. This plan has been in use by the leading automobile manufacturers for years —it now applys to furniture at this institution of Better Homes.

YOUR LIVING ROOM

Have you often thought you would like to make it more "homey"—give it a more cheerful atmosphere with some of the late and artistic as well as comfortable new living room furniture.

You hated to sacrifice the old furniture by selling it but now with the Robertson plan it's different.

Any furniture is accepted at its highest trade in value. It is the same as cash and the balance of your purchase may be paid by our Budget Plan which calls for only a small amount each week or month.

SPECIAL

THE ROBERTSON EXCHANGE PLAN

¶Call at our store or phone B6771 for our appraiser to call at your home without any obligation to you whatever.

¶The appraiser after examining your furniture in your home gives you an estimate of the highest trade in value it has.

¶If you decide to accept this estimate bring it to our store where it will be honored as cash on a cash transaction or as a partial payment on a deferred charge account.

¶You are privileged to apply the amount on any kind of new furniture or home furnishings you may need.

¶Your old furniture will not be removed from your home until the new furniture selected from Robertson's has been delivered there.

¶Convenient payments will be arranged to facilitate paying off the balance on the new furniture if desired.

Fifty Mile Delivery Service

It is a losing proposition to send away for furniture when you can buy it here at our low prices and see exactly what you are getting and then have it delivered to your door. Remember furniture does not always come like it appears in the pictures—it may be broken in transit —then there is freight and drayage to pay when ordered from a catalogue.
